Lawmakers Say Truman Wants Action On Job Drop

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

President Truman believes something should be done about rising unemployment, members of a congressional delegation that visited the White House yesterday reported.

Senator James E. Murray (D., Mont.) headed a delegation of five Democrats who sought support from Mr. Truman for an "economic expansion" bill.

Meantime, the following developments in the country's economic situation were reported:

1. President Truman signed a joint resolution authorizing the monthly publication of "economic indicators" by the Government. This monthly economic analysis is to be prepared by the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

Letter to O'Mahoney

After signing the measure, Mr. Truman made public the following letter to Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.), who sponsored the bill:

"It is particularly important to our Government's efforts to promote the objectives of maximum employment, production, and purchasing power, as set forth in the Employment Act of 1946, that there be broad public knowledge concerning economic facts and developments.

"It will now be possible for people throughout the country to follow each month the compilation of economic charts and statistics prepared for the Joint Committee on the Economic Report by the Council of Economic Advisers as this document will be available on a subscription basis from the Superintendent of Documents."

2. An extra allotment of 33 million dollars to States for administering their job-finding and jobless payments programs, was recommended by the House Appropriations Committee.

Unemployment Rise

Increasing numbers of unemployed and the "unforeseeable work load" makes the additional award necessary, the committee said. The extra funds were included in the omnibus deficiency money bill to be sent to the House for action probably next week.

3. The directors of the United States Chamber of Commerce urged Congress to trim Federal spending and balance the budget as a "stabilizing influence" on the Nation's economy. A resolution

Truman Names Flanagan for New Term On PUC

President Truman yesterday nominated James H. Flanagan for a new three-year-term as Chairman of the District Public Utilities Commission, to start July 1.

The nomination was forecast in The Washington Post Wednesday. It was sent to the Senate shortly after noon yesterday.

Flanagan has strong backing at the Capitol, and Senate members privately predicted that the nomination would be quickly approved.

It must be cleared by the Senate District Committee, and finally approved by the Senate. Local Democrats had backed, as a replacement for Flanagan, Harold Boisvert, Washington attorney.

Lucas Unites Pro-Labor Ranks With Anti-Injunction Move

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Senate Administration forces, united for the first time in a labor bill maneuver, yesterday aimed a surprise amendment at the emergency injunction heart of the Taft-Hartley Act.

The shift in strategy closed overnight a long-standing breach in the Senate's pro-labor ranks and presaged the closest vote yet on a Taft-Hartley issue.

Senate Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas (Ill.) sprung the surprise. He simply moved to strike out of a pending substitute by Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) all provision for use of injunctions in critical strikes.

This would leave untouched for the time being Taft's companion provision for seizure of a struck plant in a National emergency. Lucas said his amendment consolidated splintering Administration ranks by stripping the issue to this:

"Are you for or against use of the injunction to require striking employes to continue to work for a private employer?"

Taft admitted he was caught off guard by the tactics change, but not for long. With Taft's support, Senator Spessard L. Holland (D., Fla.) countered with an amendment specifically providing for 60-day injunction powers in critical strikes, but omitting seizure authority altogether.

The effect of the Taft-Holland counter was to give their plan to clinch injunctions into the law voting priority over the Lucas move. Actually both amendments present the same basic injunction issue. Thus the first clear-cut tests in the still-inconclusive labor bill wrangle will come on those two votes.

Offered by Senator Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.), this would have required the President to submit

Mayhew Set To Succeed Chief Murphy

By John London
Post Reporter

Deputy Chief Joseph (Holy Joe) Mayhew, 62, has been chosen to succeed Fire Chief Clement Murphy, who expects to retire July 1 for physical disability, Commissioner John Russell Young said yesterday.

Mayhew, in an interview, revealed he plans to continue "generally" the policies of the controversial retiring chief.

However, Mayhew indicated that unlike Murphy he does not believe integration of white and Negro firemen would work.

Interest in the Fire Department, after Mayhew's appointment was revealed, focused on candidates for the deputy chief post Mayhew will vacate. Belief was strong that the new deputy chief might soon be chief.

Basis for this speculation is that Mayhew is less than two years from the mandatory retirement age of 64. Though the Commissioners could extend his tenure it was suspected Mayhew might serve an even shorter term, clearing the way for a candidate like Battalion Chief William H. Ronan, widely regarded as "cocky" but possessed of some strong backing.

Murphy said he plans to leave

Convicted Man Says Lawyer 'Guaranteed' His Freedom

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

A convicted gunman testified here yesterday that he was guaranteed his freedom by Attorney Denny Hughes after the lawyer was given $500 to have the case "taken care of."

The statement was made in District Court. In the case, two Baltimoreans who were found guilty in 9th st. gunplay over the proceeds of a roving crap game are fighting for a new trial. They are John Joseph Bruno, 38, and James T. (Skinner) Skeens, 28.

Skeens received 16 months to four years for assault with a dangerous weapon and carrying a gun. Bruno received a year for assault and six months for packing a gun.

Both now claim that Hughes waived away their right to a jury trial without consulting them. Decision in the case was deferred.

In refuting the defendants' claims, Hughes declared that he received $500 as his legal fee and nothing more in connection with the case. He testified he could not remember who paid it, but knew he got it.

He acknowledged, however, that a complaining witness in the Bruno-Skeens case had been paid $400 to take care of medical expenses. He declared further:

"The complaining witnesses gave us all the help in the world they could, but a taxicab driver convicted both these men."

Condon Eases His Demand For Apology

By Drew Pearson

Dr. Edward Condon, Director of the National Bureau of Standards, who with his wife was smeared in FBI reports made public in the Judith Coplon trial, has written a letter to FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover that may rank as one of the great human documents of 1949.

Dr. Condon, tortured by the rumors and innuendo spread first by the Un-American Activities Committee about his wife's alleged sympathies for Russia, twice asked Hoover for an apology. Then he sat down and wrote Hoover a personal letter in which he poured out some of his obviously deep convictions on FBI reports. However, the letter, so far unpublished, speaks for itself. Here it is:

Text of Condon Letter

The text of Dr. Condon's letter follows:

Dear Mr. Hoover:

On Saturday and Sunday, angered and hurt by the unjust and unfair allusions to my wife contained in an "unevaluated" FBI report which was made public in connection with a court trial last week, I issued statements to the press in which I demanded an apology from you.

I would like to assure you that these statements grew solely out of the spontaneous anger natural to any man on seeing the name of his wife sullied in the press through official documents implying improper conduct through their distortion of an innocent and normal act, by cryptic and insidious phraseology and connotations, into something improper. I believe that you can appreciate and sympathize with my reactions.

It is apparent, however, that you could not reply to my statements because the injury is irreparable by any apology, because it would be impossible to remedy the sufferings that many have undergone, including myself, as a result of similar operations, and because there is the possibility that any reply from you might be pertinent to a court matter. In the light of these, I regret any inconvenience that I may have caused you.

The fact that the present unfortunate events did take place does emphasize, it seems to me, the need for care and caution in connection with investigatory procedures. I have repeatedly pointed out the importance of proper investigations and proper security measures and, for example, I have held again and again that the President's loyalty program is a splendid and excellent thing.

But the care and caution which I mention are crucial if we are to attain the ends which we seek and, indeed, if we are not to jeopardize that very thing—our free and democratic country—which we value above all else.

In this connection, I do not believe that the welfare of our Nation is served when slanderous material about decent Americans becomes a part of official documents. It does no good to say that these documents are "unevaluated" because they are, in fact, used as official reports, as they are in such matters as Federal employment and loyalty cases where they are used as

Judy Won't Admit U. S. Owned Data

By Bill Brinkley
Post Reporter

In a vital line of testimony, Judith Coplon yesterday would not admit that the FBI confidential documents found in her purse when she was arrested and charged with espionage were the property of the United States Government.

These crucial "data slips," containing, among other things, information on Russian espionage activities in this country, were "for my personal use—they were my personal working papers," she contended.

"Can I say that the United States Government owned them at my discretion?" the Barnard College honor graduate asked Chief Prosecutor John M. Kelley, jr., as he repeatedly tried to pin her down on the question.

Kelley Astonished

"You can say that—is that what you're saying?" Kelley shouted back in astounded tones.

"The screaming and the knowing look he's constantly giving the jury!" Defense Attorney Archibald Palmer shrieked, tumbling to his feet.

"Are these documents the property of the United States Government?" Kelley's voice hammered through in District Court. "Who owned them?"

The defendant answered: "I don't know."

The high importance of the testimony lay in the defense effort to establish that in taking the now-famous FBI "data slips" on the New York weekend, Miss Coplon was carrying around something that belonged to her personally or at least partly so.

Miss Coplon, a Justice Department political analyst then, was arrested March 4 in New York with Valentin Gubitchev, 32-year-old Soviet U. N. engineer, after FBI agents had surveilled them for months. In addition to the espionage charge against her here, both face charges in New York of conspiracies to commit espionage.

Says Two Took Papers

Not only were the "data slips" in her purse then her "personal working papers," Miss Coplon said. What was more, she said, two other political analysts took such slips with them when they left their jobs at the Department of Justice.

"How do you know?" Kelley sharply cross-examined her.

"I have been told that—I have no personal knowledge of it," the defendant admitted.

"It's a handy accusation," Kelley snapped.

"If you had resigned March 1," he went on relentlessly, "you would have felt entitled to destroy these data slips or to take them with you?"

"No . . ."

"And the answer is no," the prosecutor's voice clamped down, "because you know they belong to your Government!"

Thus the prosecution worked away on Miss Coplon's claim that she had the data slips in her purse when arrested in order to get ready for a civil service exam, which required her to outline projects she had been working on.

Nor would she admit the value the FBI documents, which she had when she was with Gubitchev,

After Mother Uses It

Death of Girl, 13 Months Old, Laid to Cleaning Fluid Fumes

A 13-month-old girl who had inhaled carbon tetrachloride fumes in her home last Saturday, died at 3 a. m. yesterday in Sibley Hospital.

The child was Margaret Eley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milford Eley of 18 Todd pl. ne.

Dr. Christopher J. Murphy, deputy coroner, said he was convinced the child died as a result of inhaling the fumes. However, he withheld a death certificate pending a chemical analysis of vital organs.

According to Dr. Murphy, the fumes damaged the lung tissue and bronchial pneumonia followed.

The cleaning fluid had spilled over the head and face of the child. Dr. Murphy said death could result from swallowing the fluid, but added that if this had been the case death probably would have come sooner.

The child's father, Milford Eley, 34, is a mechanic at Bolling Field. The mother, Mrs. Lelia Sexton Eley, 35, is a clerk in the surface division of the Bureau of Engraving.

Mrs. Eley said the accident happened in their home at 5 p. m. Saturday while she was cleaning a skirt with carbon tetrachloride.

The child, who had been toddling for three or four months, reached up for a pint bottle of the fluid which was resting on the edge of the dining room table.

Mrs. Eley made a rapid grab for the bottle and it toppled to the floor and splattered. She said the child became unconscious almost at once as the fumes arose.

Rushed to Sibley Hospital, the child lapsed into a coma Monday.

Prince Georges Court Rules Slot Machine Law Invalid

By William H. Smith
Post Reporter

The Prince Georges County slot machine law, voted at a referendum June 2, yesterday was declared unconstitutional.

In an 11-page opinion, Prince Georges County Circuit Judge Charles C. Marbury held that the bill, legalizing cash-payoff machines, was "invalid and repugnant to the Maryland constitution."

He said its title failed to describe adequately the full intent of the measure and did not provide for either repeal or modification of State antigambling laws.

The jurist also termed the "innocuous" wording of the title misleading on the ground that the use of the term "amusement devices" did not clearly indicate that the type of machines to be legalized could be used for gambling.

Judge Marbury said that he would issue a decree within a few days "consistent with the opinion." The decree, he said, would enjoin county commissioners from issuing slot machine licenses and taking other steps to put the law into effect.

The ruling was issued in a declaratory judgment suit filed by a Montgomery County pinball machine operator last week in an effort to invalidate a provision of the law restricting slot machine licenses to Prince Georges County residents.

The operator, C. Walter Hendrix, at no time made any attempt to challenge the validity of the entire act. When Judge Marbury, hearing the suit last week, indicated he had strong doubts as to the constitutionality of the whole law, it obviously took both Hendrix and the Prince Georges County commissioners by surprise.

The challenge of the residence requirement was at once subordinated and, as it turned out, Judge Marbury did not trouble to decide that issue in his ruling yesterday inasmuch as he struck down the entire bill.

The bill providing for cash payoff slot machines in Prince Georges County was passed at the last session of the Maryland Legislature.

Tax Probe Airs Officials' Ties To Gamblers

By Robert Thompson
Post Reporter

Federal authorities are preparing a case to "blow the lid off" a suspected tieup between officials and gamblers in Prince Georges County, a person familiar with the case told The Washington Post. Income tax violations are basis for the inquiry.

This individual said that Government agents already have a confession from one Prince Georges County official, believed connected with law enforcement, and are following out a mass of evidence uncovered in investigation of affairs of known gamblers and county officials.

As soon as the Government men of both the Justice Department and the Bureau of Internal Revenue correlate and corroborate essential facts already in their possession, the case will go to a Baltimore Federal grand jury with request for indictments, the informant said.

The income tax inquiry stemmed from several sources. When George Morris Fay, United States Attorney in Washington, began his inquiry into gambling more than a year ago, he launched one phase of it. Metropolitan Police at that time supplied him with a list of 138 "known gamblers" in the Greater Washington area.

He submitted this list, along with evidence he had accumulated.

Hollywood, June 23 (AP).—The Screen Writers Guild named the "Snake Pit" tonight as the screen play which "dealt most ably with problems of the American scene in 1948."

Making its first honors to its members, the guild also named the film as the best drama of the year. Oscar Hammerstein 2d gave the awards to screen writers Frank Partos and Millen Brand at an industry and national broadcast. Navelist Mary Jane Ward shared in both honors.

Adventist Elder Sees Signs Of 'Last Days' of the World

The current "enormous increase" in crime, murder and lawlessness is part of direct fulfillment of the "last days" as prophesied by the Bible, Elder Howard J. Detwiler, president of the Potomac Conference, Seventh Day Adventists, said last night.

He spoke to more than 2000 delegates and members from the District of Columbia, Maryland and Virginia at the opening of the 10-day annual camp meeting at the Sligo SDA Church, Carroll and Flower ave., Takoma Park, Md.

The Adventist leader cited the current armament race, the Atlantic Pact and the conflict between capital and labor as the realization of other Bible predictions of events leading up to the second coming of Christ and the end of the world.

"While the nations of the earth are crying for 'peace, peace' at meetings of leading statesmen and at the United Nations they are at the same time," Elder Detwiler said, "racing to build up the defense of the country with their armaments program. This is a distinct and clear fulfillment of the prophecies of the New Testament."

Warning his audience of the critical situation today, he declared that all Christians should renew their acquaintance with the facts in the Bible and renew their allegiance to its principles.

An estimated attendance of between four and five thousand persons is expected at the weekend services, according to W. H. Jones, conference secretary-treas-

Never Gave U. S. Secrets To Outsiders, He Testifies

Not to Chambers Or Any Other Unauthorized Person, He Says

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

New York, June 23.—Alger Hiss, with a distinguished career at stake in a trial which may clear his name or send him to prison branded as a betrayer of State Department secrets, at 3:21 p. m. today took the witness stand in his perjury trial here.

The lean, good-looking 44-year-old, his expression shifting from intense concentration to a boyish grin, denied unequivocally that he is or ever was a Communist or ever supplied documents to any unauthorized person.

His appearance was the climactic moment to the months of world-wide headlines which began last August when Whittaker Chambers first accused him of being a Communist, then added the charge that Hiss was a willing member of a Russian spy ring.

Strides Calmly to Stand

Hiss calmly strode to the stand in the packed, stilled courtroom, where for 17 trial days he has carefully watched his future being weighed by 10 men and 2 women.

"Mr. Hiss," asked chunky, white-haired Chief Defense Counsel Lloyd Paul Stryker, placing the question which congressional committees have so frequently phrased, "Are you now or have you ever been a member of the Communist Party?"

"I Am Not and Have Never Been"

Hiss, his arms crossed over the front of a cream-colored summer suit which contrasted with his dark complexion, answered softly:

"I am not and have never been."

Q. "Or a fellow traveler or Communist sympathizer?"

A. "No, Mr. Stryker, I never have been."

Stryker then showed him four handwritten documents, among papers Chambers said he received from Hiss for the spy ring in 1938 when Hiss was assistant to Assistant Secretary of State Francis B. Sayre. Hiss admitted they were in his writing.

Indicating 65 typewritten documents, and 50-odd pages of microfilmed papers Chambers said he also got from Hiss, Stryker later asked:

"Did you in your lifetime ever furnish, transmit or deliver to Whittaker Chambers or any authorized person, restricted secret or confidential documents of the State Department?"

Denies He Lied to Grand Jury

"I think you meant 'unauthorized,'" said Hiss with a smile. Stryker quickly corrected himself, and Hiss replied, "as amended, I did not."

With the same kind of crisp answers, he denied that he lied in the two perjury counts against him, when he told a Federal grand jury here on December 15, 1948, that he had not seen Chambers after Janu-

U. S. Fired 83 On Loyalty Counts In 20 Months

The Civil Service Commission reported last night that 83 Federal employes have been fired for loyalty reasons since October 1, 1947.

It said the loyalty of nearly two million Government workers had been investigated in the first 20 months of the program.

After "full field" investigations into the loyalty of Federal workers by the FBI, it said, 274 employes were found "ineligible" for Government employment.

Of the 274, 83 have been fired, 50 successfully appealed and were restored to their jobs, and 141 cases still are pending.

Nearly 700 Government workers left their jobs before their loyalty cases had been processed fully by the Federal Loyalty Review Board.

Struck Hawaii Firm Burns Rotting Food

Honolulu, June 23 (AP).—Hawaii's 8-week-old dock strike was no nearer settlement today, and one shipping company was forced to begin unloading and burning foodstuffs rotting on its strike-bound freighters.

Castle and Cook terminals reported that hundreds of sacks of spoiled onions had been removed from the idled freighter Hawaiian Farmer and burned in the municipal incinerator. The company said the onions would have contaminated other cargo.

Five tons of badly-needed potatoes were also to be burned because of spoilage, the company said.

Both sides to the dispute which has blockaded shipping to Hawaii refused to budge from their previously stated positions on the 32 per cent wage boost demanded by striking longshoremen.

The International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union maintains that a 32 per cent increase in pay will bring Hawaii's dock workers to a more even wage parity with West Coast longshoremen.

The stevedoring companies insist that wages should be at a parity with those of workers in other Hawaiian industries rather than with mainland longshoremen.

Although there are shortages in many food staples, the overall food situation is not considered serious yet. The longshoremen have offered to unload 4400 cases of canned milk from the strike-bound freighter Hawaiian Retailer, which sailed for Hawaii after the walkout began.

A shortage of canned milk for babies is the most serious result of the strike so far as food is concerned.

Reds Dominate Hawaii, Senator Butler Charges

By The Associated Press

Senator Butler (R., Nebr.) charged yesterday that "international revolutionary communism at present has a firm grip on the economic, political and social life of the Territory of Hawaii."

He urged Congress to defer serious consideration of statehood for Hawaii "until the people of the islands demonstrate by positive steps a determination to put down the menace of lawless communism."

Butler's views were expressed in an official report to the Senate Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs on his visit to Hawaii last November as a special one-man subcommittee to study statehood legislation. At the time of his visit he was chairman of the full committee.

In the report, Butler expressed high regard for the loyalty and achievements of "an overwhelming majority" of Hawaii's people. But, he said:

"Since VJ-Day, in September, 1945, the Hawaiian Islands have become one of the central operatiins bases and a strategic clearing house for the Communist campaign against the United States of America.

"By the well-known infiltration tactics of world communism, a relative handful of Moscow adherents in the islands, operating chiefly through the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, has persistently sabotaged the economic life of the territory."

"Harry Bridges, president of the ILWU," Butler continued, "is the unseen Communist dictator of the Territory of Hawaii. He operates through John Wayne Hall, regional director of the ILWU in Honolulu, who is an identified Communist."

'Master Stroke'

Lewis Seeks Wider Coal Talk Scope

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., June 23 (AP).—John L. Lewis and soft coal operators from the North and West moved today to make a national wage confernce of their contract talks here.

This was considered a master stroke by Lewis. It might enable him to isolate the Southern Coal Producers' Association and United States Steel in his annual maneuvers for more miner benefits.

Lewis and the coal operators started bargaining for a new contract here today by counting up the annual production tonnage represented at their conference table.

The total reached 240 million tons of soft coal. This was so much of the country's total that Lewis and the coal men joined in telegrams asking other sections of the industry to join them in their contract negotiations.

The appeal was addressed to steel companies that operate mines in the South and have contracts with the United Mine Workers, and to a score of Northern and Western companies not represented at the talks here.

If they came in, only two sections of the industry would be left outside the negotiations. One is the Southern Coal Producers' Association, now holding talks with another team of UMW negotiators at Bluefield, W. Va. The other is United States Steel, which usually takes the lead in bargaining between Lewis and the steel companies operating their own coal mines.

Falls Church Asks Status of School Division

The new Falls Church School Board has petitioned the State Board of Education to make a school division out of the city.

In a June 2 Fairfax Circuit Court decision, the city was held to be a seperate school district. Since 1942, Falls Church schools had been operated by Fairfax County.

The School Board's request to make Falls Church a separate school division would entitle the city to its own division superintendent of schools. As a school district, however, Falls Church probably would have remained a part of the Fairfax division, with the Fairfax superintendent acting as a joint administrator of both systems.

Builders Hold Firm Against Carpenters

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

The Master Builders Association yesterday met crumbling resistance among the independent builders with a new vow to continue to reject the pay demands of striking carpenters and laborers.

A spokesman for the association, made up of 44 general contractors, insisted yesterday that only two member firms had broken ranks since the 100-million-dollar construction industry walkout broke out June 1.

"Our membership is standing fast, and some of the nonaffiliated independents are standing firmly with us," declared Francis J. Kelly, association attorney.

Meanwhile, the building laborers were following up the recent successes of the carpenters' union. Some of the independents who have signed up with the carpenters for 10 cents additional an hour have also agreed to a 15-cent raise for the building laborers.

Under the new contracts, the carpenters will get $2.50 an hour; the building laborers $150 and hour. The laborer contracts carry a proviso that employers who sign up for 15 cents will pay more or less, if, and when the Master Builders Association comes to an agreement with the union.

The building laborers yesterday won an agreement from Builder Morris Cafritz, who the day before signed up with the carpenters. The laborers have similarly obtained new contracts with other firms which accepted the pay raise demands of the carpenters.

The carpenters added another independent to their list of employers against whom the strike has been called off. A new agreement was signed with Aubinoe Construction Co., which is erecting the Kaymount Office Building at Vermont ave. and K st. nw.

Union Offers to Arbitrate In Transit Wage Dispute

AFL operators and maintenance men yesterday proposed arbitration of their dispute with the Capital Transit Co. over a 1949 work contract.

Division 689 of the Street Railway Employes has been asking a pay increase of 25 cents an hour for 4300 CTC workers, together with fringe benefits which the company asserts will amount to 9 cents more.

The union yesterday offered to arbitrate their demands, along with the company's original proposal to continue the 1948 contract and make operational changes which CTC declares would amount to a saving of $500,000 a year.

Negotiators for the transit company took the union's arbitration offer under advisement, and promised to have a reply ready at 9 a. m. this morning, when the representatives of management and union meet again with Federal Mediator James Holden.

Eli Oliver, attorney for the union, yesterday flatly denied a report that at one time in the negotiations the union had receded from its original demands and had offered to settle for 10 cents an hour additional in pay. He emphasized the union's arbitration offer, submitted in writing yesterday, covered all the issues of the dispute in the original proposal of the union and counterproposal of the company.

Three times disputes between the Capital Transit Co. and the union have been settled by arbitration, in 1945, 1946, and 1947. The procedure calls for union and company to select on arbitrator each, and for the two arbitrators then to select a neutral third arbitrator.

The present contract between union and company—under which maintenance men get a maximum of $1.58 an hour, and operators, $1.48 an hour—expires July 1.

critical strikes to Congress, along with recommendations for settlement. If he recommended seizure, the Government could take over a struck plant in 10 days unless both houses voted "No."

Morse had combined some features of two other compromise plans voted down Wednesday. One, by Senators Paul H. Douglas (D., Ill.) and George D. Aiken (R., Vt.) would have confined emergency action to seizure. The other, by Senator Irving M. Ives (R., N. Y.), simply would have required the President to submit critical strikes to Congress.

Douglas and Aiken had planned "a second go-around on their seizure amendment, submitting it as a complete substitute for Taft's injunction-seizure substitute. But after the vote on the Morse plan, Douglas suddenly withdrew his amendment and Lucas submitted his own.

Lucas said he was proposing a "middle-of-the-road approach . . . taking something from labor, something from management" and giving the President a bill he can sign.

Accepting Taft's own plant-seizure language, but omitting injunctions, Lucas said such a bill would contain four other previously adopted Taft-Hartley points. Guarantee of free speech to employers, and requirements that both unions and employers sign non-Communist, non-Fascist oaths, bargain in good faith and file financial statements.)

He said his plan would ban only use of injunctions to make employes stay at work for private employers but wouldn't affect what he thinks is the President's implied power to use injunctions if necessary to keep the work going in Government-seized plants.

Later Lucas told newsmen:

"Mr. Truman did not know a single thing about the move that was made. But he obviously will approve it, for it is in line with his philosophy on labor legislation. It was the only move we could make to unite all of our forces."

Lucas said the vote on his own and the Holland amendment "will determine the course of the bill . . . It could determine whether the bill will be vetoed or even recommitted."

Senate Labor Chairman Elbert D. Thomas (D., Utah) and other Administration Democrats, who had previously split away from compromise proposals, lined up for the Lucas motion. Six or seven liberal Republicans were expected to join the pro-labor and compromise forces in the close test.

Holland's countermove for clear-cut injunction powers, stripped of plant seizure authority, also brought reformation of lines on the Taft-Hartley side. Taft forces still count on 16 or 17 Democrats and a large majority of Republicans to stay put for injunction authority.

Cosponsoring the pro-injunction amendment with Holland were Senators John W. Bricker (R., Ohio), Andrew F. Schoeppel (D., Kans.) and Clyde R. Hoey (D., N. C.)

Thomas asked for a vote yesterday on the Lucas amendment, but Taft objected. The Ohioan said Lucas sought to "kill" the Taft amendment and he wanted to speak in defense of his own injunction-seizure substitute, as well as for the Holland proposal.

Later Lucas sought unanimous consent to vote on both the Lucas and Holland amendments on Monday. Taft objected to a vote on Monday but suggested an agreement might be worked out to vote either Saturday or Tuesday. Lucas said he will try again to reach a voting agreement today.

Lucas Pledges DP Bill Action This Session

Senate Democratic Leader Scott W. Lucas of Illinois yesterday promised the Senate will act on displaced persons legislation before the end of the current session.

But Chairman Pat McCarran (D., Nev.), angrily denounced suggestions that the House-approved bill be forced out of his Judiciary Committee, which has sat on it for several weeks.

Lucas gave his pledge when Republicans brought up the issue for unscheduled floor debate.

Senator Irving M. Ives (R., N. Y.), decried what he called the Senate's "deplorable lack of action." Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.), termed the present D. P. law "only a gesture." He said the United States has not assumed its full responsibility.

The House-approved bill would admit 339,000 homeless Europeans refugees over a three-year period, instead of the present 205,000 in two years. In addition, it would remove restrictions in the present law, labeled discriminatory by President Truman, which bar entrance of thousands of refugees from behind the Iron Curtain.

McCarran, who has introduced a bill that would raise the D. P. number to 507,000 but retain restrictions of the present law, has hinted his committee may not get around to acting on the subject at all.

Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), suggested that Democratic leaders seek to force it out of committee if the group fails to act in time for a Senate decision this session.

Lucas arose and said he would assure the Senate there will be "some action—one way or another—at this session."

Senate J. Howard McGrath, Democratic national chairman, said no pledge in the Democratic platform is 'more sacred than the promise to liberalize the D. P. law. But he pleaded for time for the committee to work out a bill.

Burmese Lose Key Town

Rangoon, Burma, June 23 (AP).—The government today announced Karen rebels have occupied the cigar-making center of Danubyu, but reported a Burmese army sweep is recapturing villages north of Moulmein.

Danubyu is 55 miles northwest of Rangoon in the rice-growing and tobacco-processing Maubin district.

The objective of the reported drive is the Karen-held coastal town of Thaton, north of Moulmein.

The government communique said Karens chased White Band PVO's out of Danubyu and that it had not been known previously whether the force there was for the government or rebels.

The government said the Karens massacred PVO sympathizers after taking the town.

Maladjustment Called A Minor Problem

Despite strange customs and language that a displaced person must face in the United States, the maladjustments are surprisingly few, the chairman of the Displaced Persons Commission said yesterday.

Speaking before the Womans National Democratic Club, Ugo Carusi said maladjustment has been a problem mainly among DP's who have taken jobs for which they were unsuited.

Mr. Carusi told of a Washington case where a sponsor had hired a couple for domestic work only to find out later that the woman was a doctor and her husband a lawyer. "In this case the sponsor didn't feel right," he said.

Bitterest opposition to bringing displaced persons to the United States comes from the Communists, he stated without elaboration, except to add: when their "come back to Russia" propaganda fails, the Communists label the displaced persons as "Communists" to prevent their transfer to another country.

Union Quitting Grocery Trade, '$4700 in Red'

Pittsburgh, June 23 (AP).—The big United Electrical Workers' Local 601 at East Pittsburgh is giving up the grocery business after going $4700 in the red."

The local, representing 16,500 Westinghouse Electric Corp. workers, opened the store a year ago to help members save on grocery bills through quantity buying. Philip Conahan, local president, said canned goods were being sold in small quantities only, adding, "it hasn't been a paying proposition."

Phone Man Gets Life For Slaying His Wife

Rock Island, Ill., June 23 (AP).—A 44-year-old telephone company technician, Joseph Matusik, today was convicted of murdering his wife whom he thought was unfaithful and tried to trap by wiring their house for sound. He was sentenced to life imprisonment.

The state charged Matusik intentionaly shot his wife, Eva, 40, on March 7. Matusik, suspecting indiscretions, set up an elaborate wire recording system in his home in an effort to trap his wife. All the rooms as well as the telephone were wired for sound.

Can't Relax Now, Acheson Declares

'Totalitarianism'

Lord Quits Laborites, Sees Danger

London, June 23 (AP).—Lord Milverton quit the ruling Labor Party today with a charge it is heading Britain for a fall into totalitarian ways.

Milverton, until 1947 Sir Arthur Frederick Richards, joined the Labor Party after retiring in 1947 from a long career as servant and governor in the colonial empire.

The 64-year-old peer told the House of Lords many others in the party shared his view that controls have reached dangerous size.

Many are uneasy, he said, over the extent of the Laborite nationalization program.

The specific issue prompting his resignation was a bill for nationalizing iron and steel industries. He called it "this sinister journey."

"The road on which we are traveling leads to a precipice at the foot of which clearly emerges the totalitarian state," he said.

Milverton then walked calmly across the floor to sit with the Liberals.

The Lords were in the midst of a campaign to delay final action on the iron and steel bill. A majority voted for it on second reading, giving ostensible approval in principle.

Quickly after Milverton's sides-changing the Lords handed the government two defeats.

Over Labor opposition it passed two amendments: one would require inclusion of at least three persons of wide experience on the proposed national steel board; the other was designed to insure that the state steel body should include a person with wide experience as a user of iron and steel for industrial purposes.

Meanwhile, the Amalgamated Engineering Union's national committee, meeting at Scarborough, voted 42 to 10 for a resolution demanding nationalization of the iron and steel industry without compensation to its owners. A bill for compensation at Stock Exchange prices is pending in Parliament.

Picturing Russia as already on the defensive, Secretary of State Acheson appealed twice yesterday for continuance of a firm and active American foreign policy.

In the morning he told the House Foreign Affairs Committee that it would be "tragic" if Congress adjourned without approving both the North Atlantic treaty and the military aid program for western Europe. He also urged approval of 150 million dollars of aid for the new Republic of Korea, saying that without it the people and government in non-Soviet Korea "will have an almost insuperable task in maintaining freedom and independence."

In the afternoon he told a press conference that the greatly strengthened position of the West at Paris was due, in large part, to the Berlin airlift and to programs adopted by the United States in the past two years.

Can't Stand Still

He said there could be no standing still in what he called the struggle for the soul of Europe. Either you move forward or you slip back, he said, and he predicted a continued improvement in the relative power and influence of the West if the United States took the necessary decisions without delay.

He compared a meeting of Foreign Ministers to a steam gauge on a boiler, an indicator of power and progress. He felt the western position at Paris had far more steam behind it than the Russians.

Being on the defensive, he went on, the Soviet Union refused to relax its hold in any way on eastern Germany or eastern Berlin; it did not dare to let the Germans regain responsibility for their own affairs. The West, on the other hand, was ready to relax the grip of military control and give the Germans a wide measure of self-government, but without giving up any of the basic freedoms now possessed by the Germans in the western zones.

Wary on Paris Parley

The Secretary was wary in describing the minor agreements on Germany reached at Paris. He said the final communique established clearly that the Berlin blockade would not be reimposed. But he said he was not so naive as to believe that the blockade might not be reimposed whenever the Russians thought conditions favorable.

He felt the Paris conference had at least provided a forum for the discussion of four-power administrative and technical difficulties between the two halves of Germany, so that these matters would not become great issues between governments.

About Austria he was cheerful, and confident that the remaining technical difficulties could be worked out. He predicted that the future Austria would have to scratch hard for a living, but at least could be self-supporting and independent.

The Secretary dealt with other subjects as follows:

1. He issued a statement denouncing the Czechoslovak government's attack on Archbishop Josef Beran as a violation of "the rights of conscience and the decencies of civilization," and branding it as part of an organized pattern of persecution in eastern Europe.

Statement on Palestine

(2) He issued another statement hinting that the present deadlock in the Palestine Conciliation Commission might be broken if the commission adjourned "for a brief period in order to permit the several delegations to consult their governments and to give an opportunity for further informal discussion."

(3) He said the State Department was actively considering publication of an extensive record of events in China during the past several years, including the texts of documents not yet published.

(4) He reaffirmed the long-standing American position that the Japanese peace treaty should be discussed by all eleven nations represented on the Far Eastern Commission rather than by the five on the Council of Foreign Ministers.

Hike in Greek Aid Is Urged By Van Fleet

Lieut. Gen. James A. Van Fleet, chief of the American military mission to Greece, said yesterday that larger funds for Greek arms aid are necessary next year.

He indicated to reporters that he is urging a higher appropriation than the 150 million dollars allowed during the past 12 months. About the same quantities of arms and supplies are needed next year, Van Fleet said, but costs have risen and some "capital goods" must be replaced.

Some of the warships, planes and heavy military equipment previously given the Greeks are wearing out, he explained, and must be replaced or repaired.

Van Fleet said that "lots of progress" had been made in Greece during the past 12 months, "militarily, politically and economically."

Communist guerilla activity will be wiped out in central Greece at least by the end of next winter, he predicted. The Greek regular army of 147,000 men, augmented by 50,000 militiamen, is in good shape, and has cut down the guerilla forces to about 18,000, Van Fleet declared.

However, the border situation is "impossible" and peace can come in northern Greece only by an international agreement, he added.

"I don't believe we can get out of Greece until we have such an agreement stopping aid to the Balkans," said Van Fleet.

Communist neighbors to the north are continuing to provide "asylum, recruits and supplies" for the guerillas, the general said. However, there has been less activity over the Yugoslav border since Tito's break with Moscow, and there is no real evidence of supply columns moving across the line as with the case of Albania and Bulgaria, he added.

What would happen if we pulled out now? a reporter asked.

"We'd lose Greece," was the reply.

ECA Aide Fatally Shot In Paris Accident

Paris, June 23 (AP).—John A. Brady, 23, a security officer at European Cooperation Administration headquarters here, was shot and killed last night. Police said it was an accident.

Brady was struck by a bullet from a pistol in the hands of Colin H. Mechlin of Columbus, Ohio, another security officer. Mechlin and Brady were close friends, officials at ECA headquarters said, and both thought the gun was unloaded.

Brady's home was in Omaha, Nebr.

ECA Linked To High Living In Morocco

French residents of Morocco are living in luxury far beyond anything that could be afforded by the American taxpayers who make it possible, Congress was told yesterday.

Robert Emmet Rodes, president of the American Trade Association of Morocco, testified before the Senate Appropriations Committee that ECA funds supplied to Morocco were being used to finance a boom rather than to increase exports.

He added that American importers in that country were being squeezed out by French administrators in violation of existing treaties.

To illustrate the result of import restrictions, increased drastically in January of this year, Rodes cited the record of imports of United States textiles into Morocco this year. These imports, he said, were $600,000 in January, $70,000 in February and none at all in March and April.

The ECA, Rodes told the committee, was "helping foist controlled economy on French citizens who would rather depend on work and initiative than political favors and intrigue for their livelihood."

He asked the committee to "preclude ECA aid to Morocco and withhold counterpart funds from all North Africa as long as Morocco is violating our treaties."

Counterpart funds under ECA, he said, were supplying half the annual budget of Morocco, creating boom conditions at the expense of American taxpayers.

Rodes said the association he heads is composed of 40 American importers, some 35 of whom first visited North Africa as World War II soldiers.

Prague Hears Archbishop Is Isolated

(From Press Dispatches)

Prague, June 23.—Archbishop Josef Beran was said tonight to have been completely isolated by Communist security police and there were unconfirmed reports his most likely successor as Primate of Czechoslovakia had been arrested.

Government-sponsored agencies, meanwhile, loosed new attacks on Beran and his bishops, warning them they were liable to prosecution for "subversive" activities.

Prague priests reported their last contacts with Beran have been broken. They said they doubted there was any chance he could smuggle out another defiant pastoral letter like the one read Sunday in Roman Catholic churches throughout the country.

The 60-year-old Catholic leader who defied the state's drive to gain control of the church has been under police surveillance more than a week. Vatican and other sources have predicted he might be placed under arrest at any moment.

Official Prague sources would not comment on reports that Archbishop Josef Matocha of Olomouc, Moravia, had been arrested.

However, further restrictions—if not actual arrest—appeared to have been imposed on Beran's most likely successor. Two members of his staff were reported arrested and police made a two-day search of his residence.

The labor union newspaper Prace charged today that Catholic Church leaders had used "open threats and pressure" on priests who approved the government's new Catholic Action organization.

"These are, of course, illegal, antistate, antipopular and punishable methods," Prace said.

Rakosi Says Hungary Reds 'Expelled' 200,000 Comrades

Prague, Czechoslovakia, June 23 (AP).—Hungary's strong man, Vice Premier Matyas Rakosi, said tonight 200,000 persons—about 18 per cent of the membership—had been expelled from the Hungarian Communist Party.

He added the party is still ridden with "spies and provocateurs." Against these, Rakosi said, he is waging a "campaign of destruction with an iron hand."

He referred apparently to the recent expulsion and arrest of Laszlo Rajk, former Hungarian Foreign Minister, and Communist Leader Tibor Secenyi on charges of spying and Trotzkyism.

Rakosi, Hungary's Communist Party chairman, addressed a rally of Czech workers at Prague's Industrial Palace.

He headed a delegation visiting here for ratification of the Czech-Hungarian treaty of friendship.

Rakosi said a purge of Hungarian Communist ranks was found necessary to "strengthen our party." He said it was trimmed to about one million members.

"It is natural that in our party remained paid agents, spies and provocateurs of the enemy," he continued. "In the past few days we found out such an espionage organization, the destruction of which we undertook with an iron hand."

Rakosi said that, according to the official press report, the Communists' trial and imprisonment of Joseph Cardinal Mindszenty had aided them in the recent elections.

Reds Tortured Two Bishops, Vatican Says

Vatican City, June 23 (AP).—Two bishops of Romania's outlawed Uniate Church have been tortured by Communist officials in an effort to break their allegiance to Pope Pius XII, a Vatican source said today.

The Uniate Church, a Romanian branch of the Roman Catholic faith, was dissolved by Romania's Communist government last December.

The Vatican informant said the Romanian regime is carrying out a campaign of "wiping out the two branches of the Roman Catholic faith there, from the ground up, and with the use of every means of terror, oppression and pressure."

There are some 1,500,000 communicants in each of the two allied Catholic rites in Romania—the Uniate and the Latin. The pro-Russian Orthodox Church, only officially recognized religion in the country, has more than 12 million adherents.

The Vatican source gave the following account of the case of the two bishops:

The Communists demanded that Uniate Church leaders return to the Orthodox faith. Six bishops refused. They were led by Msgr. Ion Suciu, Papal representative of the metropolitan see of Fagaras and Albia Julia.

Bishop Suciu and the five other bishops were interned in an Orthodox monastery. This was last November.

Throughout the winter Orthodox prelates tried to persuade the Uniate leaders to sign statements saying they had abandoned their loyalty to the Pope and joined the Orthodox faith.

This spring Suciu was taken to the Ministry of the Interior in the heart of Bucharest, where he vanished into the iron and concrete torture chambers of the basement, the Vatican source said.

It is known that Suciu was tortured, the source added, but it is not known whether he still is alive.

In May, the Vatican informant continued, Suciu's auxiliary, Msgr. Aftenie, was taken to the Interior Ministry and tortured. The other four bishops, all still held by the authorities, believe they merely are waiting their turn, the source said.

Rep. Kee Enters Walter Reed

Representative John Kee (D., W. Va.), 75-year-old chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, is in Walter Reed Hospital for what his office described, yesterday as a "check-up."

Kee was unable to preside at yesterday's committee meeting with Secretary of State Acheson, and his place was taken by Representative James P. Richards (D., S. C.) as acting chairman.

The death of Representative Sol Bloom moved Kee into the committee chairmanship last March. Kee is expected to be in the hospital for several weeks at least, with the result that Richards will have to conduct committee meetings for the rest of this congressional session.

Rail Strike Enters 34th Day in Berlin

Berlin, June 23 (U.P.).—"Emergency crews" of striking railway workers showed up for work today but the vital rail line from Berlin to western Germany remained idle.

The partial blockade of Berlin, caused by the rail strike, entered its thirty-fourth day after the Soviet-controlled railway administration rejected the strikers' offer to handle freight trains which have been held up between Berlin and Helmstedt since May 30.

The administration said the strikers' proposal was "an encroachment of the operation rights of the railway."

British military government officials described the strikers' offer as "totally impractical," and the three western Berlin commandants were themselves reported deadlocked on the question of how to end the strike.

They met today but no results were announced. Informed sources said the three had widely divergent views on means for ending the chippling walkout.

The Western commandants were scheduled to resume discussions Friday or Saturday.

Despite the attitude of the Soviet Railway Administration toward the union's offer, 80 striking technicians reported for work today, and union leaders said additional strikers were ready to join the "emergency crews."

Union officials hoped the railway administration would back down from its position and, at least allow the strikers to unload 600 freight cars brought in during the early days of the strike.

Union officials, in announcing the offer yesterday to bring in freight trains from the West, made it clear the strike on Berlin's elevated railway system would continue. The strikers are holding out for written Soviet guarantees there would be no reprisals against them if they returned to work.

Refugee Hides in U. N. Office

Prague, Czechoslovakia, June 23 (AP).—A United Nations official arrived here from Geneva last night to investigate local police attempts to arrest a Czechoslovak citizen in U.N. employ here.

Olav Rytter, U.N. information center director in Prague, could not be reached for comment on a story from U.N. headquarters at Lake Success about the employe, identified only as Murdoch.

The story said he was being given refuge in the center from security police who wanted to question him in connection with anti-state trials now being held in Czechoslovakia.

The Lake Success story said Murdoch had not left the U.N. premises since May 25, and that since then the Czechoslovak government and the U.N. have been exchanging notes on the delicate international problem.

The story said that on one occasion police were reported to have entered the U.N. offices in an attempt to get Murdoch, but gave up when Rytter protested they had no right to enter the premises. All U.N. offices are recognized as international territories inviolable by local police.

Hiss Denies Ever Being a Red, Says He Never Gave Out Secrets

ary 1, 1937, and did not give Chambers State Department documents in early 1938.

Just before Hiss took the stand, a surprise defense witness startled the Federal courtroom spectators with the statement that Chambers, in 1940, named Francis B. Sayre as "the head of a Communist apparatus in the State Department."

This declaration came from Malcolm Cowley, a Sherman, Conn., author and writer of magazine articles for the past 25 years.

Cowley's account of a conversation he said he had with Chambers on December 13, 1940, and notes he said he made immediately afterward, went into the record over the bitter objection of Prosecutor Thomas F. Murphy.

Cowley, a man with graying hair and a deep-throated voice, said Chambers called him in connection with an article Chambers intended to write for Time magazine.

(Chambers, until recently, was a $30,000-a-year senior editor for Time. He joined the magazine in 1939, after he said he renounced the Communist Party and abandoned his work as spy-ring courier.

Names in Conversation

At that conversation, during luncheon at the Hotel New Winston here, said Cowley, Chambers "began to speak about Communists in the Government at Washington."

Chambers, in the talks, he said, mentioned "a couple of names which I had never heard." But Cowley said he distinctly remembers mention of Sayre, and Nathan Witt, but has no recollection of "Alger Hiss" having ever been mentioned to him before.

Cowley's bombshell-like statement brought the immediate comment from Stryker that "I should like . . . to state in the most emphatic way within my power that we completely repudiate the idea that the statement regarding Mr. Sayre is true that we strongly and sincerely understand and believe that Mr. Sayre was a completely loyal member of the Government at all times.

"We regret the use of his name here, and I do so only because it is a part of the conversation."

"Preposterous," Says Sayre

At Lake Success, where Sayre is attending sessions of the United Nations Trusteeship Council, to which he is United States delegate, reporters sent the testimony in to him for comment.

He came out of the meeting and said of the alleged charge:

"I give an absolute and unqualified denial. It's too preposterous to merit any reply of any kind."

Assistant Secretary of State for Economic Affairs from 1933 to 1939, Sayre also served as United States High Commissioner to the Philippines from 1939 to 1942 and has filled numerous other high Government posts.

The testimony by Cowley was brought into the trial by the defense in an effort to support their contention that Chambers' charges are wholly unfounded.

Cowley, who said he was employed on the editorial staff of the magazine New Republic for 12 years and wrote several books, including "Exile's Return," "Blue Juniata" and "The Dry Season," said he received a telephone call from Chambers a day or two before December 13, 1940.

Chambers' secretary, he said, told him Chambers was writing a book "dealing with writers who had jumped off the Moscow express."

"He wanted to include in this article," said Cowley, "myself, Waldo Frank, Granville Hicks, Lewis Mumford and several others."

Voted for Communists

Cowley said he was never a Communist, but prior to the Nazi-Soviet pact of 1939 had been a "Communist sympathizer," then "violently disagreed with them."

He conceded that he voted for Communist candidates in 1932 and 1934 elections, and possibly 1936, but, said Cowley, he was never a Communist Party member.

(Mumford said last night that he has attacked communism before 1939 and since then, and "there has never been any moment at which I have been on "the Moscow express.")

(Hicks, in a letter published in the New Republic in 1939, said he was leaving the Communist Party, because of the Nazi-Soviet pact, after four years' party membership.)

When he met Chambers at the New Weston Hotel, said Cowley, "Chambers looked as if he had slept on a park bench the night before. His clothes were old, unpressed and rather dirty. His linen was not clean. He would never look me in the eyes, but kept glancing suspiciously around the restaurant."

Cowley said Chambers "said something to the effect that we were surrounded by spies, traitors and conspiracies.

"You mean," asked Stryker, "he said in looking around the dining room of the New Weston Hotel—

Murphy: "Suspiciously."

Stryker: "What?"

Stryker: "I don't get it."

Murphy: "All right, skip it."

Cowley said that when Chambers mentioned "Nathan Witt of the Labor Board," Chambers added that Witt "was the first Communist ever to be discharged for Communist affiliations from the United States government."

(Witt, now in private law practice here, was named as a Communist by Chambers when Chambers testified before the House Committee on Un-American Activities. Witt refused to discuss the charge at that time, and could not be reached for comment tonight.)

"Then at this point," said Cowley, "he (Chambers) mentioned another name which I shall not repeat here."

"Well I shall ask you to repeat it," said Stryker, ". . . and ask you to tell the whole conversation."

Cowley then mentioned Sayre's name, and said today, in a shocked tone, "I said to Chambers, not Woodrow Wilson's son-in-law?"

"And he said, 'yes.'"

"And I said to Chambers again, 'The High Commissioner to the Philippines?'"

"And he said, 'not merely that, but he's the head of a Communist apparatus in the State Department.'"

Chambers, said Cowley, told him he had joined the Episcopal Church, and "I said to him that was a strange church for a former Communist because the church had taken no active stand in political matters."

"Chambers said to me, 'I joined the Episcopalians because it was—it is there that you will find the most powerful enemies of the Communist movement.'"

(Chambers has testified here that he later left the Episcopal Church to join the Society of Friends, the Quakers.)

Cowley said Chambers also told him, "I am glad that I joined the Communist Party because I learned their methods and I'm going to use their methods against them."

Stryker then read, over Murphy's objections, notes which Cowley said he made in a large memorandum book the night of the conversation with Chambers.

In these notes, Cowley wrote that Chambers "is fighting now for the Christian counter-revolution . . . there is utter sincerity in his hatred. . . .

"Chambers boasts that he tried to disrupt every underground activity that he knew about after leaving the party."

In the memorandum, Sayre was not referred to as head of a Communist apparatus but as one "also connected with the underground movement," according to Cowley's notes quoting Chambers.

Chambers, according to Cowley's notes, was fearful at that time that the Communists might make an attempt on his life. (In his testimony in Hiss' trial, Chambers said he feared Hiss might attempt to have him killed.)

Cowley's notation ended with, "He (Chambers) paid for the luncheon, $4. It will cost me a lot more when the article comes out."

There is no indication that such an article appeared.

Cowley testified under cross-examination that in 1948, after Chambers' first charges against Hiss, Cowley read his notes of his conversation with Chambers to A. J. Liebling, a writer for the magazine New Yorker who sought information about Chambers.

Later, said Cowley, he offered the information to Hiss' defense attorneys for presentation to the Federal grand jury which indicted Hiss.

"The Government rejected any assistance from you, is that right?" Murphy asked him on cross-examination. Cowley said he did not know, but that an FBI agent once talked to him.

Murphy pointed out that his verbal account of the conversation with Chambers was far more elaborate than his memorandum, particularly regarding Sayre.

"Once I looked back on the memorandum," Cowley countered, "I could remember more about the conversation."

Attended Harvard

Cowley said, in answer to a question from Murphy, that he attended Harvard University, finishing there in 1919.

Q. "You didn't know Mr. Hiss at all?"

A. "Goodness, no."

Hiss, during his one-hour of testimony today, appeared at ease on the witness stand.

Occasionally he glanced at the jury, as if to gauge their reaction to him. Sometimes he produced what could be described as an ingratiating grin.

His voice was low when he started his testimony, and Stryker asked him to speak louder. As he got under way, however, Hiss spoke clearly and methodically, emphasizing his remarks and sometimes turning his head from side to side.

Across the courtroom, Hiss' wife, Priscilla, in a dark green dress and a white off-the-face hat with green band, observed him closely, at times with a half-smile of encouragement.

Hiss gave a now-familiar summary of his career, starting with his birth in Baltimore in 1904. Among the interested spectators was the Rev. Duane Wevill, a retired Episcopal minister who officiated at the Hiss christening. A partially bald little man more than 80 years old, Mr. Wevill told reporters he lives in Maplewood, N. J.

Under questioning by Stryker, Hiss noted that his 81-year-old mother still lives in Baltimore, where he was educated in the public schools and was graduated from Johns Hopkins University in 1926.

Just before he was graduated from Harvard University Law School in 1929, Hiss said: "I was told that I had been selected to become secretary to Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes."

Stryker asked if the term was not "law clerk" instead of "secretary," and Hiss said the term was properly "law clerk," but Holmes referred to his assistants as secretaries.

After the customary year with Justice Holmes, he went to Boston for two years to study law, and then served one year with the New York law firm of Cotton & Franklin.

On December 11, 1929, he said, he married Mrs. Hiss (who had been married previously). "Is the lady who sits there your wife?" asked Stryker. "Yes, sir," said Hiss with a bow and broad smile to Mrs. Hiss.

Entered AAA in 1933

He entered the Agricultural Adjustment Administration in May, 1933, he continued, as an assistant general counsel.

The following year, he said, he was "loaned by the AAA as counsel to the Nye Committee (Senate Munitions Investigating Committee) for 'what was considered at that time a work of great national importance."

In August, 1935, he entered the Department of Justice as an assistant in the solicitor general's office. He said: "My work was primarily working on briefs for the Supreme Court."

He argued one case in the high court, he said, in March, 1936. He was not arguing a case, he said in answer to Stryker's question, in March, 1935. Mrs. Esther Chambers had said he was in court that day arguing a case when she came to the Hiss home in Georgetown.

In September, 1936, at the request of then Assistant Secretary of State Francis B. Sayre, he said, he entered the State Department, and remained in the department until January 15, 1947.

His duties in Sayre's office, said Hiss, during 1936 and 1937 involved work to support the constitutionality of, and seek extension of, the 1934 Reciprocal Trade Agreements Act.

"In addition," he said, "my duties were to advise Mr. Sayre on matters coming across his desk," and in this role he said he frequently drew up handwritten summaries of department papers.

Sayre, he said, "had been one of my professors at law school," and among the bonds between them was an interest in such efforts as the League of Nations.

Invited to Philippines

When Sayre, in 1939 became high commissioner to the Philippines, said Hiss, he invited Hiss to come with him but "I preferred to stay in Washington because I felt that war was imminent and I felt that I could be more helpful in Washington."

From 1939 to the spring of 1944, Hiss was in the office of the Political Adviser on Far Eastern Affairs.

Stryker, brought out in his questions, that all during this time Hiss was handling highly confidential matters. In the fall of 1944, Hiss served as executive secretary of the Dumbarton Oaks conference.

"What was your relation to the security system," asked Stryker.

"I was in charge of it," Hiss replied.

To Yalta With Roosevelt

The following year, with Hiss' stature in the Government growing increasingly, he was among those who accompanied President Franklin D. Roosevelt to the Yalta conference.

"I participated in a very small way," he said.

He commented, however, about some of the political aspects involved there, and then, in greater detail explained his functions as Secretary-General for the United Nations Charter Conference in San Francisco in 1945.

There he was in charge of all physical arrangements for the conference, providing translators, housing, planning meeting schedules, making security provisions through the FBI, etc.

"You say the FBI was then collaborating with you?" asked Stryker, with obvious innuendo.

"I'm having a hard time to get it out of you," Stryker said at another point as Hiss reviewed his activities, "but you're modest."

Hiss' testimony was interrupted as the session ended for the day, and he will resume the stand today.

As he finished testifying, Mrs. Hiss greeted him, and they kissed.

Earlier in the day, Charles Fahy of Washington, former Solicitor General of the United States, added his testimonial to Hiss' character, terming it "excellent." Fahy said he had known Hiss 10 to 12 years.

In another development today, the prosecution challenged yesterday's testimony that in 1938 the Hiss family no longer had a Woodstock typewriter which the prosecution says was used to copy many of the documents which Chambers has produced in the trial.

Cross-examining two brothers formerly employed for odd jobs by the Hiss family, Murphy tried to show they did not receive a typewriter from the Hisses in 1936 or 1937, as they state, but at a later date—if at all.

Further attempts to discredit the brothers' story are expected to be made by the prosecution during rebuttal.

One of the brothers, Raymond S. (Mike) Catlett, 27, of 2728 P st. nw., Washington, charged today that an FBI agent, while questioning him last May, offered $200 if Catlett would produce the typewriter for the FBI.

Murphy, normally soft-spoken, furiously challenged this allegation, but Catlett held his ground.

An FBI expert had previously testified that the typewritten documents obtained from Chambers were prepared on the Hisses' machine.

The typewriter was unsuccessfully sought in an intense search of Washington by 25 to 30 FBI agents, and defense attorneys have declared they found it after tracing it through various members of the Catlett family, their friends, and others.

Raymond Catlett yesterday said he had been given "about $40" by Donald Hiss, Alger's younger brother, and had gone around offering $50 to anyone who could find the typewriter.

When he was being questioned by the FBI about the typewriter, said Raymond, mildly, "the agent said he would give me $200 or more if I got the typewriter for him."

"What agent told you that?" roared Murphy in surprise. Raymond said he did not know.

"Did he say it was his money or Government money?" Murphy shouted.

A. "I didn't ask him."

"Who told you to say that $200 story?" demanded Murphy. Raymond said a "Mr. Jones" said it.

Objects to Screaming

"If your honor pleases," Associate Defense Counsel Edward C. McLean interceded with presiding Judge Samuel H. Kaufman, "I object to him screaming at the witness."

At another point, Murphy, in seeking to discredit Raymond Catlett's story that he and his brother, Perry, 28, received the typewriter in what Perry fixed as the year 1937, said the facts would show that was impossible.

While the Catletts said they lived at 2728 P st. at the time, Murphy said, he has information that a real estate agent's records show the house was rented to a man named "Roulhac" and that the Catletts lived there under the Roulhac lease.

And Roulhac, said Murphy, did not rent the house until January 17, 1938.

Asked if he would, therefore, change his account, Raymond insisted his family was there before that date.

Perry, his brother, who lives at 733 Howard rd. se., with his wife, Ursula, supported his brother's story and said they received the typewriter about the time the Hisses moved from 1245 30th st. nw., to 3415 Volta pl.

That move, previous testimony shows, was in December, 1937, but Perry said he could give no definite date. He said he remembered that the typewriter was damaged and he tried to get it fixed for his wife, then attending Miner's Teachers College, and now a General Accounting Office employe.

He could not fix the time but said that after the Catletts received the typewriter, probably "not more than three or four months" later, he tried to get it repaired at a shop on K st., near Connecticut ave.

It could not be fixed, he said, because repair parts were not available.

He described the shop he went to as being on the street level, but could not supply a name.

"I am going to prove to you," declared Murphy, "that it was a Woodstock repair shop . . . Suppose I told you that the Woodstock repair shop at Connecticut and K street did not come into existence until September, 1938, would that cause you to fix the time after September that you took it there."

Perry said he had no idea what month it was, and refused to alter his account. Murphy dropped the subject for the present.

It was finally disclosed that the typewriter was located by Hiss' attorneys in the possession of Ira Lockey, of 722 Kenilworth ave., a former truck operator who said he obtained it in 1945 in lieu of cash payment for a moving job.

Lockey, now a night guard for a construction firm, said with a grin, that he received only $15 for the controversial machine.

Among those who helped the Hiss attorneys locate the machine was a Washington attorney, Charles H. Houston.

Houston, who testified briefly, described how he and McLean went from the Catlett family to distant relatives who eventually received the typewriter, seeking to trace the machine on its mysterious course as it passed from hand to hand, until it finally was located in Lockey's possession.

Auto Backs Into Tree; Knocks It Down on Car

Traffic accidents usually happen on the streets and highways, but one occurred yesterday at 7 p. m. on the Brentwood Playground at 6th and Penn sts. ne.

Police said Walter Stevenson, 40, of 1102 Half st. ct. nw. stalled the truck he was driving going up an incline on the playground. He then let it roll back, they said, to get the motor started. The truck backed into a 35-foot high dead tree.

The tree toppled onto a parked car owned by Robert F. Coates of 1303 Stephens rd. se. inflicting damage estimated at about $200. Police said Stevenson borrowed the truck without permission. They charged him with unauthorized use of a vehicle.

Lie Detector Curbs Thefts of Uranium

By the United Press

Senate investigators disclosed yesterday that officials of the Oak Ridge, Tenn., atomic plant subject employes to lie detector tests and take other extreme precautions to prevent loss or theft of uranium.

Congressional Atomic Energy Committee records showed that at least twice in recent weeks lie detector tests have uncovered cases in which Oak Ridge workers removed valuable but non-explosive bits of normal uranium metal.

They also disclosed that employes in restricted areas wear special clothing which is later burned so that any minute chips of uranium adhering to the cloth can be recovered.

Senator Hickenlooper, (R., Iowa) continued presentation of his mismanagement charges against Atomic Commission Chairman David E. Lilienthal at a hearing yesterday by divulging that Dr. C. W. J. Wende, formerly a General Electric Co., scientist, resigned in March from an important post at the Hanford, Wash., plutonium works after protesting "unbusinesslike" conduct of the plant.

Hickenlooper made public Wende's letter of resignation in which he complained that "nowhere" in the Atomic Energy Commission "is there a hard knot of practical business sense."

Committee Chairman Brien McMahon (D., Conn.), said the Oak Ridge inventory is still being checked and that the committee will follow it with "meticulous attention." Commission officials said previously that "no a-bomb uranium is missing at Oak Ridge."

Describes Precautions

The closed hearing transcript said that Oak Ridge officials expressed belief the discrepancy was due to a bookkeeping error. They said more than 2000 separate weighings and analyses are involved and that a certain margin of "experimental error" inevitably occurs in each phase of the vast processing operation.

Dr. Clarence Larson, an official of the Carbide & Carbon Chemicals Corp., in charge of the uranium plant, and Fred Uffelman, Oak Ridge accountability director, told the committee there have been a few cases in which inventory errors reflected actual losses or thefts of uranium.

In describing precautions taken to prevent or ferret out such cases, they related the following recent incidents:

An Oak Ridge worker admitted in a lie detector test last March 21 that he found about one gram (one thirty-second of an ounce) of normal uranium chips in the cuffs of his trousers. Instead of turning in the chips, he admitted taking them home and burning them.

On May 27, the FBI was notified by a tipster that an Oak Ridge worker had some uranium metal in his plant locker. "Narrowing down the suspects to 12," the transcript said, "polygraph (lie detector) examinations were given and one of these admitted he had a bar of normal uranium in his locker, approximately one half-inch in diameter and one and one-half inches long."

He said it had been given to him by a fellow worker about two months previously.

Jesse Herndon, an assistant of Larson, said officials believe it would do more harm than good to fire workers for violations which were not intentional breaches of national security.

He said a worker who felt he was unjustly discharged could be "very much of a potential danger to this country."

"A Potential Danger"

"A man could take out of the plant in his mind figures, pictures, designs, and so forth, with which he could do more harm by telling what he knew than he could by carrying out some material," Larson said.

He added that in all the incidents described, he knows of only one case in which a worker might be prosecuted but he thought there would be "small chance" of conviction.

Harry A. Winne, vice president of General Electric Co., was called to answer Wende's charges of organizational inefficiency.

Winne said he considered Wende "a very good scientist" but he was also a "very impatient type of character" with a "scientific temperament."

U. S. Aide Threatened to Punch Him in Nose, Reds' Lawyer Says

New York, June 23 (U.P.).—A defense lawyer in the Communist conspiracy trial charged today that a Government attorney threatened to punch him in the nose.

Richard Gladstein said he had been approached during a mid-morning recess in the trial by Assistant United States Attorney Frank Gordon. Gladstein said Gordon told him:

"Some day somebody is going to punch you in the nose and it might be me."

"That's his statement, bad English and all," Gladstein said, in asking that the words be placed on record.

Gladstein said he retored to Gordon:

"Don't be surprised if I reply."

He said Gordon spoke to him again during the noon recess and said, "what you need is not so much a punch in the nose as a straight jacket."

Presiding Judge Harold R. Medina smiled.

"Lawyers frequently like to get each other's goat," he said

"I'm frank to say that I do not think he was employing some subtle effort to get my goat," Gladstein remarked. "I'm unable to find anything subtle about Mr. Gordon. He made it very clear his preference to substitute brute force for combat on what is supposed to be an intellectual and legal plane. One look at him will convince you that when it comes to brute force he is one of the most forceful looking brutes in the court room."

Gordon, who is built like a fullback, remained silent.

Judge Medina, still smiling, ordered the jury to be brought in, and the session continued.

Navy Dedicates Guided Missile Research Facility

The Navy yesterday dedicated its newest facility for research and development of propellants to power guided missiles, at Indian Head, Md.

The facility, a unit of the Naval Powder Factory there, was named the Patterson Pilot Plant in honor of the late George W. Patterson, naval powder expert who died in 1942. Equipped with the latest safety devices to minimize fires and explosions, it occupies an 86-acre tract of land.

Navy spokesmen said the plant is the first complete facility for research and development of fuels to power all types of weapons.

Reds Claim Record For Parachute Jumps

Moscow, June 23 (AP).—The Communist Party newspaper Pravda today announced that seven Soviet athletes, including a woman, have scored a new parachute jump record.

Pravda said the parachutists bailed out at night with oxygen equipment from a height of more than 30,000 feet and all landed without injury. The paper said the temperature was 53 degrees below zero when the jump was made.

Miss Coplon Won't Admit Data in Her Purse Was U. S. Property might have had to other persons if they had obtained them.

"Do you concede," Kelley asked, "that the material would be of great interest to Russian espionage agents in this country if it had fallen into their hands?"

"I don't know what Russian espionage agents would be interested in," Miss Coplon, who worked in the Foreign Agents Registration Section and on internal security matters at the Department of Justice, said.

Another document found in her purse was wrapped, sealed with Scotch tape, and on the wrapper was a pencilled arrow. This document consisted of Miss Coplon's own handwritten notes on a "decoy" shown to her at the Justice Department the morning of March 4 before her arrest in New York that evening.

Prosecution has suggested that the arrow was to indicate to another person how the note was to be opened so as not to tear it.

Explains Arrow

Miss Coplon was asked yesterday to explain the wrapper and the arrow, and she said she did this so that if she should put something else in her purse, such as "a wad of gum," there would be no confusion as to which was which.

"Did I hear you correctly?" Kelley asked. "You mean you put the arrow on there so you wouldn't confuse the document with a wad of gum. Are you in the habit of wrapping up wads of gum and putting them in your purse?"

"If there's no other place to put it, yes," Miss Coplon, her hands gesturing, said. "The wad of gum was just an example."

She had these wrapped-up notes in her purse in the first place, Miss Coplon has said, because William E. Foley, her boss in the Department of Justice, ordered her to make them from a "plant" document he showed her March 4 and to take them to New York with her to work on that weekend. This, she charges, was part of a "frameup" directed against her.

Took Data With Her

The data slips: Not only did Miss Coplon take such material to her McLean Gardens apartment here to work on nights. She also took the full FBI reports from which the data slips were extracted, she testified yesterday. She did such things, she said, because her office at the Department of Justice was short-handed and she wanted to catch up on the work.

The trial day got under way warmly with a sharp question from Prosecutor Kelley to the brunette-haired defendant:

"Did you not, in the spring of 1948, visit the travel agency AAA and talk with Della Lee Riley, and did you not ask her if it were not possible for you to go to Russia?"

Miss Coplon shifted in her witness-stand chair.

"Well, that needs a bit of an explanation . . ."

The day before she had testified "I never wanted to go to Russia."

Foley Advised Route

But when she said that, she went on to say, the implication to her in the question was the possibility of going to Russia to live with Valentin Gubitchev should she marry him as a culmination of the romance she says was the reason, not to spy against her country, that she was seeing him at all.

She said yesterday that the question of her making a trip to Russia came up when a pictured Soviet folder arrived at her Justice Department office.

"Mr. Foley (her boss)," she explained, "said he understood Leningrad was a beautiful place. I said to him, 'Do you think I, with the nature of my work, could get behind the Iron Curtain. I asked what about the FBI?'

"Mr. Foley said I would probably be branded forever. Mr. Foley himself said to me, don't try to go from here, go to some place like Stockholm and try to get to Russia through the Russian Embassy there."

Also: "Mr. Foley himself said people might misunderstand my motives in wanting to go to Russia. He said people couldn't understand a person wanting to go in the obective sense. Maybe the FBI wouldn't misunderstand it, but the Un-American Activities Committee would. They couldn't understand that you were going not because of a love for the country but in an objective sense."

"Did you not tell Esther Pauline Annis of the State Department," Kelley asked, "'that you were going to call her to see about a visa to Russia?"

Miss Coplon said she had discussed the possibility but never said she was going to apply for a visa at the Russian Embassy here.

"You never told her that?" Kelley said.

"No," the defendant said.

Visited Travel Agency

She did eventually take a trip to Europe last year, though to such places as France and Italy instead of Russia. She had visited the travel agency, she said, and there asked, "What were the possibilities of an American girl working in the Government going to Russia?"

But the next time she visited the agency, she said, she told them "just forget about it" and the lady at the agency said she was "glad."

The Government, methodically attacking, one after the other, the myriad elements in the defense case, sought yesterday to show that Miss Coplon used what Kelley has suggested is a standard Soviet spy technique in her meeting with Gubitchev February 18 in New York.

At this time they failed to get together at the hour they had agreed upon in what Miss Coplon says was a sweethearts' date. She walked around in the vicinity of 193d st.

Denies Agreement

"Isn't it a fact, Kelley asked, "that you had an understanding with Gubitchev that if you did not meet him at the appointed time, you would scatter, come back in an hour?"

It is this rendezvous technique, he had suggested earlier in the trial, that is regularly used by Soviet agents.

"No such agreement," Miss Coplon said. She didn't know about this technique and when she didn't see Gubitchev, she walked around because she needed to go to a ladies' room and was trying to find one.

She finally met Gubitchev on the street, she explained, he said quickly to her: "I'm sorry, I can't see you—I think my wife has one or two detectives following me."

Their previous meeting January 14 she had learned from him for the first time, after a unmber of dates, that he was married and the February 18 meeting was to get an explanation.

Hearing the news about the wife's detectives, she walked on off.

"After all, this was shocking news to me," she told the prosecutor.

Same "Hocus Pocus"

"You were not shocked so badbadly," Kelley flung back, "but what you were willing to come up March 4 and go through the same hocus pocus . . . these same strange maneuvers . . . to hear again the detectives were on your trail . . . to get in a bus together while he whispered, 'Don't sit by me' . . ."

Lengthily the prosecutor and Miss Coplon, who seemed at times from her vigor and fluency, to be conducting personally her own defense, hammered back and forth between them the question of how important are the data slips found in Miss Coplon's purse.

"Miss Coplon crying: "The idea of a data slip being sacrosanct is ridiculous. It's a note."

The Government contending, in the words of the indictment, that Miss Coplon "did willfully and unlawfully conceal and remove . . . certain extracts and summaries of reports of the Federal Bureau of Investigation known as data slips, containing intelligence reports relating to espionage and counter-espionage activities in the United States."

Relates Incident

And did this "with intent and reason to believe that the information was to be used to the injury of the United States and to the advantage of a foreign nation."

Miss Coplon, in a flank attack on FBI security, related an incident she says happened one day when she was sitting at her desk in the Department of Justice.

"I was on the sixth floor," she recounted, "her hands moving palms upward in the gestures that are as fluent as her speech, "and the FBI incinerator was on the floor above us. One day—it must have been a summer day, with the wind blowing along the ledge—a piece of paper, singed on the edges, blew onto my windowsill.

I picked it up—it dealt with an FBI investigation of a lawyer in the Antitrust Division of the Department of Justice, in connection with the loyalty program. The part that fell on the windowsill did not give the lawyer's name but for all I know the other half containing the name fell down onto Constitution ave. I took the part that fell on my windowsill and gave it to Foley (her chief), who gave it to Whearty (Raymond P. Whearty, of the department's Criminal Division and now one of her prosecutors). Foley told me Mr. Whearty took it up with the FBI."

Palmer Objects Again

"These conversations with Mr. Foley," Kelley observed dryly when she had finished—she has related others with her former boss, who has appeared as a witness against her, "are coming in mighty handy, aren't they?"

Again the articulate Miss Coplon, who has referred once in testimony to a "Walpurgain night," declared: "After all, only I in my own defense can dissipate this dichotomy."

Yet again, she remarked in more earthy language; Some of these questions you ask me, Mr. Kelley, are like that question, 'When did you stop beating your wife?'"

Defense Attorney Palmer, who in his own way, is also a master of the English language, was on his feet in frequent objections yesterday to give his client support in her battle of wits with Kelley.

"Would you let her finish?" he would bark in the prosecutor's ear. "After all, she's still a lady."

"He springs on her as if he's a jaguar," he screamed at another point.

Palmer, over the prosecutor's objections, had established himself in a chair slightly back of Kelley's right shoulder. Once yesterday as the two prosecutors were conferring on notes, Whearty turned and asked: "Can you see it all right, Mr. Palmer?"

"Baby stuff!" Palmer spat out.

Seventy-five-year-old Judge Albert L. Reeves leaned over the bench and said sharply: "If you gentlemen want to talk we can adjourn and let you go outside and talk."

Backbiting between opposing counsel is part of the war raging in District Court. But the real battle, with every weapon of psychology in fullest use by both protagonists, remained that between the towering prosecutor and the 5-foot, 100-pound defendant.

Its climax is due today, with Kelley hoping to finish his cross-examination.

Prosecution has made a slashing attack on the central defense contention that Miss Coplon was seeing Gubitchev only as a sweetheart. It has established that the defendant spent nights in out-of-town hotels with H. P. Shapiro, Justice Department attorney, about the time she says she was deeply in love with the Russian citizen. Miss Coplon, admitting the nights, denies sexual intimacy with Shapiro.

Today Kelley is expected to assault another defense claim: That Miss Coplon, in taking Government documents, did so partly to get material for a novel she was writing on the Washington scene.

Virginia Rescinds Gas Firm's Right To Sell Pipe Line

An order setting aside authority granted the Rosslyn Gas Co. to sell a gas pipe line to the Potomac Gas Co. of Arlington was approved yesterday by the Virginia State Corporation Commission.

In rescinding its previous order without prejudice, the SCC explained the Federal Power Commission now has under consideration an application from the Potomac Gas Co. for a certificate of public convenience for the purchase of the line.

The gas line extends about 13,000 feet from Lee blvd. and Fillmore st. to the Virginia side of Key Bridge. If the sale is ultimately approved it would give the Potomac Gas Co. a continuous line from Dranesville to Key Bridge.

Dr. Condon Writes to FBI Chief

though the contents were truly factual and evaluated. Nor does it remedy the dangers to our citizens to say that the FBI is merely a fact-finding agency and that the responsibility of interpretation rests on other units of the Government because the FBI knows how these are used in practice (as against any theories) and should therefore label the contents of these documents as "gossip," "slander," "hearsay," 'one side only," etc., and should cleary differentiate between information that is relevant and irrelevant, true and false, etc.

In the present instance, I have gathered the impression from the press reports that the Government seriously considered dropping the charges in court because the documents were too important for the national security to release. If that is the case, then one must inevitably conclude that their contents are really important. If they are important, why is it that the contents are unevaluated—in the case of the perverse allusions to my wife a period of some 19 months having elapsed? If this information was known to be biased, incomplete, and slanderous, why was it allowed the dignity of a formal place in an official document? And if it was felt that any information, irrespective of truth or falsity, constitutes a "fact" in the "fact-finding" sense of the FBI, then why was it not clearly labeled as to what it was and evaluated in that period of 19 months as of no value? Moreover, if "facts" are gathered in this puzzling and broad sense, why were not additional facts sought before my wife's good name was sullied by entering this material in official files? Why, for example, was she not questioned as to the material? Or, why was not a proper study made of the conference which led to her innocent meeting of one individual interested in purchasing printing-type materials and then indicating to an American businessman in the export business that here was a possible sales opportunity? Certainly, the full facts could have easily been obtained and entered into the document; and this would have presented the full facts in place of the few insidious-sounding ones which turned up.

'Procedures Fail Seriously'

It appears to me that the fact-finding procedures fail seriously in ignoring the information that can be obtained from the person under investigation, even in those cases where (1) the situation is one in which the person involved is already aware of the fact that he is being investigated or (2) the standing and character of that person is such that it is abundantly clear that he will not run away but would be happy to have a chance to cooperate fully with the FBI.

I will enlarge this point. Are you aware, with all the enormous amount of effort that has been spent on investigating Mrs. Condon and myself as a result of malicious and vindictively motivated false alarms, that not once, has one of your agents come around to see either Mrs. Condon or myself, either to interrogate us or to get straightened out on some point or other? And this is so in spite of the fact that I have been absolutely straight forward in all my dealings and have repeatedly offered to cooperate fully with any fairly conducted investigation. I know, as a matter of fact, that your files on Mrs. Condon and myself are shot through with errors with regard to easily ascertainable facts. We would be glad to go over all of this material with your agents in order to get it straight, requiring only that a full transcript be made of the interview in which this is done for my files.

Having never met you personally, I look forward to meeting you, if you wish, and to discussing these or other matters which may be of mutual or general interest.

"Writing in Friendly Way"

I would like to assure you that I am writing you in a friendly and cooperative way, and I would like to confess that one of the reasons that I have addressed you so frankly and openly is the article entitled The Challenge which you wrote for the Sunday magazine section called This Week.

When I read this fine piece, beginning with the quotation from the Prophet Micah—"What doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy and to walk humbly with thy God?"—and ending with your sentence—"These three simple phrases set up an indestructible guidepost for human conduct. In clear and simple words they establish the essentials of decency. All are of the spirit—justice, mercy, humility"—when I read these, moved by their profound truth and applicability in this troubled world, I felt that you would not mind a simple, frank, and friendly letter discussing matters that weigh heavily on my heart, not merely in personal terms, though I am vulnerable enough like all mankind to feel anger and sorrow over unjustified aspersions, but in terms of that freedom and democracy which we cherish.

Sincerely yours,
E. U. CONDON, Director.

Senate Delays Confirmation

By the United Press

The Senate last night was blocked from acting on the nomination of W. Walton Butterworth as Assistant Secretary of State in charge of Far Eastern Affairs.

Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), acting for Republican Floor Leader Kenneth S. Wherry (Nebr.), asked for a delay on Butterworth's confirmation after the Senate had confirmed the appointments of four other new Assistant Secretaries.

Wherry has objected to Butterworth's administration of United States policy in China while head of the State Department office of Far Eastern Affairs.

Confirmed as Assistant Secretaries were John D. Hickerson, Edward G. Miller, jr., George C. McGhee, and George W. Perkins.

George F. Kennan of Wisconsin was confirmed as State Department counselor and Adrian S. Fisher of Tennessee as legal adviser.

Senator Owen Brewster (R., Me.) blocked action also on the confirmation of Ellis O. Briggs of Maine as Ambassador to Czechoslovakia and Nathaniel P. Davis of New York as Minister to Hungary.

Brewster earlier opposed appointment of envoys to both countries on grounds the two nations "deny the fundamental human freedoms."

3 Veterans' Groups Urge 52-20 Pay Bill

Three leading veterans organizations yesterday defended unemployed World War II veterans against charges that they banded into "52-$20 clubs" to live a year at the taxpayers' expense.

Representatives of the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and the American Veterans Committee testified before a Senate Labor subcommittee in support of legislation to extend for two years the provision in the GI Bill of Rights granting jobless ex-servicemen $20 a week for 52 weeks. The provision is scheduled to expire July 25.

Spokesmen for the organizations said persons who describe the unemployment benefits as "rocking chair" and "sit-down" money don't know what they are talking about.

Says Half Didn't File

Senator Glen H. Taylor (D., Idaho), coauthor of the extension, said more than half of the World War II veterans have not filed for unemployment benefits because there has been full employment since the war.

The bill also was defended by Senator Alexander Wiley (R., Wis.), who said that failure to pass it would be "discrimination and a slap in the face for veterans."

A similar bill is pending in the House Veterans Committee, but Chairman John E. Rankin (D., Miss.), said the group probably would not send it to the floor. Instead, he said, the committee will consider a veterans' bonus.

Omar B. Ketchum, VFW legislative director, said his organization supports extension but believes that a bonus based on length and type of service might be a better approach to the problem.

Auto Bill Considered

The American Legion was represented by Ralph H. Lavers, assistant director of its economic commission, and the AVC by its chairman, Gilbert A. Harrison.

Quadruple Amputee Walks Into White House

James Wilson, 23-year-old quadruple amputee, walked into the White House yesterday for a talk with President Truman.

The Jacksonville, Fla., war veteran walks with artificial legs. He also has artificial arms. A former Air Force radio operator, he lost his arms and legs in an air crash near Burlington, Vt., in World War II.

Wilson asked President Truman to use his influence to get bills passed providing automobiles and preferential civil service ratings for veteran amputees. He said the President promised to do what he could.

The veteran drove his own car to the White House.

'Plumber' Attacks, Robs, Chokes Woman In Home

A man who impersonated a plumber to obtain entry slugged, choked and robbed Mrs. Eulalia Colwell, 54, in her apartment at 1416 R st. nw., yesterday afternoon, she told police.

She was treated at Emergency Hospital for bruises, cuts and shock. She said she had reported a defect in bathroom plumbing and the man appeared to "fix" it. Once inside, he beat her and choked her until she revealed where her purse was secreted. She told him and he obtained $6, she said. He slugged her again trying to obtain more money, then fled.

Mrs. Colwell notified her husband, Wilmer L. Colwell, who lives at 3930 Connecticut ave. nw., who called police. The intruder was described as a Negro, 30 years old, slim, 5 feet 7 inches tall, wearing a red shirt and gray trousers.

Move to Link Pay, Retirement Beaten

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

The Senate Armed Services Committee yesterday disapproved proposals that general retirement reforms be written into the pending military pay bill.

Their unanimous action removes one of the chief threats to passage of a service pay increase this year. Had the decision gone the other way, differences of opinion and the complexities of the retirement system might well have blocked final action on pay legislation.

Gen. Omar N. Bradley, Army Chief of Staff, meanwhile, gave supporters of the measure new ammunition to win over members of the ax-wielding economy bloc.

Bradley told the committee that the pay boost actually will cost the Government about 107 million dollars instead of the apparent 302 million dollars. That's all the 1,500,000 men and women in uniform, plus large numbers of retired and reserve personnel, will receive in additional "take-home pay."

This is because of the expiration of the wartime income tax exemption, he said. Without the pay increase, servicemen will pay 130 million dollars more in Federal taxes—in effect a pay cut. While if the bill is passed, said Bradley, the increased revenue will total 195 million dollars.

The Army chief told the Senators that congressional disapproval of the pay boost would have "tremendous impact" on the morale of the men in uniform.

"At a time when industry is granting its second and third rounds of pay increases," Bradley declared, "men in the services are waiting patiently and uncomplainingly for the American people to correct their pay scales."

Terming present rates "an antiquated pay schedule for the horse-trolley age," he said that it is becoming "increasingly difficult for us to get and keep quality men for a quality security system."

"Too many of our most promising officers and noncommissioned officers are torn in conflict between a choice of duty to their country and duty to their children," Bradley added. "We have reached a pathetic condition when men of superior capabilities are unable to astisfy both.

"And nowhere is this more apparent than among our colonels and commanders who in their prime of life and peak of efficiency find themselves compensated at the pay rates of their fathers in the gaslight era."

The Senate committee decision to defer any overhaul of the voluntary and involuntary retirement system was unanimous. Senator Byrd (D., Va.), who had proposed tying pay and retirement reforms into one bill, was not present yesterday.

Under the original legislation submitted by the Administration, both questions were included. The House Armed Services Committee split up the measure, recommending pay and physical disability reforms in the pending bill and deferring the more complicated voluntary and involuntary retirement problems until next session.

Bradley also chided members of Congress who "villified the top positions in our armed forces" in their attacks on the "brass" during House debate.

"These comments, which could only tend to cause a rift between the officers and men, and which contributed little to the evaluation of the merits of the legislation, I can assure you," he said, "were not well taken by the men and women of the Army."

Undercover War

Unification Move Rends Pentagon

By Robert S. Allen

Defense Secretary Louis Johnson's bare-fisted unification efforts have stirred up another raging tempest in inner Pentagon quarters.

Because of the super-secret nature of the service involved, the embattled military have been unable to vent their fury in public. But what they have been unable to do and say out loud, they have more than made up in undercover clawing.

Feeling over the issue has hit atomic temperatures.

The melee grew out of a report by a crack regular Army Inteligence officer. He recommended the consolidation of certain high-level information-gathering agencies. The Army, Navy and Air Force each has one of these agencies. All are identical in function and personnel. All, also, are very expensive to maintain and operate.

The Army and Navy have had their separate agencies for years. The Air Force, recently, began setting up its own in Texas. To make up for lost time, the AF has been making attractive offers to civilian experts formerly employed by the Army and Navy.

The situation is a clear-cut case of costly and needless duplication, waste and extravagance. On the part of the Air Force, it is also a clear-cut case of empire-building.

The regular Army colonel proposed a simple solution.

He recommended that the three overlapping agencies be consolidated into one that would service the military establishment as a whole.

In his report, the colonel submitted evidence to prove that the merger would result in greater efficiency, better control, tighter security, and a great saving in costs.

Apparently well aware that his plan might appear revolutionary in certain Pentagon circles, the colonel did not transmit it through channels. Instead, he laid it directly before Secretary Johnson. His reaction was immediate and forceful.

Johnson enthusiastically approved the proposal.

He directed the Joint Chiefs of Staff to take steps to execute this unification. A committee, headed by an admiral, has been set up to do that.

The Army Intelligence Section, which has the largest of the three agencies, is particularly frothy. Its first knowledge of the merger plan was when it reached the Joint Chiefs. Presumably, with Johnson demanding the merger, it will go through. But Pentagon bureaucracy has a way of thwarting even the best-intentional civilian chiefs.

It still remains to be seen what happens on this project.

Hope Wanes for Ships U. S. Lent to Soviet

The Maritime Commission doesn't believe the United States ever will recover 86 ships lent to Russia during the war.

Testifying before the House Appropriations Committee on a deficiency money bill approved yesterday, Gharles D. Marshall, the commission's general manager said:

"We hope to get them back, but we think it is nearly hopeless to hope we will ever get them."

[The State Department said last night that negotiation on return of the ships is progressing better than on any other phase of Russia's 11-billion-dollar lend-lease bill to this country.—Editor's note.]

Medal for Vaughan Backed

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

A House subcommittee yesterday did an about-face to permit Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, the President's military aide, to accept a medal from Argentina.

Previously the subcommittee of the House Armed Services Committee had held up approval of a bill which would have allowed United States officers to accept some 125 foreign decorations. Among them were 15 others from the Peron government of Argentina besides the "Order of San Martin" awarded to Vaughan.

The subcommittee vote was 6 to 1 in favor of reporting out the bill, only Representative Norblad (R., Oreg.) voting against it. The full committee, headed by Representative Vinson (D., Ga.), must approve the measure before it can go to House for a vote.

Under existing law, officers in the United States services may "receive" medals from foreign governments but may not wear them without the specific approval of Congress.

It was criticism of Vaughan by Columnist Drew Pearson in connection with this medal which prompted the famous "S. O. B." declaration of President Truman at a Reserve Officers Association dinner. The President said he would allow no "S. O. B." to dictate whom he would appoint to office.

Inter-American Aid Fund Boost Balked

Economy forces in the Senate have balked President Truman's plan to double the United States contribution to the Institute of Inter-American Affairs over the next five years.

The President asked last February for a five-year extension of the institute's charter, but with a doubling of the present United States contribution of five million dollars a year. The Senate Foreign Relations Committee has now approved the five-year extension, but has voted to keep the United States outlay at its present five-million-a-year level.

The institute, a Government corporation, now conducts 25 cooperative programs in 16 Latin-American countries in the fields of public health, agriculture and elementary education.

Because it is a cooperative effort, jointly staffed, paid for and controlled by Latin-American countries and the United States, it has been regarded as a pattern for technical assistance that might be extended to Eastern Hemisphere countries under Point 4 of the President's inaugural message.

'47 Racetrack 'Job' Pops Up In Hunt Case

NYHT News Service

A Massachusetts racetrack built in 1947—when Federal housing laws supposedly barred the construction of such amusement facilities—popped up yesterday in the case of James V. Hunt, whose activity as a "5 per center" is under congressional scrutiny.

Court records in Boston show that Colonel Hunt signed a contract early in 1947 with the promoters of the racetrack, the Foxboro Trotting Track, Foxboro, Mass.

The contract provided that Colonel Hunt was to get a $15,000 fee for helping the promoters get permission to build the track despite the ban on such construction—a ban intended to channel scarce materials and labor into the building of veterans' housing.

The Boston court records provide partial substantiation for a claim made by Colonel Hunt on May 12 to Paul Grindle, the small businessman whom Colonel Hunt was trying to impress with his "influence" in Washington.

Grindle, a Framingham, Mass., furniture manufacturer, was so outraged by Colonel Hunt's claims that he related them to the New York Herald Tribune.

Grindle says that Colonel Hunt told him on May 12 that Colonel Hunt received $15,000 for finding "loopholes" in the Federal housing laws so that the Foxboro trotting track could be built.

The Boston court records contain a deposition made by Colonel Hunt on October 6, 1947, in which he said he had received $5500 from the racetrack promoters and was still owed the remaining $9500 on his fee and $6000 more for "other services."

The chief promoter and president of the track—and the man with whom Colonel Hunt signed the contract—was Paul Bowser, a former middleweight wrestling champion and promoter of many sports events.

Bowser told the New York Herald Tribune yesterday that he had paid Colonel Hunt the $5500 and owed him the $9500 more under the contract, but disclaimed Colonel Hunt's bill for $6000 for "other services."

A new Government agency brought into the "5 per cent" case through disclosure of the Foxboro trotting track affair is the Office of Housing Expediter.

Records made available by the agency yesterday show that it refused three times to grant a permit to build the Foxboro track, for which plans were submitted calling for an outlay of $1,300,000. The plans were submitted by Bowser for the Bay State Harness Horseracing and Breeding Association, promoters of the track.

The OHE records show that the agency denied a final appeal for a permit to build the track on April 21, 1947, after both the local and regional offices in Boston had also turned down permits.

The agency's records also show, however, that on April 15—six days before the final appeal was denied—the then general counsel of OHE, Adolph H. Swerner, sent Bowser a legal opinion setting forth all the "exceptions" in the law under which the race track might be constructed anyway.

Tighe E. Woods, who is now housing expediter but did not occupy this post when the Foxboro case was decided in early 1947, said yesterday this procedure was "not unusual."

Woods said such legal opinions setting forth such exceptions were frequently supplied by the agency during this period in answer to requests for information.

Frank R. Creedon, who was housing expediter in early 1947 when the Foxboro case was decided, was an additional former high official whose name was brought into the "5 per center" case by the race track incident.

Creedon now holds a $30,000 a year job with the General Electric Co. as manager of design and construction at the Hanford (Wash.) plutonium plant.

Grindle says Colonel Hunt on May 12 identified Creedon as the official who advised him how the Foxboro track could be built in spite of the housing restrictions.

Creedon, reached by telephone last night at Richland, Wash., categorically denied that he had ever given Colonel Hunt any such advice relating to the Foxboro track or anything else.

Baltimore Synod Elects Dr. Taylor

Frederick, Md., June 23 (Spl.).—For the first time in its 95-year existence, the Baltimore Synod, Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., elected as moderator a member of the Negro race.

Dr. Taylor

Rev. Dr. Halley B. Taylor, pastor of the Fifteenth Street Presbyterian Church, Washington, was nominated without opposition and unanimously elected as the 24th annual conference concluded its business sessions on the Hood College campus here this afternoon.

The electon highlighted the three-day conference embracing Presbyteries of Maryland, Delaware and the District of Columbia.

Dr. Taylor's first official act upon taking office was to appoint as vice-moderator, the Rev. Richard M. Mussen, pastor of the Sherwood Church, Washington.

The Rev. Dr. A. Brown Caldwell, of Baltimore, as re-elected State clerk and treasurer for another three-year term. He was unopposed.

Named to the synod's general council, and known as the class of 1952, were: The Rev. William J. Kepler, pastor of North Minster Church, Washington; the Rev. J. J. Brown, pastor of Wicomico Church, Salisbury; Carlton A. Guenther, Ridgely Street Church, Baltimore; S. Gordon Mitchell, Church of the Covenant, Wilmington, Del., and David S. Bender, First Church, Arlington, Va. By virtue of their offices, the moderator and stated clerk are also members.

The following were named to head the various synod committees: Ministerial relations, the Rev. Dr. John H. Gardner, jr., First Presbyterian Church, Baltimore; national missions, the Rev. George J. Riester, Waverly Church, Baltimore; foreign missions, the Rev. J. Edward Kidder, Berwyn, Md.; Christian education, the Rev. Dr. S. J. Venable, West Nottingham Church, Colora, Md.; pensions, the Rev. D. Hobart Evans, Hyattsville Church, Hyattsville, Md.; memorials, the Rev. W. Keith Custis, Riverdale Church, Riverdale, Md.; social education and action, the Rev. Dr. T. Guthrie Speers, Brown Memorial Church, Baltimore; New Life movement, the Rev. Dr. Paul C. Warren, Second Presbyterian Church, Baltimore.

Enrolled in this synod were two former moderators of the General Assembly, the Rev. Dr. Frederick W. Evans of Philadelphia and Elder Wilbur Laroe, jr., of Washington, one of the four laymen who have served as moderator in the history of the General Assembly. Two former vice moderators of the General Assembly also have attended. They were Elder E. Irving Pollitt and the Rev. John H. Gardner, jr., both of Baltimore.

Upon presenting the gavel of office to Dr. Taylor, the retiring moderator, Dr. Venable paid his successor high tribute. This was echoed by his fellow ministers.

Acknowledging the congratulations from the assembled ministers and laymen, Dr. Taylor said: "Not I, but the synod is to be congratulated for this unquestionable manifestation of Christian brotherhood . . . The action here today will have repercussions here in our synod, but here and also elsewhere they will be significant to ministers, elders and also the lawmakers."

Dr. Taylor, who has been pastor of Fifteenth Street Presbyterian Church, 15th and R sts. nw., since 1925, held the office of moderator of the Presbytery of Washington City in 1939-40. At that time it was believed that he was the first man of his race to hold the post. The Washington presbytery includes 39 white and 3 Negro churches.

At a similar meeting of synod at Hood in 1929, Dr. Taylor left the sessions after he was told that he could not eat with his fellow churchmen because the college barred Negroes. Although the synod suggested that he obtain accommodations elsewhere, Dr. Taylor withdrew his registration and returned to Washington after the incident.

Born in New Bern, S. C., Dr. Taylor received A. B., M. A. and D. D. degrees from what is now Johnson C. Smith University in Charlotte, N. C. He held pastorates at Wilson, N. C., and Paterson, N. J., before coming here.

He was moderator of the Cape Fear, North Carolina Presbytery in 1910-11 and was elected moderator of the Synod of Catawba for the year 1914-1915.

Dr. Taylor has been a commissioner to the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A., three times and in 1937 led the delegation from Washington. He also has served as a vice president of the Washington Federation of Churches and as a member of its committee on race relations.

Fire Chief . . .

within a month to live with relatives in St. Louis. There he will undergo an operation for a "deep cataract" which he said has blinded his right eye now the vision of his left eye is suffering.

A farmer's son born in Prince Georges County, Mayhew has served 41 years on the force. His most valuable experience, he feels, was 11 years as captain of No. 1 Rescue Squad. His greatest asset, he says, is his thorough knowledge of building construction.

As a youth, he worked as a union sheet metal worker on construction in Annapolis and the District. With the Amalgamated Sheet Metal Workers, Local 202, he went on a sympathy strike in 1907, when the plumbers struck. And that's how he joined the fire department.

"I drifted out to Laurel, working in a tin shop while the strike was on," he recalls. "Someone out there suggested I try the Fire Department—more money, $79 a month and security—and I did."

Mayhew served 16 years as private. Promoted to sergeant in 1924, he was made lieutenant in 1928, captain in 1930, battalion chief in 1941, deputy chief July 1, 1946.

His "Holy Joe" nickname, he says, derives from his injunctions against drinking on duty and strict adherence to regulations.

A widower, Mayhew, 204-pounder, relaxes playing ping-pong and swimming and lives with his mother-in-law, daughter and son-in-law at 1811 Kearny st. ne.

He expressed views on controversial department policies as follows:

Present segregation of the 69 Negro firemen, now organized in two companies, overmanned by about 40 men—"We're using the 40 surplus men in inspection work and it's working out fine. I'll have to consult the Commissioners first as to policy but I suspect neither white nor Negro firemen would like integration. One Negro assigned to each company would be lonely. Two to a company would mean about half the men on duty would be Negro which might be too much integration all at once."

Rotation—"I believe in rotation to a certain extent.

"To be a good officer a fireman should be familiar with all types of work. Six transfers in a career should be enough."

Non-competitive promotions—"Promotions below the rank of captain generally should be by examination. But battalion chief and above should be personally selected, for leadership and habits and qualities not demonstrated in examinations. We canvassed battalion chiefs and only two favored examinations."

Firemen's union—"I believe in unions as a union man myself and I'll always hear their views. But I don't like their having taken up arms for one member against another—Captain Conroy against Chief Murphy."

He also indicated he favors outside alarm boxes at schools rather than the inside boxes asked for by school officials; does not see the need for an auxiliary fire force unless war should become imminent; will work for congressional appropriations to reduce the 72-hour work week to 60 hours.

'Sunburn' Meter Tells When to Seek Cover

Swampscott, Mass., June 23 (U.P.).—A "sunburn" meter which tells basking bathers when to get into the shade was introduced today at the meeting of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers.

Hoyt Scott, General Electric Co. engineer, explained the meter consisted of filters and light-sensitive cells which record on a dial the number of minutes of sunlight necessary to produce a pink glow or a bad burn.

U. N. Health Unit Asks Soviets to Return

Rome, June 23 (AP). — World Health Organization delegates appealed today to the Soviet Union to return to the fold. Russia, White Russia and the Ukraine, all parts of the Soviet Union, quit the group last February.

The appeal, by resolution of the constitutional committee, stressed the need of the WHO, a specialized agency of the United Nations, for participation of all countries.

tacked" him and knocked him down, causing a fractured hip and other injuries. He asked the damages of Schekterson and Leo Rossiter, proprietor of the grill.

Rossiter said yesterday that while the accident occurred, it was not in the restaurant, but outside on the sidewalk, and that Bannow had gone outside to play with the animal.

He said he was informed that the huge dog playfully put his feet on Bannow's shoulders and the weight was too much, knocking Bannow down. He said the dog is "a pal of everyone around here." Bannow's suit charged that Duke has a "vicious and mischievous temperament."

Didiou was rushed to a hospital and the cook was jailed.

Sandy Spring Man Elected by Firemen

Ocean City, Md., June 23 (AP).—Spencer Brown of Sandy Spring, Md., was elected president of the Maryland State Volunteer Firemen's Association tonight at the final business session of the group's fifty-seventh annual convention.

Other officers named were:

G. Mitchell Boulden of Elkton, first vice president; Cromwell Zembower of Lavale, second vice president; Ted C. Gardner of Riverdale Heights, secretary; William A. Wilson of Midland, treasurer; John O. Cockey of Glyndon, trustee, and the Rev. James W. Minter of Hereford, chaplain.

Earlier in the day a specialist on arson told the volunteer firefighters that liquor and twisted sexual appetites cause a lot of the country's most disastrous blazes.

It takes only a few beers to set off an alcohoic pyromaniac, said Joseph M. Gillice, special agent for the National Board of Fire Underwriters.

Gillice was the main speaker at one of today's sessions of the Maryland State Volunteer Firemen's Fifty-seventh Annual Convention.

The firemen quickly disposed of one of the most controversial issues before them by voting down a proposal by Montgomery County's Firemen's Association to liberalize benefits for members injured in line of duty.

The vote was 593 to 172.

Parade Is Scheduled

Opponents said they feared it would spread too thin the $20,000 allotted by the State annually for relief of injured firemen.

New arrivals today swelled the ranks of firemen and their friends who have come to this Atlantic resort for the volunteers' top event of the year. Maryland has 243 volunteer companies, with some 250,000 members.

The crowd is expected to top 5000 for the big day Friday, which will include a parade.

'Hidden Boy' Turns Away From Mother

Boston, June 23 (AP).—With a trembling, smallboy "no," Gerald Sullivan, 14, today turned away from the mother, Mrs. Anna Sullivan, 45, who is accused of keeping him a "hidden boy" most of his life.

They met outside a closed court where she had come to plead with a judge to return her boy.

They have been apart since last March 14, when Gerald startled a world on his first day of real freedom.

In ragged dresses and with black curls down to his shoulders, Gerald told police of his escape from a tenement room in which he said his mother kept him locked.

He said he knew nothing of the world outside except what he could see through a slit below a nailed curtain.

His mother—in a weeping interview with newsmen said she loved the boy and meant him no harm. Her only thought over all the years, she said, was to hide the secret of the boy's illegitimate birth. She said she wanted him back so they could go away and begin life anew together.

Today she saw her son in a neat blue tweed suit, his hair carefully combed.

The boy did not speak.

Then his mother's counsel, Daniel J. O'Connell, said:

"Don't you want to speak to your mother, Gerald?"

Set-faced, the boy turned away.

O'Connell asked:

"Don't you want to say hello?"

His voice shaking, Gerald blurted—"No."

He walked away.

His mother stood wordless between her two U. S. Marine Corps sons, James and John.

The court will decide, probably on June 30, where Gerald will live.

Mother Who Reared 4 as Catholics, 2 as Jews, Must Give Up 4 to Ex-Husband, a Protestant

New York, June 23 (U.P.). — A mother who reared two of her children in the Jewish faith and four as Catholics was ordered today to return the Catholics to her former husband, a Protestant Sunday School teacher.

Judge Benjamin F. Schreiber interrupted Mrs. Marianne Lynch Teitelbaum's experiment by ordering her to return the four children to their father, Zoel Lynch, 32, of Coalinga, Calif.

The Manhattan Supreme Court justice also fined Mrs. Teitelbaum and her husband, Rubin, $250 each for contempt of court because they failed to carry out two court orders giving Lynch custody of his children.

He said they could purge themselves of the contempt citation only by delivering the children to Lynch by noon Friday at the offices of his attorney, Louis Okin.

'I Guess That's That'

Teitelbaum said "I guess that's that," indicating, as far as he was concerned, the children would be turned over.

Earlier, Teitelbaum had said in an interview that he hoped the judge would let him and his wife keep the four children.

"They're nice kids, all four of them," he said. "We're getting along fine, eight of us, Catholics and Jews, in a six-room apartment and a shady backyard. We wish the world would leave us alone."

Teitelbaum, a paint dealer, said his wife's four oldest children, Nancy, 12, Thomas, 10, Mary Jo, 8, and Judy, 6, were baptised and confirmed as Catholics soon after they arrived in New York last Christmas. He said he gave them a confirmation party and that they were delighted.

Two Children of Their Own

Teitelbaum said that he and his wife have two children of their own, a boy, 2, and a girl, a year old.

The four, awarded to Lynch in a Reno divorce, were taken from their home by their maternal grandmother, Mrs. Kathleen King, ostensibly to go Christmas shopping. But she took them to their mother who whisked them to New York by plane.

Dutch Airliner Carries 32 to Death in Dive

Bari, Italy, June 23 (U.P.).—A four-engined Dutch Constellation airliner crashed in the rough seas of Bari Harbor today, probably killing 32 persons before the eyes of seafront strollers.

Three harbor boats braved lashing waves to recover the bodies of 24 victims—16 men, five women and three little girls.

Port authorities believed other bodies might be trapped in the wreckage, resting on the sea bottom in 130 feet of water. There was no sign of survivors.

(In Amsterdam, officials of the Dutch KLM Airline—which had chartered the plane—said there were at least 21 passengers and 11 crewmen aboard on an unscheduled flight from the Netherlands East Indies to Amsterdam. The passenger list showed 16 Dutch and five Egyptians. The crew included 10 Dutchmen and a Briton.)

Eyewitness reports indicated a fire in one engine started the trouble.

Race Dispute Closes Pool In Ohio City

Youngstown, O., June 23 (AP).—A racial dispute forced the closing of one of Youngstown's six city-operated swimming pools late yesterday.

Nathaniel C. Lee, member of the Community Relations Committee of the National Association for Advancement of Colored People, and his three children entered the East Side Pool. A few minutes later most of a crowd of 1000 other swimmers milled around and threatened the father and his children.

Police reported Lee was warned to leave or "see your children drowned."

Bruce Hamm, manager of the pool, called police and, acting on orders of the Park Commission, closed the pool for the day.

Smoking By Youth Deplored in Russia

Moscow, June 23 (U.P.).—A Russian doctor said today that Soviet youths are smoking too much and ought to stop "this evil practice."

Dr. A. Kuznetsov, in a letter to the Communist Youth League organ Komsomolskaya Pravda, complained it was incongruous for happy Soviet youths, facing the brightest future with unlimited possibilities, to resort to nicotine.

The situation is different in capitalist countries, Kuznetsov said, "where the entire pattern of life drives a man to use narcotics," and where hunger, need and despair compel youths to deaden their senses with tobacco.

The Gallup Poll

Farmers Not Only Happier But Better Off, City Folk Feel

By George Gallup
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., June 23.—Who is happier, the man living on a farm, or the man living in a city?

Farmers think the farmer is happier. City people think the farmer is happier too—and better off today than his city cousin.

But don't look for a rush of population back to the farm. City people may think the farm is fine, but only half of them have ever thought they themselves would like to live on a farm.

Here's the way people size up farm life in a national poll by the American Institute of Public Opinion.

"In general which do you think is happier today—the man who lives on the farm or the man who lives in the city?"

	Man on Farm	Man in City	Don't Know
National	65%	21%	14%
Farmers	73	15	12
Towns under 10,000	68	18	14
10,000-100,000	64	20	16
100,000-500,000	70	18	12
500,000 & over	55	29	16

With farm income during the past few years hitting a new high, and the Government propping up the price of many crops, the survey also asked voters:

"In general, which do you think is BETTER OFF today—the man who lives on the farm or the man who lives in the city?"

The vote follows:

	Man on Farm	Man in City	Don't Know
National	73%	17%	10%
Farmers	83	11	6
Towns under 10,000	80	13	7
10,000-100,000	67	20	13
100,000-500,000	72	19	9
500,000 & over	66	22	12

Tex Thornton, Oil Field Expert, Found Slain in Tourist Court

Amarillo, Tex., June 23 (AP).—W. A. (Tex) Thornton, 57, daring explosives expert of the world's oilfields, was found slain today in a tourist court.

Police were seeking a young man and young woman who went to the motel with Thornton last night. Officers said the victim's diamond ring was missing. They found no money in his personal effects.

Thornton's skull had been fractured in two places and a shirt and towel were knotted tightly about his throat.

Thornton, president of the U. S. Nitroglycerin Co., won fame as an oilfield trouble-shooter. Clad in an asbestos suit, he would walk up to a wildly blazing well and snuff out the fire with explosives.

Thornton's home was Amarillo.

Besides his wife, Sarah, Thornton is survived by a son, Col. Bates Thornton, an executive with Hughes Aircraft Co., Los Angeles.

A porter at the motel told officers that when Thornton came to the tourist court last night, the young woman signed the register, writing "E. O. Johnson, Detroit." He said she and the young man looked in their early 20s.

U. S. Says Fields Owes $737.255 In Back Taxes

Benjamin F. Fields, who was convicted two years ago of contempt of Congress, owes the Government $737.255 in back taxes, a tax lien notice filed in District Court stated yesterday.

The lien covers income taxes for 1943, 1944 and 1945. The record claims he failed to pay $75.-230.43 in 1943, $488,512.38 in 1944 and $173,512.79 in 1945, according to the Baltimore office of the Bureau of Internal Revenue.

Fields served a 90-day jail sentence beginning March, 1948 and paid a $250 fine for the contempt. He had failed to produce his records in connection with a sale of surplus bronze wire screen when questioned by a Congressional committee. His address was given as 1643 Connecticut ave. nw., where he had offices.

Private Lead Urged In Security Search

Atlantic City, N. J., June 23 (AP).—Eric Johnston suggested today that insurance companies take the lead in a quest for private social security plans.

Jackson

Johnston, one-time head of the United States Chamber of Commerce and now president of the Motion Picture Association of America, said said "insurance is a fine, old capitalistic concept.

Johnston told the closing session of the thirty-fourth annual convention of Kiwanis International that the great issue of the day is whether Americans want to accept a welfare state or devise security programs of their own.

"Wherever we look around the world, people are tormented by a painful sense of insecurity. Man has always hunted for security, of course. But an acute and newly accentuated sense of insecurity has turned man's quest for security into a lashing, driving force," he said.

Johnston said the term "welfare state" has alluring promise and is 'more palatable than socialism." He said the welfare state in theory means "you're sitting pretty from romper days to the rocking chair."

A welfare state, Johnston said, demands big government and little people, but "wherever government is small, the people are big: their private institutions are big."

The development of industry welfare funds is healthy because "they represent self-reliance," Johnston said.

Insurance companies, through their experience in working out security for millions against the death of the family provider, may be able to develop plans of private social security to fit the diverse needs of the people, Johnston said.

J. Hugh Jackson of Palo Alto, Calif., dean of the graduate school of business at Stanford University, was elected president of Kiwanis International yesterday.

A-Cocoon

Radioactive Worms Put Rays in Silk

New York, June 23 (AP).—Science, official journal of American scientists, today announced creation of radioactive silkworms that make radioactive silk.

The purpose is to study cancer and growth, rather than learn how to synthesize silk, which is one job that has baffled chemistry.

A group in laboratories of the Collis P. Huntington Memorial Hospital and the chemical and biological laboratories of Harvard University are trying to discover how to synthesize a protein, because proteins are the biggest molecules, the most difficult to make and probably the most important to life. Silk gives them a good chance, because it is made of fibroin, one of the large protein molecules.

How the silkworm makes this stuff is one of the puzzles of growth, and growth in turn is one of the basic researches in hunting the cause and cure of cancer.

The Harvard group injected radioactive carbon atoms to light up the innards of silkworms, so that the living process could be seen in photographs.

The worms spun cocoons, and the cocoons were radioactive. If this pure science venture tells how worms make silk, it has a by-product of great possibilities for the textile industry, because the knowledge will assist chemists to synthesize real silk.

'Suicide-Proof' Razor With Lock Developed

Northampton, Mass., June 23 (U.P.).—Two staff members at a Veterans Administration hospital here said today they had developed a suicide-proof safety razor.

It is similar to a regular safety razor, but a lock prevents removal of the blade without a special key. The inventors said the device would save time for attendants in hospitals, jails and other institutions who have to shave their charges or watch them.

Mrs. Saul Quits

Mrs. Hankins Named to Play Board

Resignation of Mrs. Andrew Saul from the District Recreation Board, and appointment of Mrs. O. G. Hankins to succeed her, was announced yesterday by the District Commissioners.

Mrs. Hankins

Mrs. Hankins, long prominent in Parent-Teacher and other community activities, will serve the remaining two years of Mrs. Saul's four-year term.

Mrs. Saul of 3035 Chain Bridge rd. nw. in her letter of resignation, made public by Commissioner Guy Mason, said:

"I have found that the time required to attend the regular day meetings, and the lengthy night meetings and the special meetings is much more than I had anticipated, and more than I am physically capable of giving."

Harry S. Wender, chairman of the Recreation Board, praised Mrs. Saul's service on the board as "a fine contribution," and said the board was "extremely sorry" to see her leave. He said the board was "happy that her successor was a woman of Mrs. Hankins' high caliber and fine qualifications."

Mrs. Hankins, active in Parent-Teacher work for the past 25 years, finished her third term as president of the D. C. Congress of Parent-Teachers in May. She is at present chairman of its legislation committee.

In the past she has taken an active part in Girl Scout work and participated as a member in the District Girl Scout Council; has served as second vice president and chairman of the department of education in the District Federation of Women's Clubs and represented it as a delegate to the Federation of Citizens' Associations; and has been president of the Woodridge Book Club.

A native of Chicago, Mrs. Hankins is a graduate of the University of Illinois in home economics. She has resided in the District approximately 30 years.

She is the wife of Orville G. Hankins, of 2704 Brentwood rd. ne., a research worker at the Department of Agriculture Research Center at Beltsville, Md. They have one son, Robert B. Hankins, an attorney with offices in the Ring Building.

Lowly Turnip Yields Drug Of Great Value

New York, June 23 (U.P.).—A scientific team tonight reported the isolation and synthesis of a valuable drug from the lowly yello wturnip, or rutabaga.

The drug, not yet given a name, may be used in the near future to treat hyperthyroidism, a disease in which the thyroid gland becomes overactive.

The report of the new drug was made by Drs. E. B. Astwood, Monte A. Greer and Martin G. Ettlinger, of the Joseph H. Pratt Diagnostic Hospital, Tufts Medical School and Harvard University.

They pointed out in Science Magazine, publication of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, that surveys had shown presence of an antithyroid factor in the yellow turnip.

Dr. Astwood and his associates set out to find the factor, isolate it and make it synthetically. Through a long chemical process, they succeeded.

Furthermore, they said the same substance was obtained from the root of the white turnip. From the seeds of rutabaga, white turnip, cabbage, kale and rape plants.

Its antithyroid activity in man, the investigators said, approximately equals that of propylthiouracil, which is now being used to treat thyroid disease.

Palsy Sufferer Asks U. S. Aid For Research

By The Associated Press

A young West Virginia woman, crippled by cerebral palsy, yesterday asked Congress to help the "lost battalion" of 500,000 American spastics.

Miss Ruth Tichener, of Fairmont, testified to a House Commerce subcommittee for a bill to provide Government aid for research into causes of cerebral palsy and ways of combatting it.

Paul A. Strachen, president of the American Federation of the Physically Handicapped, said no cure has been found for cerebral palsy, but that its victims can be helped.

He filed statements supporting the pending bill from two experts, Dr. Winthrop M. Phelps of Baltimore and Dr. Herman Kabat of Oakland, Calif.

Two other doctors urged action on bills aimed at epilepsy.

Dr. William G. Lennox, of the Harvard Medical School faculty and president of the International League Against Epilepsy, said epilespy affects 500,000 people. If only a tenth were made self-supporting, he said, "the lifetime money savings would be something like three billion dollars."

Dr. Arthur A. Morris of Washington, president of the Neurosurgical Society of America, said epilepsy is "a curable affliction," but treatmeht is on a "trial and error basis." Basic research and carefully controlled investigations are needed, he said.

4 FFA Teams Win In Virginia

Blackburg, Va., June 23 (AP).—Judging teams from Rich Valley, Carrsville, Timberville and Narrows walked off with top honors today as the five-day State-wide rally and contests of the Virginia Future Farmers of America came to an end at Virginia Tech.

More than 1000 delegates were on the way home this afternoon. While in convention, they awarded 140 State farmer degrees, recognized outstanding members of the association and made plans for their leaders and others to attend the national gathering in Kansas City next November.

Budget Overhauling Urged in Maryland

Baltimore, June 23 (AP).—Maryland should overhaul its budget system to avoid "unnecessary spending," the Commission on Governmental Efficiency and Economy declared today.

The commission said it has recommended the same thing before, but nothing has ever been done about it.

Career employes of the State's fiscal organization are not to blame, the commission said. Faults "are due to the law and long established policies" under which employes must work.

Liberal Party Backs Lehman For Senator

New York, June 23 (AP).—New York State's Liberal Party, figuring that United States Senator Robert F. Wagner will resign soon because of illness, is backing former Gov. Herbert H. Lehman for the post.

Selection of the Democratic former Governor by the Liberal Party's policy committee was announced last night by State Chairman Adolf A. Berle, jr.

Lehman formerly was director general of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration.

Court Refuses to Bar Drive-In Near Airport

Request of the Washington-Virginia Airport for an injunction to prevent construction of a drive-in theater near the Bailey's Crossroads Airport was denied yesterday in Fairfax Circuit Court.

The theater site is across Route 7 from the airport and near the end of a runway. The airport contended the theater's screen would be a hazard to airplanes and that planes flying over the theater would endanger lives of its patrons.

Convicted Man Says Lawyer 'Guaranteed' His Freedom

Chief Judge Bolitha J. Laws was enlivened by testimony of Hughes that he went out to dinner with Judge Henry A. Schweinhaut, the jurist who sent Bruno and Skeens to jail. Also, he told the court that Schweinhaut was among "six or seven" judges who were his guests recently at an April Georgetown University dinner.

According to Skeens and Bruno, they employed Hughes shortly after they were arrested February 15 in connection with the sidewalk shooting of Edward R. Ryan, 24, of 1013 8th st. nw., who got a slug in the leg, and the pistol whipping of Lonnie "Curly" Polson, 34, 1706 67th ave., Cheverly, Md.

Witness Surprised by Waiver

The nattily dressed Skeens told Judge Laws that he was surprised to learn that his right to a jury trial had been signed away by him. He said that Hughes had given him a blank form and that he had signed it at the lawyer's order.

Assistant United States Attorney Arthur J. McLaughlin asked him, "You wouldn't have complained about it if you hadn't been sent to jail, would you?"

"I would have done anything to go home to my wife and kids. . . . If I had been freed, no sir, I wouldn't," Skeens said.

In response to a question by his new lawyer, James J. Laughlin, Skeens said:

"He (Hughes) said, this case will be dismissed. One time he asked for $500. He told me, 'Now don't ask me where this money is going.' And another time $300 and the $500, he said, 'Don't ask me. This money is going for a good cause and everything will be taken care of.'"

Bruno Also Testifies

Bruno, a swarthy little man, took the stand next. Asked how Hughes prepared the case, Bruno said:

"The only preparation he made, he just asked for his lawyers fee and he told me, he says, that if it goes before Judge Casey or Judge Scott, he says, 'I got a chance. I got a chance to get you out.'"

Hughes said that he had hoped to have the assault charges dismissed leaving only the gun-carrying misdemeanors to be tried in Municipal Court. Judge Walter J. Casey and Armond W. Scott are on the bench of that court.

According to Bruno he tried to get Hughes off the case before sentencing doy but "somehow or other he wouldn't step aside."

"I was told I wouldn't get a jail sentence. He (Hughes) told me he had his own reasons. He said 'I know most of the judges in the District. I have been practicing law here for quite some time.' I told my attorney, Denny Hughes, I had a lot of faith in him," Bruno said.

Hughes Answers Laughlin

As to the sentencing, Bruno quoted Hughes as saying, "I have a lot of friends. Most of these judges sitting on this bench, I am friendly with them. He says, 'I eat with them and play golf with them. I go to golf courses with them'."

He was followed to the stand by Hughes, who for the most part, gave only "no sir" as answers. But at times he became visibly angry with Laughlin.

Laughlin asked him, "Now tell us what you said about waiving a trial by jury and what they said to you?"

"I had advised the defendants that in my judgment, particularly with the heat that was on in gambling cases, and this shooting resulted from a misunderstanding about a dice game that was held here. And then the men came over from Baltimore up to Michaelson's poolroom and they apparently had an argument or quarrel there.

"Well, the shooting resulted from this gambling activity and I told them as a result of the heat that was on in gambling cases, they wouldn't have a Chinaman's chance before a jury, but they would be a lot better off in, my humble opinion, by taking a trial by the court . . . I made reference to it because I thought the jury would be prejudiced when the background of the case is a gambling case . . . Any jury in the world would have convicted both those men of assault with a dangerous weapon," Hughes stated.

"How do you know that?" Laughlin asked.

Taxi Driver Convicted Them

"Because I have talked to both these defendants. I knew exactly that if these complaining witnesses testified against these defendants they were gone. The complaining witnesses gave us all the help in the world they could, but a taxicab driver convicted them," replied Hughes.

Laughlin then asked, "The complaining witnesses were paid some money, weren't they, sir?"

"The complaining witness—$400 I believe was paid to the man that was shot by Skeens," said the witness.

"It was given to the man that was representing the complaining witness in my office. And I told the defendants at the time that if they took care of this operation, they would be better off even if they were convicted. They would be better off if they had treated this man the way I thought he should be treated. The man that was shot still had a bullet in him," Hughes testified.

Court Record Introduced

Hughes said at another point that Schweinhaut was "a good friend of mine. And I thought he would be very fair or that he was very fair and that he would treat them rgiht on sentence, too."

Introduced into evidence was the court record of a bench conference before Schweinhaut just before the trial. It stated:

"Mr. Hughes: I spoke to the defendants and also to the district attorney, and I think we can save some time if I can try it to the court without a jury.

"The Court: You have a better chance with a jury than you have with me."

Just before sentencing Bruno and Skeens, Schweinhaut had declared: "There is no leniency in my heart for these men."

Money "Going Across Street"

The next witness in yesterdays proceeding was Bruno's wife, Mary Margaret. She is tall and buxom, wore a low-backed gown, and her blonde hair was in pigtails tied with pink ribbons. She quoted Hughes as saying that "the boys would either get a fine or probation."

Harry Joseph Russo, a plastering contractor who said he was a longtime friend of the defendants, testified Hughes was given $900 at the least.

"Well, at the time the $500 was taken, the $500, and says, this is going across the street. I am going to use this for taking care of the trial," Russo said.

(Hughes' office is directly across 5th st. from the District Court building).

Pressed for amplification, Russo said, "He said this 500 was going across the street. 'I am using this to take care of the trial'."

"Did he say he was taking care of someone across the street?" he was asked.

"Yes sir," was the reply. "He said don't ask any questions about it. It was going across the street."

'Break' Expected In County Probe

to the Bureau of Internal Revenue for checking.

Soon afterward, the bitter series of divorce case hearings between John B. (Blackjack) Kelleher and his wife opened in District Court here. Mrs. Kelleher alleged her husband had a lavish income from gambling operations. Testimony was bandied back and forth about a safety deposit box containing $30,000 to $100,000 in cash. An Internal Revenue Bureau agent began attending sessions.

Meanwhile, May's investigators were piling up evidence which led to mass raids in March. All information in this inquiry pertinent to income taxes was turned over to the Internal Revenue men.

The case has assumed such proportions, The Washington Post was told last night, that top men in the Department of Justice tax and criminal divisions are keeping in almost hourly touch with it.

Up to now, most of the investigation has centered in Washington. But now it has reached such proportions, The Post learned, that it will be transferred to Baltimore where Federal Court jurisdiction lies in income tax cases in this vicinity.

George Hofferberg, Internal Revenue collector at Baltimore; J. C. Wilmer, revenue agent in charge; and Harry G. Herbstreig, Revenue Intelligence Unit agent in charge at Baltimore, all were mum on the case last night. But from several sources here, it was confirmed that the case will move to Baltimore headquarters in the immediate future.

"Break" Seen Near

This lent corroboration that the case is nearing a "break," which in ordinary Federal Income Tax procedure means legal action on a civil or criminal basis or both.

One high Federal official here said last night he cannot talk about the case for fear of "embarrassing" Bernard Quinn, United States attorney at Baltimore, through whose office presentation to a Federal grand jury would come.

Both Justice and Internal Revenue Bureau officials last night were closely guarding identity of the Prince Georges County official reported to have confessed. None denied that a confession has been made.

A. Gwynn Bowie, State's attorney of Prince Georges County, could not be reached for comment. He is in Providence Hospital here as result of a heart attack which he suffered on May 29.

Dr. Andrew K. Bowie, his brotifer, said last night that his condition is "no more serious" than others having similar attacks, but that he is still not allowed any visitors and will not be able to be moved for several weeks.

Slot Machine Law Voided

subject to a referendum of county voters. The referendum was held June 2 and proponents of the machines won, 6325 to 5409.

In his ruling, Judge Marbury commented at length on the purpose of a constitutional requirement that the titles to all bills enacted in the Legislature contain a full description of their intent.

This requirement, he said, serves two purposes: first, to assure the people that each act shall relate to only one subject and to prevent the "engrafting upon an act matters entirely unrelated thereto, and secondly to fairly advise" the Legislature and the people of the real nature of the proposal.

"Wisdom" Pointed Out

"The wisdom of this requirement becomes apparent," he said, "when it is realized that in legislative practice only the title of the act is read when the bill comes before it (the legislature) for consideration . . . and that most acts get no mention in the press or otherwise except in reference to their respective titles.

"There is nothing contained in the title of (this) act as passed by the legislature which by common intendment gives the slightest notice or indication to the members of the legislature or the general public that the subject of this law has to do with any repeal or modification of the general laws of this State with reference to gaming or that gambling devices, prohibited by law, would in any way be legalized."

The title of the Prince Georges act describes the bill merely as an act "relating to the licensing of coin-operated mechanical or electrical amusement devices or machines in Prince Georges County."

Judge Marbury's rulings gave two examples that would be fair descriptions of the act:

1. "An act relating to the licensing of coin-operated mechanical or electrical amusemuent devices or machines . . . and repealing to the extent of their consistency herewith" the pertient sections of the State code, prohibiting gambling.

2. "An act to repeal, to the extent of their inconsistency herewith," the same sections of the State code "and to provide for the licensing of coin-operated mechanical or electrical amusement devices in Prince Georges County.

"Moreover," Judge Marbury said, "the use of the generic term 'coin-operated mechanical or electrical amusement devices' without more is misleading and does not connote the licensing of slot consols or other machines which might dispense an award to the player contrary to the gambling codes as they then stood.

"While some of the types of machines sought to be legalized by the act would undoubtedly be characterized as gaming tables (under the State law) and thus be prohibited, some of them would not.

"But none of the machines mentioned in the title must necessarily be used for gambling purposes and all of them there described could be used without violating the law, so that anyone reading the innocuous language of the title could not gather any reasonable conception of the subject of the act or the true effect of the provisions contained in the body of the act."

He said that the "subject of this law is not difficult to describe and, if the proponents in preparing the title have deliberately used 'weasel words' which are deceptive in character, when this situation is brought squarely to the attention of the court for decision they cannot complain because the court, in the exercise of its duties and responsibilities, is required to strike down the act."

The fact that it went to a referendum did not cure the defects in the title, Judge Marbury said.

Law Titles in 3 Counties Similar to One Voided

Titles of the slot machine license laws by Calvert, St. Marys and Charles Counties have wording similar to that which Judge Marbury found fatally defective in the Prince Georges law.

Their titles all lack indication that the "mechanical or electrical amusement devices" include slot machines. And they fail to indicate repeal or modification of the State antigambling laws.

However, Calvert and Charles County acts do provide in the body of the act for modification of the State gambling laws.

The Anne Arundel act under which the commissioners licensed slot machines was a general law authorizing legalization of various types of gambling. The title specifically states that the gambling laws shall not apply in certain instances.

The courts could not declare the slot machine laws in any of these counties illegal unless legality was raised in litigation.

South African Tribe Accepts White Queen

Johannesburg, South Africa, June 23 (AP).—London typist Ruth Williams tonight was a queen-to-be or not to be, as a noisy tribal meeting adjourned until Friday without deciding whether to accept a white chieftainess.

Several thousand Bamangwato tribesmen gathered at Serowe, Bechuanaland, defied their regent's orders and voted to accept the white girl as their queen. She is the wife of Chief-designate Seretse Khama, who married her in London.

"If I don't give up my wife do you want me for chief?" Seretse asked the assembled tribesmen.

Forty minor chiefs turned thumbs down. They wouldn't accept a white queen.

Then 6000 tribesmen acclaimed Seretse, shouting their approval of Ruth until the hills surrounding the meeting echoed with tribal yells.

For 10 minutes Seretse was applauded, but decision was withheld until the tribesmen gather again Friday.

Voting by a show of hands after three days of ritualistic conferences, only about a fifth of the 9000 pow-wowing natives voted against accepting Seretse and his white wife as their leaders. Seretse is 27 and his wife is 24.

Earlier in the day the aged regent, Tshekedi Khame, told the gathering: "The white woman is unsuitable to Seretse and the tribe. I will hand over the throne to him, but if he brings his white wife I will fight him to the end."

Roosevelt Jr. Talk Backs Housing Bill

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

His resonant voice using words and phrases that brought back memories of his famous father, Representative Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr., yesterday made his maiden speech in the House urging passage of the national housing bill.

The House applauded as the new 34-year-old lawmaker stepped to the microphone and opened with an apology for his presumption in speaking so soon after election.

He emphasized that he had crusaded for the housing bill in veterans and civic organizations for the past few years, and said that the people of his district had made it clear "that the uppermost question in the minds of all is the disgraceful housing shortage which blights our land."

"The slums of America," Roosevelt said, "are breeding spots of communism, and in passing this legislation, we will be striking a blow against socialism and communism and for our free enterprise system and our American democracy."

In an attack clearly patterned after those of his father, Roosevelt told the House:

"In my limited experience, I can remember that almost every piece of legislation in recent years which has sought to serve the interests of the people instead of interests of the few, has always been tagged by the same old gang as Socialistic."

In announcing he had granted five minutes to Roosevelt, Chairman Brent Spence (D., Ky.) of the House Banking Committee said:

"I'll not ask how the next speaker stands on this bill. His illustrious father was for all measures for humanity. It gives me great pleasure to extend five minutes to the gentleman from New York."

Like his father, young Roosevelt had a soft slur to his "R's" as he spoke, and like his father he read most of his speech, raising his head to look at the members for emphasis. Tall and stalwart, he leaned slightly against the speaker's stand. Unlike his father in most public appearances, the young congressman needed a haircut, and his collar was rumpled and soiled.

He referred to the visit by bipartisan members of Congress Wednesday to New York and Philadelphia and said:

Compares Slums

"I can assure you that in all my visits to refugee camps in the Middle East and Western Europe, I have never witnessed such inhuman sanitary conditions as exist in the slums within 220 miles of this Nation's Capitel."

He referred to complaints by foes of the legislation that it will cost too much.

"When you talk of cost," he told the House, "think for a moment of the cost of the legislation compared with the ever-mounting expense to the American people of maintaining our tuberculosis hospitals, our insane asylums, our reform schools and our prisons—a direct result of our un-American slums."

The children of the great Jacob Riis housing development in New York City, Roosevelt said, "will strengthen the fibre of our great democracy, more than the unhealthy, the unhappy and the inhibited graduates of our slums."

Roosevelt scoffed at claims that public housing will make "political slaves" of those who live in it, and attacking claims the bill is "socialistic," he pointed to Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), one of its original sponsors, and said that Taft "is not now and never will be a socialist."

Cheers Follow Speech

As he finished the Democratic side of the aisle rang with applause.

Roosevelt yesterday introduced a middle-income housing bill as his first to go into the House hopper. The measure would authorize direct Federal loans at low rates of interest for families with annual incomes from $2500 to $4000.

Roosevelt was followed by Representative Frederic R. Coudert (R., N. Y.), who spoke words of praise for the eloquence of his Central Park neighbor.

But, said Coudert, the Administration bill "is a delusion and a sham and not a slum clearance bill at all.

"I defy any member of this House to point to a single word in this bill which would clear a slum," Coudert added.

The energetic Coudert told his colleagues he would offer a substitute today.

The Coudert bill would provide a two-billion-dollar Federal fund for grants for slum clearance and rehousing over the next 10 years. Local communities would have to match the Federal grant in the proportion of 50 cents to a dollar. Coudert told the House the money would be apportioned to local agencies for the construction of new homes.

The New Yorker emphasized that his bill actually provided for slum clearance, and that it was within the financial limits which this country could stand.

Representative Jacob K. Javits (R., N. Y.), spoke before Roosevelt, predicting that the Administration measure would get more support on the Republican side of the aisle than has been expected.

Administration forces appeared to be picking up strength for the bill, although a final vote on its passage is not expected until the middle or end of next week.

Notables Honored at Harvard Commencement

Young GOP Bluntly Informs Leaders Party Needs Youth

Salt Lake City, June 23 (AP).—America's Young Republicans pointedly informed party leaders today the GOP elephant needs some "young ideas."

Representative John Davis Lodge (R., Conn.), the keynote speaker, told members of the Young Republican National Federation "the Republican Party needs the increased participation of Young Republicans.

"In order to translate the needs and aspirations of the American people into effective political action," he said, "the Republican Party must become impregnated with young ideas."

On Friday, the delegates will hear representatives of the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations on the subject of the Republican Party's responsibility to labor. The convention adjourns Saturday.

Lodge asserted "true mission" of the Republican Party is to maintain individual freedom.

"We should burn into our brains the incontrovertible truth that the ultimate, the essential welfare of the American people depends upon the continuation and increase of the vital opportunities inherent in our free society."

The credentials committee voted against seating an "insurgent" delegation from Maryland.

A fight on the floor of the convention Friday was threatened on the issue.

Edward Trepinski of Toledo, Ohio, committee chairman, said the committee voted, 13 to 6, in favor of seating the delegation of the young Republican League of Maryland, headed by William C. Widman of Baltimore. Widman's organization was opposed by the insurgent Maryland Federation of Young Republicans, headed by Stanley Scherr, Maryland State racing commissioner. One Maryland delegate, who declined to be identified, said the issue was "whether the senior members of the party can dictate to the young Republicans."

Byrnes Mum on Report He'll Run for Governor

Spartanburg, S. C., June 23 (AP).—James F. Byrnes, former Secretary of State, isn't saying whether he wants to be Governor of South Carolina.

Newsweek magazine this week said Byrnes is being urged to take the post to unify the State's divided Democratic Party forces. The State party was split last summer during the States' Rights presidential campaign of Governor J. Strom Thurmond. Byrnes was asked about the reports today. But the former New Dealer said only, "I have no comment to make at all."

Plan Studied For Control Of Schools

Changes in the Prince William County (Va.) form of government to bring in an administrative officer and allow the county board of supervisors to appoint the school board are being discussed by the county supervisors.

The supervisors discussed possible changes briefly at a special meeting yesterday. No action was taken, however, other than to make plans for another meeting at which an official of the Virginia League of Counties will be asked to discuss the matter with the board.

An official said the board is considering a change either to the executive (in effect in a modified form in Fairfax) or the county manager form of county government. Prince William now has no administrative officer to compare to the Arlington county manager or to the Fairfax County executive secretary.

Any such proposed change must be submitted in a referendum, it was said.

Officials said either form would give the supervisors power to appoint school board members. Talk of change was precipitated, it was said, by the refusal three weeks ago of County School Superintendent R. Worth Peters to recommend Ian H. Ross for reappointment as principal of Manassas' two schools.

At the time, Ross' supporters made much of the fact that the people or elected officials have no control over the actions of the school board, which appoints the superintendent. The board is appointed by an electoral board that is appointed by the Circuit Court judge, who is an appointed official.

Peters said he did not recommend Ross because of "professional differences," but did not specify the reasons.

Police Still Seek 6 Prison Bus Escapees

Clarksburg, W. Va., June 23 (AP). State police, sheriffs' deputies and prison camp guards continued their search today for six of the eight men who escaped from a prison bus yesterday.

Two were recaptured late last night. Bob Jesse Kirby, 21, and Charles E. Jones, 19, gave up without a struggle and were returned to the prison camp at Gypsy.

The men, assigned to work at a quarry about 14 miles from the prison camp, left the bus yesterday after they had been taken 2 miles from the quarry during a blasting operation.

Gael Sullivan Urges Aid for Israeli Children

Gael Sullivan, executive director of the Theater Owners of America, spoke at a meeting yesterday afternoon of the Amusement Division of the United Jewish Appeal funds campaign force at the Willard Hotel.

He urged the need of contributions to aid children in Israel. Final activity of the appeal campaign will be a victory rally and dinner at 7:30 p. m., next Thursday for the entire group at the Indian Spring Country Club.

Parley Fails to Reach European Trade Accord

Brussels, Belgium, June 23 (U.P.). High-ranking British, French and Belgian officials failed to reach agreement today on an intra-European trade accord, but they agreed to resume their talks in Paris Wednesday.

W. Averell Harriman, ambassador for the United States Economic Cooperation Administration, sat in on the talks in an attempt to break the deadlocked parley.

Midget Actors Resent 'Monkey' Tag, Strike

Portsmouth, England, June 23 (U.P.).—Thirty British midget actors were on strike today because City Councilor Robert Mack allegedly compared them to "six-legged monkeys."

The midgets said they would not appear in the amusement park show for which they have been booked until Mack apologizes.

Mack said it was all a terrible mistake.

"At last week's council meeting, I said I thought the midget show should be at the far end of the midway with all the other amusements," he explained. "I mentioned six-legged monkeys and so on, but was not referring to these people personally."

'One-Shot' Cure Reported For Syphilis

New York, June 23 (AP).—Collier's magazine today reported that a new penicillin "one-shot cure for syphilis" has been developed.

At hospitals where the treatment is being given, doctors told the Associated Press that although results look good it is too early to be certain.

The new treatment is penicillin in a form that remains in the body. In the usual treatment one shot is given every two hours for a week because penicillin escapes so rapidly from the body.

Collier's said cost of the penicillin in the single-shot is 48 cents.

Authorities told the Associated Press that nearly 100 cases have been given the new treatment at the Staten Island Marine Hospital and about half that number at the city's Bellevue Hospital. At Staten Island experiments began 15 months ago, at Bellevue last July.

In the Staten Island group three have come back for second treatments. Whether they relapsed or were reinfected was not learnd. None of the others has relapsed.

At Bellevue, Dr. Evan Thomas said the new treatment is given three ways. One is a single shot. Second is two shots, a week apart. The third is four shots, each a week apart.

"So far," he said, "we have not followed the cases for a sufficiently long time to make any statement regarding effectiveness. The results . . . are encouraging but penicillin is not a panacea for every case."

The form used in the single-shot treatments is procaine penicillin in oil and aluminum monostearate. The procaine, oil and aluminum keep the penicillin in the body for days.

10 Nearby Camps To Accommodate D. C. Girl Scouts

About half of the 500 Girl Scouts who had planned to vacation at Camp May Flather, Mount Solon, Va., this summer, will be able to enjoy a few weeks at other camps in nearby States.

Camp May Flather, established in 1932, was badly damaged by the Potomac flood last weekend. It will cost more than $10,000 to make repairs, officials estimate.

Ten camps in nearby States have offered to take some of the Girl Scouts who made reservations for Camp May Flather. Parents of the girls are being notified by mail of the available camps.

Tucker Pleads Innocent In Fraud Indictment

Chicago, June 23 (AP).—Preston T. Tucker, his business suit matching the gray of his personal rear-engine car, pleaded innocent today to a Federal indictment charging mail fraud, conspiracy and SEC violations.

Six of his seven codefendants in a 31-count indictment also pleaded innocent before Judge Philip L. Sullivan.

Maryland Highway Map For 1949 Published

Baltimore, June 23 (AP).—The 1949 edition of Maryland's official highway map is out today.

Except for a few changes, it is much the same as the new style map adopted for publication in 1946-47 and continued last year.

It now has the telephone numbers and locations for the various Maryland State police barracks.

It also shows the new official signal for a right turn—the driver's arm extended out the left window and raised upward. This was adopted by the 1949 General Assembly.

On the Town

By Georganne Williamson

VAUDEVILLE has come back at the Casino Royal, Bourbon and Bane, musical comedy team, dance in the exaggerated style of several decades ago.

A young, good-looking couple, they announce a "Dixie Jive" number as the same that Bourbon's mother and father did on vaudeville.

Their steps are supple, precise. Bane's costumes include the old high-buttoned shoes, a demure white eyelet tunic, with rows of pink ruffles as the skirt. The pantomime movements tell the boy-girl plot of their dances.

Another hit act is Duke Alden and his Puppet Portraits. One puppet is Mademoiselle Bonanza, a sultry South American. Another is a pink and red swan from Disney's creations who tap dances. And there's Felix, a clown, who skates, twirls and turns.

But the big puppet personality is Lucigarde, "created in respect for" Hildegarde. Lucigarde sings, makes with the subtleties and innuendos in asides, brings Band Leader Schaffer into the act, and even smokes a cigarette. She's the best variation of night club shows we've seen lately.

Lou Fennard, a juggler, utilizes balls, hats, and a cigarette and match trick. Bob Preble is the singing emcee.

WASHINGTON is taking to the Cross Road's Negro singing stars, Johnny and George.

George plays the piano, and sings in a deep bass. Johnny's range is practically everything up to high tenor. The two make a hit with almost everything they try.

They're at their best in the slow rhythmic, jive numbers. Their "Blues in the the Night" carried a terrific wallop. And "Bi Mier Bist du Chein," which they originally introduced, had the guests begging for more. George, incidentally, did a bang up solo job on "Ole Man River."

Irvin Wolf, the new owner, has improved the food and stiffened the drinks. He has started redecorating the place and air-conditioning is being installed.

THERE'S a saucy little girl at the Shoreham, who does a dance act in the new show with a juggler and a dance team of three. Pixyish in a costume of sequined gray and pink, she gets much mileage out of her slinks and curves.

RAY McKINLEY will be at Chesapeake Beach tomorrow night. He is the third in a series of Saturday night name bands. Next, on the 4th, will be Jimmy Dorsey. Chesapeake Beach people snag the big timers for one night stands while they're en route from Virginia Beach to Atlantic City.

An odd dish prepared in southern France is a salad made of Alpine thistles. Served with a pepper sauce, the hearts of this plant are considered as tasty as artichokes.

Sir Hubert Wilkins, Arctic explorer, took the first pictures of actual fighting ever shown in motion picture theaters—during the pre-World War I Balkan wars.

Transit Shift Foes to Seek Hearing Delay

By S. Oliver Goodman

The Securities and Exchange Commission will be asked to postpone consideration of a shift in Capital Transit Co. stock control for at least 30 days, it was learned yesterday.

Meanwhile, new and powerful local opposition has risen to North American Co.'s plan to sell 109,458 shares of transit stock to a Florida group headed by Louis E. Wolfson.

Latest foes are James F. O'Donnell and his son, both substantial stockholders of Capital Transit Co. The younger O'Donnell, a local attorney, said yesterday he and his father, a retired financier, will be represented by counsel at the SEC hearing Tuesday.

They will seek a delay in the hearing, he added, in order to give both North American Co. and Capital Transit stockholders an opportunity to explore all angles of the proposed transaction. The senior O'Donnell is also a large shareholder in North American.

C. L. McCrea, first to enter the arena as a foe of the Wolfson deal, said last night he was in full sympathy with the O'Donnell plan to seek a postponement of SEC consideration. McCrea declared that more than 350 stockholders so far have answered his personal letter and offered to support his efforts to block the North American deal and substitute a plan whereby the transit firm would buy and retire the North American Co. block. Legal aid also has been offered, he asserted.

An unconfirmed report in financial quarters stated that the executive committee of Capital Transit Co. met Wednesday and heard a proposal that a special meeting of stockholders be called to sound out opinion on the proposal to buy and retire the North American block of stock. The suggestion was rejected by the committee, said to be controlled by North American representatives.

At the reorganization meeting held later at the Statler here, the board reelected Joseph F. Costello as president and David S. Hendrick as chairman. Hendrick reported a satisfactory three months for the period ended May 31, with shipments exceeding one million dollars but earnings slightly less due to rising expenses.

Drama Festival

A long and patient effort to bring legitimate theatrical productions back to Washington is scheduled to bear fruit in Meridian Hill Park next Sunday evening. Under the auspices of a group styling itself Productions, Inc. and employing a site made available by the National Capital Parks Division of the Interior Department, Elizabeth Bergner will open a summer season of professional productions with a new adaptation of Giraudoux's Amphitryon 38. The producers have every reason to bill their plans for this and subsequent plays as a "Washington Theater Festival." To drama lovers of the Capital, denied theatrical fare ever since the National Theater closed its doors because of an unwillingness to permit Negroes in its audience, this will seem a happy feast indeed. The sponsors, Miss Bergner and her supporting cast deserve the thanks of Washingtonians. We anticipate that they will achieve the success we wish them.

Royal Immigrant

The marriage of Princess Cecilie Viktoria Anastasia Zita Thyra Adelheid of the House of Hohenzollern, granddaughter of Kaiser Wilhelm II, to Mr. Clyde Harris, an interior decorator of Amarillo, Tex., is as good a sign as any that the institution of royalty has outlived its historical tenure. It is, of course, no disparagement of either bride or bridegroom to say that such a marriage would have been impossible if the Hohenzollerns had remained the ruling dynasty of Germany.

The principle of monarchy has a good deal to commend it; many wise and eminent men have considered it the most satisfactory method of government, at any rate when limited by constitutional restraints. Some have approved it on the grounds of economy, observing that the expense of courts and ceremonials is negligible by comparison to the waste and corruption so frequently found in republics and almost invariably in dictatorships. There is also the point that personal symbols like kings and emperors have often greater power over the imaginations and emotions of men than abstract symbols such as constitutions or flags or fatherlands. But the great strength of the monarchical principle has been the idea of legitimacy, whereby the harem intrigues and palace revolutions of the Orient, the civil wars and military usurpations of the Roman imperium, and the noise, wind, tumult and extravagance of modern elections were avoided.

The whole life and education of royal personages was dominated by this idea of legitimacy. The interest of the dynasty had to take precedence over personal inclinations. Among the many sacrifices that had to be made to it was the right to love and to marry according to inclination. The marriages of royal princes and princesses were invariably arranged in the interest of state in much the same way that in certain peasant societies they are arranged in the interest of property. Perhaps it could be shown that such marriages have, by and large, been productive of as much happiness as marriages for reasons deemed valid in Hollywood. At any rate it was only in fairy tales that kings could marry beggar maids or princesses marry swineherds. Even the most powerful of absolute monarchs was never powerful enough to marry whom he pleased.

The downfall of so many dynasties in the wars and political convulsions of the present century has plunged the European royalty into a situation with which they are ill prepared to cope. By education they are qualified for very little except to reign, or, lacking the opportunity for that, to lead a gracious but purely ornamental existence. As long as any hope for the restoration of their dynasties remained, they were unable to change the traditional pattern of their lives. Society itself declined to accept them as purely private individuals; they found themselves cut off from all ordinary methods of livelihood not only by the nature of their training but also by the refusal of the world to take their efforts seriously. Thus they found themselves condemned to lives of amiable idleness which many could no longer afford. Some of them solved the difficulty by marriages into wealthy families.

The case of the Princess Cecilie, however, suggests that the recent generations of royalty may be growing dissatisfied with this ambiguous existence and determined to assert the rights and to enjoy the privileges that belong to ordinary men and women. By virtue of her marriage she has acquired American citizenship, which of course involves a renunciation of royal claims. She will enter into a wholly new sort of life at Amarillo; and while it is perhaps unlikely that her neighbors there will ever wholly forget or allow her to forget her former status, she will no doubt be able to find a full and satisfying life in the role of a Texas housewife, and her children at any rate will have a claim upon the future as well as upon the past.

Foreign Policy

There are no illusions in the minds of the American team who are now back in Washington. They seem to be keeping their fingers crossed even in respect of the Muscovite change of front on Austria. Perhaps there will be a treaty, perhaps not. It was not justice for Austria that counted in Moscow in dropping Tito's claim to Austria's Carinthia. The concession was made because Moscow wanted it as a weapon against Tito. A lesser war is on the hands of the Politburo in dealing with "national deviation," and it is this diversion that has created a lessening in the tension with the West.

To be lulled by the seeming relaxation would be to throw away the time with which the West has been endowed by the fortuitous outbreak of intra-Communist feuding. This is probably what Secretary Acheson reported to the Senators. He is seeking the quick ratification of the Atlantic Pact and the military arms program. This latter would be the kind of shield of western Europe which would put upon the Soviet Union the necessity of mobilizing its army instead of dispatching its police in case of a decision to embark on overt action. As such it would develop the sense of confidence which was shown in the comradeship and like-mindedness with which the three powers dealt with Soviet diplomacy at the Palais Rose.

But this is not the only way to use the time which the West has been vouchsafed. A gigantic chess game is going on across a global canvas, this side as well as beyond the iron curtain, in Asia as well as in Europe; and only at our peril will we refuse to play the game everywhere, and wait anywhere till the dust settles.

Take, for instance, Tito. The wise thing is to press the advantage that is accruing to the West from this situation. Evidently the Moscow fear is that Albania will join Tito in deviation. A sign of trouble was the execution of Rotchi Dzodze, the Albanian Communist leader who has just been executed, and the occasion underlines the need for an American diplomatic mission to be returned to Tirana. In Berlin only a breathing spell has been afforded. The fact that the Russians have lifted the overland blockade has not made this isolated Western outpost in Berlin any less of an exposed position. The only difference between now and preblockade is that a responsibility toward 2.5 million Berliners has been incurred. It is a situation requiring not only constant vigilance but also fresh and pressing thought on how to make it manageable. The handwriting was on the wall there as long ago as December, 1947, when the Council of Foreign Ministers broke up; yet the West waited in a state of near-paralysis till the Russians sprang their trap six months later. In Asia a similar portent is already visible at such exposed positions as Formosa, and a Western unity and a military posture based on nonintervention, anti-colonialism, and antiaggression are urgently demanded. These are some of the danger spots to Soviet Russia or the Western world that need attention before the next conference is convened.

Over all the policy of pressing forward with the unity of the free world is the surest approach to strength and security. The Atlantic Pact is not enough, nor is MAP. This is the critical year of the Marshall Plan which must be devoted to laying the foundation for a continental integration. The economies of Europe are growing away from continentalization, not toward it. The stage has been set for currency union by the impetus to national production, yet any American whose voice is raised in behalf of such a unity is regarded in some European quarters as uncouth. He is supposed to be oblivious to what is fast becoming a permanent alibi, viz, the dollar shortage. Dollars, however, can be earned as well as lent and granted, and the people of Europe need to be reminded of this, as well as of the fact that internationalization and not nationalization is the true solvent of Europe's ills. And by internationalization we mean a Europe, including Germany, for the historical question of the times is whether there is to be a European Europe or a German Europe.

In This Corner . . .

Although in some respects it got a better press than the 15-round go between Ezzard Charles and Jersey Joe Walcott at Comiskey Park, Chicago, the impromptu bout for the congressional heavyweight championship staged the same day at the Capitol Hill Stadium was badly handled from almost every point of view. Promotion and publicity were negligible: there was no advance build-up, not even a weighing-in ceremony, the stands were all but empty, and the affair, so far from having the blessing of the New York Athletic Commission, wasn't even recognized as carrying claim to the world's heavyweight title by the National Boxing Association, which, judging from the match made under its auspices at Chicago, will recognize almost anything at all.

Besides, the thing was unorthodox in a lot of other ways. Young Sabath of Illinois who by all accounts scored a clean victory on points didn't so much as get a chance, when it was over, to say "Hello, Mom" over a microphone. The boy looked good; he has a rangy style and that right hand of his, if it ever connects, is pretty murderous. But, then, almost anyone would look good against Goober Gene Cox, the Georgia fireball, who, at 69, just hasn't got the speed or stamina any more to slug it out with the kids coming up in the game today. We aren't saying, of course, that Cox deliberately took a dive. He just never should have been in there against a killer like Sabath in the first place.

The Hill matchmakers have got a lot to learn if they're going to stay in this business. The public isn't going to stand for a succession of setups. It isn't going to stand for having these things run off in the dark, so to speak. This is the era of television and the movie camera. When the Sabath boy defends his very dubious title, we hope it will be against a real challenger and under circumstances that will give the American people as a whole—not just the friends and relatives of the contestants—a chance to see a little blood and action. Otherwise, the sporting club up at the far end of Pennsylvania ave. might just as well go back to making speeches.

Science Oaths

The concern over the possible use of Federal funds to educate Communists is now reflected in the House bill for a National Science Foundation. To this bill, the companion piece of a measure that already has passed the Senate, Representative Priest has added an amendment requiring that all persons benefiting by grants subscribe to an oath that they are not members of organizations advocating the overthrow of the Government.

It is far better to have a science foundation with this qualification than to have none at all. The country has dallied too long over replenishing its reservoir of pure science. The two bills in question, though administratively they leave a good deal to be desired, are essential instruments of national defense as a strong original science contributes to defense—and it is to be hoped that the House Rules Committee will dislodge the Priest bill promptly. The recent difficulties of the Atomic Energy Commission with respect to its fellowship program emphasize the necessity for concentrating such grants in a science foundation.

Given the furor that has been raised, the oath probably will have to be accepted as a political expedient in the hope that it will stall off more restrictive measures. The oath itself is innocuous enough, and there can be few Americans who would not subscribe to it willingly. But its significance as a weapon against communism may be questioned. To be sure, it would be useful for perjury prosecutions if evasions later were discovered. A secret Communist, however, would have no hesitation in signing it if he were intent on infiltrating science—and the affiliations of the secret party members seldom come to light.

The real objection to the loyalty oath as a condition of scientific grants is that it induces a political qualification into science. No security consideration is involved, for the great bulk of work under such grants is nonsecret, and persons with access to secret material are screened. But the deleterious effect on scientists could be considerable, for scientists as a group are jealous of their right to nonconformity and some may see in this an effort to circumscribe freedom of inquiry. Moreover, the oath sets a precedent for further Federal control of education, and, indeed, the investigation of everyone receiving Federal funds. Such an unconscionable invasion is by no means beyond possibility once the political qualification for scientific grants is admitted. If the oath is adopted, defenders of a free science must be at pains to make sure that the move goes no further.

Return Of The Natives

Representative Preston of Georgia, chairman and spokesman of the congressional committee which was flown at Government expense to Caux-sur-Montreaux in Switzerland to attend the international congress on moral rearmament, has returned with an ingenious apology for this extraordinary junket. It was, he explained, a smart strategic move in the cold war against communism, because the moral rearmament movement—> has launched a vigorous campaign to answer communism in Europe. Communism in its naked, anti-God, materialistic form is the perfect opposite to Christian religion and is a malignant cancer in the realm of human relations.

The delegates to the congress, Mr. Preston continued, seemed to be heartily encouraged by the presence of the congressional observers.

All this is probably quite true, but altogether irrelevant to the point upon which criticisms of the junket have been raised. The Buchmanite is certainly not the only body of Christians which is seeking to offer a vigorous opposition to atheistic communism. The question, therefore, is why they should have been singled out for what amounts to an official indorsement. Mr. Preston has not answered the question.

NO LAMP OR STAR

We climbed the cliffs above the sea.
The village lay below.
The waves beat out their threnody,
And day began to go,

And suddenly the black night dropped.
So deep the shadows ran
We could not tell where starlight stopped
And village lights began.

I walk a darkened path tonight
Because we are apart.
No lamp or star can ever light
The shadows in my heart.

Oppenheimer Case

I have just read Joseph Alsop's June 20 column on Dr. Frank Oppenheimer. I also recall your June 17 editorial on the same subject.

It amazes me to note that both articles seek to create the impression that Dr. Oppenheimer's present difficulties (including his teaching job) are due to the Un-American Activities Committee.

The plain, unvarnished fact is that all of his difficulties stem from his own actions; having joined the Communist Party; having denied it when questioned and his present membership in the Wallace Party.

Alsop speaks of the Bill of Rights. Oppenheimer is not in jail; he exercised his rights; he is still free to do so.

However, public opinion will not approve of Communist Party members, or former members, in places of responsibility. As a well-educated man, Dr. Oppenheimer could not help but be aware of the implications of Communist Party membership, of its aim to overthrow our American system. His shift to the Wallace Party to most Americans means only a change of labels. Right or wrong, public opinion has taken Dr. Oppenheimer's measure and it is futile to berate the Un-American Activities Committee for bringing the facts to public attention.

It is better that the man pay for the folly of his youth, than for the Nation to pay a greater cost.

Tariff Inconsistency

In the Congressional Record for June 16 Senator Arthur Vandenberg is quoted as follows:

"I wish to call the Senator's attention to one phase of the letter from the Acting Secretary of State, because I think it underscores the great weakness of the operation of the existing system. The Senator from Oregon will recall that he was assured that, in this instance, the cherry growers were given full opportunity to present their case and to have it assessed by all the various departments of the Government which might be interested or which might have competent information on the subject; and in the letter, large numbers of Government departments are identified in that connection. However . . . the United States Tariff Commission is not so identified at all. Yet that is the institution which initially was set up for the purpose of just such a review.

"If we get a little closer, not by way of control over net results, but by way of competent consultation, to the Tariff Commission in these matters, I think we would be a little safer."

In the Congressional Record for June 14, 1948, appears Senator Vandenberg's speech supporting H. R. 6556 (Public Law 792) which specifically prohibits the Tariff Commission from participating in any decision or negotiation of a reciprocal trade agreement. He later voted for the bill.

Executive Order No. 9832 was issued on February 25, 1947, as one result of the so-called Vandenberg-Millikin-Clayton compromise. That order specifically designates the Tariff Commission as the sole agency to hold hearings and make recommendations regarding invocation of the escape clause in trade agreements which permits the United States to modify or withdraw a concession which results in even the threat of injury to a domestic industry. Executive Order No. 10004 of October 5, 1948, not only repeats this designation but requires the Tariff Commission to submit the digests of information regarding every item on which a tariff concession might be considered, and also the "peril-point" report called for in H. R. 6556.

In view of these facts Senator Vandenberg's recent statement seems highly inconsistent.

Gaza Strip

I have read in the press about Israel's proposal to take the Gaza strip with its actual 230,000 inhabitants (most of them displaced Arabs). Israeli spokesmen have emphasized this gesture as a generous offer to the Arabs.

The implications of this proposition is not clear to the public.

The Gaza strip is a small part of the southern district of Palestine which was left Arab by the partition plan. Israelis have occupied all the other parts of the southern Arab Palestine, and have forced the inhabitants out of their homes and properties. Most of these displaced Arabs are living now in the Gaza strip.

Israel's offer seems to concede something to Arab demands when it only implies new sacrifices from the Arab—that is to say, Israel wants to occupy the last remaining Arab part in Southern Palestine free from Israel's control.

To solve the fate of the one million Arabs displaced because of the creation of a Jewish State, Israel should not ask for more Arab lands, but restitute the Arab lands it has occupied contrary to the dispositions of the partition plan.

Pound Dogs

I was somewhat amazed to read the June 14 letter by Judge Bennett Champ Clark in reference to the ownership of dogs in the pound. His claim that the bill now being considered in committee by the Senate, which would permit the poundmaster to supply dogs to recognized laboratories, violates the personal property rights of the owner is without any foundation in fact or law.

The proposed bill does not change in any way the present law on the matter. Title 47, Section 2003 of the District Code as amended July 5, 1945, clearly states that any dog impounded because it does not carry a tax tag and is not redeemed by the owner within 48 hours upon payment of $2 shall be sold or destroyed. Apparently the judge wrote without taking the trouble to determine just what the law is in the District, a somewhat unjudicial attitude of mind.

Mall Parking

If it is so necessary that the few parking places on the streets are to be taken away from the taxpayers of the city to accommodate the tourists that come by the thousands into the District, why not turn over to the tourists the underground parking spaces in the Interior Building and other Government buildings? The visitors from the States actually pay taxes to keep those buildings up and have more right to those parking spaces than the few that are on the streets, especially the Mall section.

Legalizing Basing Points

The bill relating to basing-point systems of pricing (S. 1008) raises questions of public importance calling for wider consideration and understanding than they have thus far received.

Under multpile basing-point systems, such as those in the steel, cement and many other industries, the country becomes a mosaic of market areas each governed, as to prices, by a basing point. Every seller located either at the basing point, or as is often the case 1000 or more miles distant, who wants to get the business, quotes every prospective buyer the base price at the basing point plus the all-rail freight from the basing point to customer's location.

The fact of chief public importance, as to these basing point and allied delivered pricing systems, is that their purpose is to bring about complete identity of delivered prices, at every customer's location in the country. And such has been their actual effect.

These systems are the most exact antithesis of price competition. Insofar as they are used there follows the destruction of the American system of prices arrived at through the interplay of competitive forces.

The main tenet of the economic creed of this country has long been that price competition must be preserved. For if it is relinquished, the public conviction is that the self-interest of industry will run prices so high that people, for their self-protection, will be constrained to demand Government supervision of prices.

Now the aims and results of the basing-point systems and of the bill, as regards price competition, were hardly glanced at in the examination of industry men during the congressional committee hearings; there was a definite slant in favor of basing-point systems throughout the sessions.

The bill, which has passed the Senate and seems practically sure of enactment, is intended to and would make it harder for the antitrust enforcement agencies to bring back competition to several basic and many other industries which have used these pricing systems to destroy price competition among their members.

The intent is to forestall the application of the salutary legal principle that men who make delivered prices knowing that the other members of their industry will match their prices cent for cent have acted under a mutual understanding so to do, contrary to the antitrust policy and law.

A further effect of these systems, if hereafter they may be conducted with the aid and comfort of the pending measure, would be to make it much harder for Federal agencies to maintain the impartiality of their efforts in prosecuting overt conspiracies in restraint of price competition. For it would constantly be evident that the same monopolistic results precisely are being secured in other industries through basing-point systems.

One of the lines employed by Moscow propaganda and with a substantial degree of success, able correspondents tell us, is that American advocacy of free enterprise and the competitive system is false and that this country is governed by and for "monopolists." Another Soviet charge often flung at America is "fascism."

Precisely to the extent that these systems continue to eliminate price competition, and especially to the extent that the Congress comes to their aid against the Federal agencies charged with enforcing antitrust laws, we shall have abandoned our price-competitive economy and shall merit the epithet, "monopolists."

Era On Trial

NEW YORK.—At one point in the respectful quiet of the courtroom in which Alger Hiss is on trial, Judge Samuel H. Kaufman leaned forward to reprove the Government prosecutor. The defendant, Hiss, said Judge Kaufman, is the only one on trial here.

In the technical, legal sense that may be true. But there are many who regard Hiss as a symbol of the Roosevelt era. If he should be convicted, they will consider it as a verdict of guilty against the dead President and the men who made the New Deal.

That, of course, is where politics comes in. So deep are the prejudices of many with this attitude that they are not likely to accept at its full value an acquittal.

The Hiss defense has ranged back over those crowded years when Washington was an exciting place full of the ferment of new ideas and new hopes. The ghosts of those years seem to hover over Judge Kaufman's neat, efficient, air-conditioned courtroom. There are echoes from a past that today seems incredibly far off.

That was true, above all, when Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter was on the witness stand. Here was the man accused so often of being the head and front, the inspirer, the Machiavelli of the Roosevelt regime. This charge still is repeated in various forms where venom continues to be distilled from the past.

Even in the brief period he was under examination the pattern came clear. With his brisk, precise articulation, so familiar to the drawing rooms of Cambridge and Washington, Frankfurter answered the questions of the defense and the prosecution. The great names rolled out, and even in this legalistic exchange the shape and texture of a bygone age were made visible.

THE PRESIDING ghost was that of the late Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes. For most of his years at Harvard Law School Frankfurter had recommended to Holmes each year a brilliant young law graduate to be Holmes' law clerk.

So he had sent Alger Hiss to Holmes. Hiss, sitting just inside the rail separating actors from audience in the courtroom, looks today young enough to be that law clerk 18 years ago. It was the beginning of his career.

Frankfurter sent so many young men to Washington. That is one of the crimes invariably raised against him. But, as his testimony developed, he also sent bright young men to the great law firms in New York, Chicago and Los Angeles.

He was unequivocal in saying that he had never heard anyone question Hiss' loyalty or veracity. Hiss' reputation was excellent. The same testimony came from another Supreme Court Justice, Stanley Reed. This in itself was an extraordinary thing—to have two judges of the highest court of the land giving testimony in a trial judge's courtroom.

IT IS a measure of the change in climate that has occurred in a few short years. From 1934, when he went into the New Deal, through Yalta and the early phase of the United Nations, the defendant was the confidante and trusted adviser of the top men in Government.

They worked with him from day to day. He and his wife were on friendly terms with them and with their families. They admired him as one of the eager, willing, idealistic young men attracted to Government by the crisis of the depression.

This is just where prejudice seems to me most harsh and unjust. Those who take Hiss as a symbol and who have already prejudged him in their minds prefer to forget that era of the 30s when in the wake of collapse and bankruptcy the very foundation of our system seemed to have given way.

A psychiatrist would find this desire to forget, coupled with a desire to find a culprit, extremely interesting. Many of these same people were in despair in 1932 and '33, uncertain whether they would ever regain their wealth and prestige. You can make a good case for saying that they were saved by the New Deal and that you never quite forgive your rescuer.

This is not said to condone those who, like Henry Julian Wadleigh and Whittaker Chambers, have confessed to willful treason in that era. That is the tragic enigma. How, even under the stresses and strains, the uncertainty and insecurity of that time, could young men sharing the advantages of the society in which they lived deliberately plot against it?

Alabama Terrorism

It is disturbing to read of the mounting terrorism by the hooded men of Alabama. I have made many trips through the South in the past 20 years, during which time, through my fraternal and other affiliations, I have found the every-day man and woman of the South to be persons of fine character and particularly very hospitable.

Yet what is now happening in Alabama and other Southern States is a matter of simple arithmetic. Lynchings, floggings, tar and feathering and other unlawful acts, plus official laxity, indifference and even connivance, equal terrorism.

It is to be hoped that the action of the Alabama State Senate in outlawing the hooded organizations is not too late.

Revised Curriculum In Secondary Schools

THE LIMELIGHT cast upon our educational system by the current hearings of the House Committee on Education and such recently published books as Dr. Bernard Iddings Bell's Crisis in Education and Dr. James Bryant Conant's Education in a Divided World illuminates a calamitous situation.

The birthright of every American, the opportunity of education, offers little hope of survival if we are to ignore the increasing failures of education. Today's crisis is one of extreme urgency. It demands a searching scrutiny into the economic difficulties pushing our educational institutions uncomfortably close to bankruptcy.

The immediacy is how to stay solvent when endowments and tuition fees no longer meet the increased costs of operation. This situation can only grow worse, not better. Enrollments will continue to mount. Competent instructors will continue to be tempted into more financially rewarding fields. Administrative directors will be more harried than ever with budgets that fail to meet existing costs of living.

RATIONAL analysis of the problems besetting the public schools and universities is vitally important. It helps to know where we are going if we know where we are, and how we stand. The more we can publicly expose and consider education per se, the more secure we are making our future.

So far in this searchlight on education, the role of secondary schools and private preparatory institutions has been overshadowed. This is nothing new. Secondary schools have long been side-tracked in favor of colleges and universities. That they are the feeders to higher education and that their success is the key to success or failure later on is seemingly forgotten.

Secondary schools, particularly, bear a practical perspective. Educators Nation-wide agree that the high school curriculum needs revision and a more thorough-going application of its basic subjects. The instructional formula needs the emphasis of repetition. Students need to be grouped in classes of like mental levels.

Time of both students and instructors is wasted on non-essentials. Interruptive holidays take costly toll. The student, therefore, comes into college unprepared to meet or keep pace with its requirements and without the disciplined talent of how to think, concentrate and apply. The years that should have taught him how to best exercise his mind and fit him for higher education, and the thorough development of the mind, which is the sole purpose of education, have been wantonly thrown away.

THE AMERICAN public is slow to accept abrupt changes in its traditional customs. But certainly the necessity of streamlining this scholastic span is evident. It is an expediency to better educational progression as well as better school management.

By careful programming, the seventh and eighth grades can be combined into one year and the ninth to twelfth grades into two years, without sacrificing content or coverage. At this rate and with closer attention to the basic subjects, a student would be able to complete his college education at 18 or 19 and begin that much earlier his professional career.

Getting students into college two years sooner serves a double purpose. The young man can acquire three years of college training before the possibility of being called into military service, an academic backlog that will ease his return to studies. On the side of the college, it is spared the crippling effects that any national emergency brings with it. With the stabilized security of instructors, students will receive a better dollar value in education. And the future of our academic standards will be made safe against economic fluctuations.

MUCH OF the waste in college education is directly due to poor management and presentation in preparatory schools. Education is becoming more and more involved with mass assembly-line teaching. Academic failures naturally are high when classes sometime reach an attendance of a thousand students. The all-around waste of time and money is appalling.

When colleges can come to have confidence in the preparation of their incoming students, and when preparatory schools fulfill this promise, then we will have made the first step toward a sounder educational system.

The weak line of secondary schools can only be strengthened by saving time and reinforcing the fundamentals. This is the answer to economic salvation of our schools.

U. S. Economy Looks Serious, ADA Is Told

The present economic situation of the United States "is far too serious to ignore," the Washington Chapter, Americans for Democratic Action, was told last night.

After describing a decline in purchasing power and an increase in unemployment, Dr. Dewey Anderson, executive director of the Public Affairs Institute here, and Stanley Ruttenberg, director of education and research for the Congress of Industrial Organizations, said the United States should "do something big, now," to halt a slide toward depression.

John E. Horne, executive assistant to Senator John J. Sparkman (D., Ala.), also spoke at the program in the Hotel Willard. About 100 persons were present.

Among the suggestions offered by Anderson and Ruttenberg were a veterans' program that "would get some money into veterans' hands"; extension of veterans' "52-20" unemployment compensation; revival of the Civilian Conservation Corps to absorb young people leaving school and facing unemployment; a program of scholarships to technical schools and institutions of higher learning.

Also a revised tax structure that would benefit lower and mediumincome brackets; an extended and increased public assistance program; raising of the minimum wage law; quick enactment of housing legislation, and a public works program.

Horne, describing "some feeling on the Hill," said "there is some fear that the Government is going to increase taxes, and also that the Government may go into deficit spending.

"Certainly," he said, "we are going to have to reduce expenditures, increase taxes, or go into deficit spending."

Thorp Urges Cooperation in World Trade

Wellesley, Mass., June 23 (AP).—The postwar world trade honeymoon is over, Assistant Secretary of State Willard L. Thorp said today.

Competition for markets is becoming more intense, he said, and the future will test the willingness of all countries to cooperate with each other in the economic field.

Thorp, who has charge of economic relations in the State Department, spoke before the Sixth International Congregational Council meeting at Wellesley College.

"The fact is that rivalries and conflicts are now beginning to emerge," he said. "Nationalistic tendencies are taking on new force, and bilateral channeling of trade threatens to be not so much a method of getting trade started, as of preempting particular markets."

The State Department currently is engaged in a bitter argument with the British over a five-year trade agreement between the United Kingdom and Argentina. The United States has vigorously protested this pact, contending it violates Britain's promises in the international trade field and that it will freeze out American competition in Argentina.

Thorp said that until recently all countries were confronted with shortages in many key products.

But, he said, the general improvement in Europe's economic condition has presented nations with "alternative courses of action." This situation, he explained, means the United States is "heading into a period of increasing difficulty in our international economic relations."

Thorp said American efforts to put Japan and Germany on their economic feet are being resisted by some countries that wanted to "prevent the return of those two countries to the foreign trade field."

Matter Of Fact

By Joseph Alsop

The Foot Draggers

A CRUCIAL debate is now going on within the State Department. The issue can be crudely stated as follows: Will the Far Eastern Division, having made its mess in China, at last adapt its views and actions to the foreign policy this country has been following in the rest of the world for the last four years? The outcome, it may be added, is still in doubt.

A symptom, a passing sputter, from this debate was the guarded statement issued by the department on Tuesday expressing cool but not unfriendly interest in the new government being established in Indo-China by the Emperor Bao Dai. This sort of thing must seem immensely remote and trivial to the average American. But the unfortunate truth is that this sort of thing may later turn out to have all the importance of war or peace.

In brief, as reports from the scene have indicated in this space, the Communist power in Asia has reached the uttermost limits of safety. If the Soviet Union can extend its sphere beyond China, into Indo-China, a chain reaction will become highly probable. All of southeast Asia will be threatened. If southeast Asia goes, Japan and India will be immediately menaced. And if this situation arises, the odds on war will be far better than even. It is tiresome to rehearse this series of grim probabilities, yet they must be daily borne in mind.

INDO-CHINA is the key, for two reasons. First, it is the state in southeast Asia most accessible to China. And second, French folly has caused the Communist-nationalist movement of Ho Chi-Minh to gain great strength among the Indo-Chinese. The new regime of Bao Dai is the last chance to win over the Indo-Chinese people to an independent, non-Communist government. On all sides it is acknowledged that if Bao Dai fails, Ho Chi-Minh will succeed.

Such are the bleak basic facts. The debate in the State Department concerns the extent of American support to be given to the new Bao Dai regime. As has also been reported from the scene in this space, Bao Dai is almost certain to fail if he is not actively supported by this country (since exclusive French support actually discredits him in the eyes of his people). The Far Eastern Division of the State Department is extremely reluctant, however, to support Bao Dai.

The reason for this reluctance is certainly not fear of offending the French. The French government has actually hinted that American aid for Bao Dai, whom they have fully recognized, will now be exceedingly welcome. Furthermore, the European Division of the State Department, whose staff is a trifle more aware of the Soviet problem than the Far Eastern Division, has urged that the Bao Dai experiment be promoted and assisted in any way possible.

Yet the statement that was just issued, which could hardly be more cautious or gingerly, represents an elaborate watering down of a public avowal of sympathy for Bao Dai that was originally proposed. Equally, those who see the appalling danger now confronting us in southeast Asia have been urging the expenditure of ECA funds in Indo-China. But the Far Eastern Division has succeeded in watering this project down also, to a decision to "consider" the matter.

THE ARGUMENTS that are being made for this foot-dragging approach many be superficially convincing. It is true that Bao Dai is a risky investment. But the fact remains that although supporting Bao Dai is by no means an ideal solution to the southeast Asia problem, it is the only solution available. The other approach is simply to drift with the tide, as we did in China, until we land on the rocks. And the rocks are now 10 times bigger and 10 times more sure to destroy us.

Such is the rather unpleasing choice confronting Walton Butterworth, the new Assistant Secretary of State for Far Eastern Affairs, who is not a Far Eastern Division man. His situation is further complicated by another grave fact. Although the members of the State Department Far Eastern Division have recovered from their sentimental delusion that Far Eastern Communists are mere reforming agrarians they still have their record in China hanging round their necks like an albatross. Their main aim now seems to be to prove that the albatross is not an albatross, after all, but a peacock or possibly a bird of paradise.

When officials have made one disastrous failure, their judgment should be suspect the second time round. This rule should now be followed. It must also be recognized that choosing the least bad alternative is preferable to drifting into the worst. Otherwise we shall have no policy at all in the deeply dangerous Asiatic situation.

Montgomery Urged to Hire Psychiatrist

Hiring of a full-time Montgomery County school psychiatrist and five child psychologists to help fight juvenile delinquency was recommended yesterday by a Veterans of Foreign Wars Post in Bethesda.

The recommendation grew out of a study of juvenile misbehavior in the Bethesda-Chevy Chase area launched last February by VFW Post 2958.

Trial Magistrate James R. Miller of Bethesda Police Court, a member of the study committee, said the study was spurred by the roundup of 40 youths, many from wealthy families, who had been stealing construction equipment.

Budget Being Studied

The committee's recommendations were delivered yesterday to the Council Council, now considering budget appropriations for the year beginning July 1.

A request for $8000 to hire a full-time psychologist and a part-time psychiatrist has been made by the Board of Education. County Manager I. G. McNayr has recommended cutting School Board requests for health services, which include the two items by $7500.

"Teachers Gravely Perturbed"

The recommendations were based on consultation and a round-table discussion with teachers and parents and professional and business people of the community. "Teachers," the committee said, "are gravely perturbed regarding their present inability to meet this problem."

Also requested was expansion of the county Mental Hygiene Clinic into "an adequate treatment agency" to make the school program effective.

There is no shortage of recreational facilities in Montgomery County, the committee said.

Truman Eyes Slump in Jobs

pending in the Senate requiring President Truman to cut spending by 5 to 10 per cent by executive action next year was indorsed by the board.

The lawmakers who accompanied Senator Murray to the White House were Senators Elbert D. Thomas (D., Utah) and Hubert Humphrey (D., Minn.) and Representatives Wright Patman (D., Tex.), Helen Gahagan Douglas (D., Calif.) and Andrew J. Biemiller (D., Wisc.).

They found Mr. Truman "already well informed and way ahead of us as to the need for a program," they said. The President promised to study the bill they propose, which provides for a National Economic Cooperation Board to recommend policies to promote employment, production and purchasing power. It also provides for long-range public planning and promotion of private investment by permitting more favorable treatment, under tax laws, of certain new construction.

56 in Senate Sign Pact for Spending Cut

Senators clamoring for economy claimed yesterday that well over half the Senate membership has signed up in favor of directing President Truman to cut billions of dollars off next year's spending.

Fifty-six of the 96 members have signed such a petition, Senator McClellan (D., Ark.) said; 21 Democrats and 35 Republicans.

"I expect to have at least 60 names when it is presented to the leadership," McClellan told a reporter. "I hope the leadership will be responsive to the will of the great majority and immediately bring it out and reach a final vote."

Scott Lucas of Illinois, Senate Democratic leader, has expressed strong opposition to any system which would shove the task of pruning appropriations on to the President rather than Congress.

McClellan, the chairman of that committee, and Senator Reed (R., Kans.), another economy advocate, began circulating the petition to prove the backing behind their plan.

It calls for the President to make cuts of not less than 5 or more than 10 per cent in all appropriations for the new fiscal year which starts July 1. With a budget in the neighborhood of 40 billion dollars, this would mean a reduction of two to four billion dollars.

Meanwhile, a Yankee Republican came out with a plan to balance the budget by a three-billion-dollar cut in military spending.

Senator Flanders (R., Vt.) said the United States is being asked to direct 35 per cent of its Federal appropriations to the military. He contrasted this with the military outlays of other great powers, which he said were as follows:

Britain, less than 23 per cent.
France, 18 per cent.
Russia, "about 19 per cent."

"Outlays for military purposes, however necessary, are uneconomic and unproductive," Flanders said.

The businessman-Senator appeared as a witness before the Senate Appropriations Committee, which is considering a House-approved bill providing nearly 16 billion dollars in cash and contract authority for military expenses in the next fiscal year.

Deposits Climb In Mutual Banks

New York, June 23 (AP).—Despite the decline in national income, deposits in the 530 mutual savings banks are increasing more rapidly this year than last, the National Association of Mutual Savings Banks reported today.

Deposits climbed 403 million dollars in the five months ended May 31, as compared with 328 million dollars in the like 1948 period.

The mutual savings banks' assets reached the record total of 21 billion dollars by the beginning of this month. This is an increase of one billion dollars during the past 14 months.

The presidential commendation was contained in a letter to the sixtieth annual convention of the Central Conference of American Rabbis which opens tonight.

House Group Again Kills Slum Clearance

The Federal Diary

by Jerry Kluttz

House Committee Recommends WAA Elimination Now

The House Appropriations Committee yesterday recommended the immediate liquidation of War Assets Administration. It refused the President's request to give WAA $26,500,000 to continue it for another year, in the third deficiency bill.

Instead, the committee proposed that Treasury be given $3,500,000 of which $2,500,000 be earmarked to pay terminal leave to WAA's 2500 employes, that RFC be given four million dollars to care for real property to be transferred to it by WAA, and that remaining aircraft be shifted to the Air Force. The transfers would take place on July 1. WAA has about 600 employes here.

NLRB: A budget of $8,550,000 was recommended for the National Labor Relations Board, a cut of $450,000, which may require a few lay-offs . . . WAR CLAIMS was given $281,000 by the committee, which would provide a 75-man staff. The President recommended $525,000 for it . . . FMCS: The committee approved a $2,700,000 budget for the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, or $40,900 less than was requested.

JOBS: Veterans' Administration is in the market for up to 300 additional card-punch operators and trainees. Applicants must be at least 16 and be able to type a minimum of 25 words a minute. Starting salary from $2284 to $2724, depending on experience. Applicants should go to Room 2057, Munitions Building, 20th st. and Constitution ave. nw., for interviews . . . AIR FORCE has openings for lithographic pressmen, $1.43 to $1.75 an hour; lithographic platemaker, $1.58 to $1.94 an hour; film assembler, $1.22 to $1.50, and bindery operator, $1.10. Call REpublic 6700, Branch 73342, for details.

ELECTIONS: At the Labor Department yesterday, George Hersey was reelected the employe member of the efficiency rating board. Alternates are Norris B. Sacharoff and Linwood H. Perkins . . . At Federal Power, Williard W. Gatchell was elected the employe member and his alternate is Edgar T. Hughes.

COMPENSATION: The House Rules Committee yesterday cleared the Lesinski bill to liberalize the benefits for Federal workers who are injured on the job. The Administration-supported bill is slated to come up for two hours of general debate next week in the House. Approval is now indicated.

PAYDAYS: Hundreds of "release funds" wires went out yesterday after the President signed the second deficiency bill into law. Tens of thousands of employes who had missed paydays were either paid late yesterday or they will be paid today. A new wave of payless paydays may be had next month unless Congress approves the regular appropriation bills in a hurry.

PAY HEARINGS: They will start Tuesday before a subcommittee of the House Civil Service Committee. The group will study all pay bills affecting all classes of Government people.

Meanwhile, the opposition of several employe unions to the Senate pay reclassification bill came within a whisker of willing it. The Long Subcommittee may meet again today on it.

The subcommittee is expected to give employes the right to appeal unsatisfactory efficiency ratings to a board within their agencies. The present Civil Service appeals system would be wiped out. Senators believe the system is time-consuming and complex.

LAY-OFF RULES: Changes in them will be announced soon by the Civil Service Commission. They were discussed yesterday by John Overholt, of the commission's staff, with the Federal Personnel Council. Briefly, it's proposed:

That laid-off career people (the A-1's and 2's) be given top priority for reinstatement up to a year after their discharge. During that period the commission would prevent any agency from hiring a new employe for a job a laid-off career employe was qualified to fill. The agency, however, could fill the job by a promotion from within.

The laid-off employe would be eligible for reinstatement to his or any other agency. He would retain his accumulated sick leave for a year.

The payment of terminal leave to laid-off careerists is left up to the agencies. It could be paid in a lump sum after a 30-day notice, or it could be paid in regular two-week paydays. The proposed order would give the agencies the right to ignore its provisions under certain circumstances. In such cases, the employe would have the right of appeal to Civil Service.

Truman Asks Pay Raises For Officials In Top Posts

His Message Tells Congress Increases Would Help Obtain High Type Men

President Truman yesterday repeated his request that Congress raise salaries of top Government officials.

He urged the increase "primarily as a matter of good business from the standpoint of the Government."

His request was contained in a message sent to Congress after he had signed a bill giving House members an additional $3000 each for clerk hire and $500 a year for telephone and telegraph messages.

Mr. Truman said the salary position of Federal executives has become "increasingly worse" in recent years so that now "the Government has great difficulty in obtaining and keeping the best men."

"Even when they are prevailed upon as a matter of public duty to serve in the Government," said the President's message, "too often they find they can afford to serve for a limited time only. Thus men are lost to the Government just when they have had the experience which brings them to the peak of their effectiveness."

Mr. Truman pointed out that there has been no increase in the salaries of Cabinet officers since 1925 and that members of important commissions whose salaries were set at $10,000 many years ago still get the same amount.

As an example, he cited the $10,000 salary paid members of the Federal Trade Commission. This salary figure has remained unchanged since 1914.

In terms of real income, he said, that amount, even before taxes, is less than half of what it was 35 years ago.

So absurd is the present situation, said Mr. Truman, that many Federal executives now have assistants who receive higher salaries than they do.

The President said he signed the extra expense bill for House members "willingly" but felt "constrained" to point out again the need for raising the salaries of Federal executives.

Mr. Truman declared he did not believe the increases high enough, but said they would substantially better the "present demoralizing situation."

He pointed out that the cost of this legislation would be approximately $1,300,000 annually as compared with $1,314,000 for the clerk hire bill he signed yesterday.

The legislation would raise the salary scales for the heads and assistant heads of executive departments and other officials of the executive branch having comparable responsibilities, the President said.

"Important as it is for members of the Congress to have adequate clerical assistance, it is at least of equal importance to have men of ability in the key executive positions in the Government," he said.

"The best of laws can be ruined by poor administration. The success or failure of all the things the United States Government undertakes to do depends in large measure upon the wisdom and ability of these executives."

Striking an economy note, the President reminded Congress that the Commission on Reorganization of the Executive Branch has urged more realistic salaries for Federal executives as a means of achieving greater economy and efficiency in governmental activities.

He said, too, that the soundness of this principle has been demonstrated in American business where it is recognized that the success or failure of an enterprise depends largely upon its executive officers, and their salaries are fixed accordingly.

"The Congress," said President Truman, "has already recognized the need for greater compensation for other groups of Federal officers and employes, including the members of Congress themselves."

In 1925, he said, the salaries of members of Congress were increased from $7500 to $10,000 and the salaries of Cabinet members from $12,000 to $15,000, but "no corresponding general increase was made in the salaries of other executive officers."

Now, Mr. Truman continued, members of Congress receive a wage equivalent to $16,000 a year more than double what they did prior to 1925. In the same 25-year period, he said, pay raises have been given Federal judges and Supreme Court justices.

President Truman also mentioned the salary increases given himself, the Vice President and the Speaker of the House earlier this year.

He said he was "grateful" to the Congress for the increase given him as President, but added:

"The proposed increases for other officers in the executive branch . . . would actually do more to improve the President's personal situation than the increase in his own salary.

"For one of the greatest burdens of the Presidency is in finding and keeping good men for big jobs, and under present conditions that is a most difficult task."

A Red Cross bus carrying amputees to a baseball game struck and instantly killed 5-year-old Ralph Hatton at 7:30 o'clock last night in the 400 block of Oakdale st. nw.

The boy was the son of William C. Hatton of 2038 4th st. nw. He was pronounced dead at the scene by an Emergency Hospital physician. His body was taken to the morgue.

Police said the bus is owned by the Montgomery County Chapter of the Red Cross and was driven by Eldridge K. Hayes, jr., of 5515 Oakmont ave., Bethesda, Md.

Hayes told police the child ran from in front of a parked car and into the right side of the front bumper of the bus.

The bus was carrying amputees from Bethesda Naval Hospital to the baseball game at Griffith Stadium.

Electrician's Mate James F. Lagen, 29, of the USS Des Moines, in Boston, was struck by a streetcar, police said, at North Capitol st. and Massachusetts ave. nw.

At Casualty Hospital, he was reported in critical condition from a fractured skull, cuts and bruises. He was on his way to visit his home at Winnsboro, S. C.

Driver of the streetcar, police said, was Howard Williford, 24, of 631 East Capitol st.

Howard V. Russell, 53, of 421 Elm ave., Takoma Park, was in St. Agnes Hospital, Baltimore, with a fractured hip, cuts and bruises. His auto and a bus collided at the Patapsco River bridge on the Washington-Baltimore blvd. His condition was reported serious.

D. C. Board Eyes Small Loan Laws

By Sam Zagoria
Post Reporter

District Commissioners yesterday devoted four hours — their longest meeting on record this year—in a vain attempt to take final action on proposed small loan regulations.

They heard spokesmen for the Washington Association of Finance Companies and the Nolan Finance Co. reiterate that they believed additional legislation was the right way to handle regulation and that tight controls would drive loan firms into nearby Maryland and Virginia and lose revenue for the District government.

They heard Assistant Corporation Counsel Chester H. Gray, principal author of the regulations, and Martin F. O'Donoghue and Francis J. Buckley, jr., attorneys representing the District Bar Association, reiterate charges that practices of loan firms are usurious and unfair to patrons.

O'Donoghue cited the case of a park policeman who was encouraged to borrow $300 because of the lower rates, although he originally asked for $100, and then was charged $130 premiums on life, accident and health insurance sold by the firm. The loan was already secured by a "completely clear" auto.

Gray told of a borrower who paid $14 a month in insurance fees on a loan secured by an auto. Commissioner Guy Mason exclaimed at this one, "That's unconscionable."

Buckley said loan firms employ "thugs" on a fee basis to repossess articles, such as cabs, offered as security for loans. Gray charged borrowers have been "beaten up" during repossession maneuvers.

William R. Lichtenberg, attorney for the Washington Association of Finance Companies, said the actions charged do not reflect traditional practices of loan firms. He asserted few complaints are received although thousands of loans are transacted.

The regulations have been in the making since last November as a result of many complaints received by the District of unfair practices by loan firms. A series of conferences has been held in promulgating the proposed rules, but each has ended just as yesterday's did.

Lichtenberg told the Commissioners another conference should be held with all the interested attorneys from the loan firms, District and Bar Association and another session should be held by the Commissioners before final action is taken. The Commissioners adjourned without taking further action.

Shivers, D. C. Man, Named Civitan Head

Civitan International, holding its annual convention at the Shoreham Hotel, yesterday named R. Kelvin Shivers, Washington insurance man, its president-elect for the 1950 term.

Others voted in on the slate with Shivers were 1949 President Eugene J. Bryan, Chattanooga, Tenn., named president-elect at last year's convention in Toronto and installed in office last night; first vice president, Marcus Robbins, New Haven, Conn.; second vice president, W. T. Stephenson, Shreveport, La.; treasurer, C. R. Wolford, Birmingham, La.

Leaders of Civitans

Shivers, owner of the Shivers Insurance Agency, lives at 3417 Alabama ave., Alexandria. He was president of the Washington Civitan Club in 1943, district governor of the Chesapeake district of Civitan in 1946, and is now a member of the board of the Washington Sales Executive Club.

The officers were installed at the Civitan's annual banquet last night in the Shoreham, following business sessions which filled the morning and afternoon hours of the 750 conventioneers.

At a luncheon meeting, Alexander M. Campbell, Assistant United States Attorney General in charge of the Justice Department's criminal division, warned the group that "We have a fifth column in America."

"The Justice Department, through the Federal Courts, is doing everything in its power to smash this fifth column," he added.

At final sessions of the four-day convention this morning International Civitan awards will be presented.

A luncheon honoring the 1949-50 District governors of the group will be held at noon at the Shoreham.

Big Drop in D. C. Cadet Corps Is Analyzed by Col. Barkman

"I'm responsible for the entire cadet corps in the schools here, yet I can't give any orders," Lieut. Col. William E. Barkman, professor of military science and tactics, declared yesterday.

Colonel Barkman told members of the Cosmopolitan Club at a luncheon meeting of the many problems that have accompanied the great decrease in cadet corps enrollment here.

He said the enrollment has dropped from a peak of 2100 in 1942 to 690 as of June 1, 1949.

Part of the cause may be that there are no longer full military instructors, Colonel Barkman said. Instead, faculty members serve as instructors. He not only cannot give them orders, but he cannot rate them either, he said.

"You can't expect a man who has a job in a major field to do his best in a minor field, although some of our instructors have been doing a very good job," he explained.

Another cause for the decrease in enrollment is the fact, that, since 1942, students no longer have a choice of taking physical education training or cadet corps training but must take five periods of physical education weekly, he said.

He called on club members to spread the word around that the cadet corps is worth while. Too many newspapers have unintentionally harmed the corps by quoting others in saying the training is archaic and no longer worth while, he said.

University Women Quit National Unit

Washington Body Objects to Vote Admitting Negroes To Membership

Seattle, June 23 (U.P.).—The Washington, D. C., branch of the American Association of University Women tonight seceded from the national body because the convention voted to allow Negroes to become members of the national organization.

The four District of Columbia delegates walked out of the convention hall after Dr. Elizabeth W. Conrad, president of the District branch, startled the final AAUW business meeting by announcing the secession.

Last night, the AAUW voted overwhelmingly to allow qualified members into the organization "regardless of race, color, creed or religion." The Washington branch had advocated a revision of the by-laws to incorporate a "screening" process, aimed especially against the admission of Negro women.

"In spite of the fact that the conference improved its by-laws," Dr. Conrad said, "the Washington branch feels it cannot do otherwise than withdraw, since no screening process was instituted."

Mrs. Barbara D. Evans, New York, head of the by-laws revision committee, said after the membership voted 2168 to 68 to allow Negro women into the body:

"It is with great satisfaction that we have crossed a new frontier which will enable us to broaden our work for greater educational opportunities."

Dean Althea K. Hottel of the University of Pennsylvania, re-elected president of the AAUW, was enthusiastic about the membership's stand for admitting Negro women.

"This will open a new era for Negro women," she declared. "We will welcome them with open arms."

The District of Columbia branch had opposed the admission of Negroes throughout the session. Two years ago, the branch refused admission to Mrs. Mary Terrell, Negro graduate of Oberlin (Ohio) College. Mrs. Terrell applied to the national board for admission and was accepted.

The District of Columbia branch then amended its by-laws to have every applicant screened before admission was granted. This drew stiff fire from the national body. The case was taken to the courts when the national group threatened to expel the Washington branch for failing to conform to national standards.

Dr. Helen C. White, English professor at the University of Wisconsin, was announced as the winner of the association's $2500 annual achievement award.

The award, first granted in 1943, is in recognition of scholastic achievement by women. Dr. White was cited for her professional and literary accomplishments as an author of historical novels and critical studies.

She was recognized also for her work as a United States delegate to the second conference of the United Nations Economic and Social Council in Mexico City in 1947.

D. C. Board View

Auto License Revocations Satisfactory

The District Commissioners are "satisfied" with the system under which the Board of Suspensions and Revocations presently operates, Commissioner John Russell Young said last night.

He made this observation to reporters at the twelfth annual "District Day" dinner of the Keystone Automobile Club advisory board. It followed a reminder by the board's secretary, Ernest R. Brett, that the advisory group has "repeatedly" favored changes in the present setup.

The board has urged the Commissioners that "show cause" hearings be held before a driver's permit is suspended or revoked, Brett said. Presently, the Board of Suspensions and Revocations has authority to suspend or revoke without a hearing, he pointed out.

Commissioner Young, following the dinner session, said that new regulations which become effective September 1 will overcome the objections of the Keystone Automobile Club advisory board.

The regulations, he said, will permit the suspensions and revocations board to use its "discretion" in making decisions. Presently, he said, the board must suspend a driver's permit, for instance, if a person is arrested for driving at 40 miles an hour or more.

"The new regulations unquestionably will take care of their objections," Commissioner Young said. "We are satisfied with the present system."

Arthur J. Sundlun, chairman of the Commissioners' Traffic Advisory Board, presided at the meeting, which was held at the home of Mark Lansburgh, 3111 Idaho ave. nw.

20 Families Set on Walk in Mass Eviction

Approximately 20 families and their belongings were moved out on the sidewalk by United States deputy marshals in a mass eviction of an apartment building at 621 Rhode Island ave. nw., yesterday.

Most of the families, expressing complete surprise at the idea that they had to move, started dazedly to separate their property, piling it into small heaps. A few of them made arrangements to move into quarters of relatives. Most of them said flatly they had no place to go and had no idea of what they would do.

Officials of Leo's Enterprise Corp. Inc., owner of the two-story building, which contains 39 apartment units, contradicted the statements of tenants that they were caught off guard.

Families Told, He Says

Corporation Official Leo Williams said the families were notified that the Landlord and Tenant Court had ordered Solomon McDowell, who leased the property from the corporation and in turn rented out the units, to restore the building to the owners because of nonpayment of rent.

Court records show that a writ of destitution was issued June 15 because McDowell owed the corporation rent of $278.28 from May 4 to June 4 plus an electric bill of $28.28.

Williams said he personally told most of the occupants of the building, called "The Howard," that they would have to move. He said the majority had refused for several months to pay rent to McDowell, who lived in one of the apartments.

A number of the tenants agreed that they had not paid McDowell rent, but insisted it was because he refused to give them receipts. Several declared they had talked to Williams as late as Wednesday and had been assured they would not have to move.

Lived There 17 Years

Mrs. Daisy Byrd, who has three children and has lived there 17 years, said she spoke to Williams about the matter Wednesday. She said she was preparing breakfast yesterday morning when several men walked in and started to move her things out before she knew what was happening. By evening she as yet had no place for either her children or her furniture.

Mrs. Connie Arnold said she was at work in a restaurant on 17th st. nw., when she received a telephone call from another tenant that all of her belongings had been put out on the sidewalk.

Salvation Army representatives hastened to the scene but said they had a place for only 10 or 12 of the men and did not know where the women and children could be taken care of.

D. C. Fund Bill With 'Token' Cuts Backed

A joint congressional conference committee agreed yesterday to recommend that both Houses approve the District appropriation bill with only "token" cuts below the Senate-approved figure of 103 million dollars.

Senator Lister Hill (D., Ala.) and Representative Joe B. Bates (D., Ky.) agreed to hold up publication of any details

Other members of the group disclosed, however, that the Senate additions to the House-approved 99-million-dollar total had been approved with all but the minor "token" cuts.

A question was raised, however, about the Commissioners' views on the funds for an addition to the Bell Vocational School plant.

Senator Hill had taken the lead in raising the question of the addition, and school officials promptly urged that it be approved. The Senate voted $225,000 for the addition whose completion would permit abandoning the older of the two buildings now used by Bell.

Members indicated two other major school projects, Spingarn and Hine, had received the backing of the conference group.

Appropriations Committee Denies $2,180,000 for Marshall Heights

By Edward F. Ryan
Post Reporter

The House Appropriations Committee yesterday again refused funds to launch Washington's congressionally-authorized postwar slum clearance program.

It was the third time in as many years that the committee has turned down funds to carry out the 1946 District Redevelopment Act.

Denied this time was a request by the District Redevelopment Land Agency, created by the 1946 law, for $2,180,000 to begin in the Marshall Heights section of east Washington, a slum clearance and redevelopment program.

The bill went to the House in the midst of its debate on the national housing bill, a measure which would, through special amendments, hook up the District with the national slum clearance and public housing programs.

District Tie-In Attacked

Representative John Phillips (R., Calif), who denounced the proposal to tie the District into the national housing program as a move to by-pass the Appropriations Committee, said later a motion would be made in the House to strike the District language from the national housing bill.

District Commissioners were surprised by the Hill action and said they would have to consider what steps to take next on slum clearance. Brig. Gen. Gordon R. Young, Engineer Commissioner, said the Corporation Counsel will be asked to study the present "freeze" order on issuance of building permits for work in the area to see whether it may now be lifted.

In sending the bill to the floor, minus the slum clearance funds, the Appropriations Committee urged as an alternative that the District Commissioners forget about clearing existing slum dwellings, and instead provide them with sewer, water, and street improvements.

In a report made public with the bill, the committee said it had been impressed with the divergence of opinion and conflicting information presented by those for and against the project. The Marshall Heights plan was prepared by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, approved by the District Commissioners, and certified to be carried out by the Redevelopment Land Agency. Chief opposition came from home owners in the area.

Testimony Set Forth

"Testimony was given to the committee," the report said, "that 90 per cent of the (Marshall Heights) property was, in the hands of individual homeowners and that these homes were largely paid for. Representatives of the Park and Planning Commission testified that many of the existing homes are located on lots 25 feet wide and about 100 feet deep, that the assessed value was 3 cents per square foot and would generally bring only two times assessed valuation or about $150.

"It is obvious that this sum would not be sufficient for the dispossessed home owner to make a down payment on a new home, either in the new development or elsewhere. It necessarily follows that many of these unfortunate people would be dispossessed without any prospect of securing a home."

The committee recommended that the District Commissioners withdraw their previous approval of the Marshall Heights project, and instead set about furnishing

Area News in Brief

Fuel Consumption Of Precincts Hit

Police in some precincts made it entirely too hot for prisoners—and themselves—according to a report and order by Inspector Milton D. Smith, yesterday. It was literally hot, though. The officers made too much with the furnaces.

Fuel requirements of all precinct station houses have been figured out according to space and outside temperatures. Five precincts last winter used under their calculated requirements, burning from 68 per cent to 91 per cent. But 10 precincts went over, using from 113 to 290 per cent of requirements.

"Particular attention is directed," Inspector Smith wrote, "to those precincts which show a percentage over 100. This is a very serious matter and it is a condition that must be corrected. In this category are Precincts 2, 6, 8, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, and harbor precincts and House of Detention.

"If several precincts can keep their consumption below 100 per cent, others can certainly bring theirs down," Inspector Smith said. "Commanding officers must give this matter their personal attention. Fuel consumption must be reduced wherever possible."

Inspector Smith's order makes no mention of over-alls and stationary engineer licenses for precinct captains or commanding officers. Presumably, they'll have to get their own.

Permit Denied

American U. Apartment Plan Fails

A request by American University for permission to erect a five-story apartment structure for use by students and faculty at Massachusetts ave., Ward cle. to Wesley cle. nw., was denied yesterday by the District Board of Zoning Adjustment.

University officials asked the board to permit a variance from the use provisions of the "A" Restricted Area District in which the site is located so the building could be erected.

The American University Park Citizens Association strongly opposed the proposal on the ground that the university owned "ample land on the south side of Massachusetts ave. which could be used for this purpose" and that it would create "an undue and undesirable traffic hazard."

The board will meet again to decide on other proposals presented at Wednesday's all-day hearing, including one by Providence Hospital and another by the Protestants and Other Americans United for Separation of Church and State.

Yesterday it approved a request by Mr. and Mrs. William Dawson to permit conversion of a dwelling at 3317 Newark st. nw. into a two-family house. Dawson was the first United States Ambassador to the Pan American Union and earlier was Ambassador to Panama and Uruguay.

The board refused an appeal by James S. Thomas to establish a temporary auto parking lot at the rear of 1922 3d st. nw., approved an appeal to establish one at the rear of 2480 16th st. nw. and another at 1821-23 6th st. nw.

The board approved a request by the Gelman Construction Co. to erect an apartment building at 1930 Columbia rd. nw.

Tag Law Amended

Finance companies will not be eligible to purchase dealer license tags henceforth, the District Commissioners decided yesterday.

The city heads amended motor vehicle regulations as a result of a May 31 ruling by the corporation counsel's office that such tags should be issued only to persons who could qualify for auto dealer licenses.

Safe and Sane Fourth

District Commissioners yesterday urged residents to join in the National Safety Council's drive to make the Fourth of July "an accident-free holiday celebration for all of us."

The city fathers said: "Remember that the Fourth of July commemorates the happiest day in our Nation's history. Let us honor the memory of those who died to bring about and maintain America's freedom by celebrating the holiday safely."

2d Police Car To Be Manned By Negroes

Assignment of Negro police officers to a scout car covering a special two-precinct area was announced yesterday by Maj. Robert Barrett, superintendent of police.

The car, to be known as No. 133, will patrol an area bounded by O, 15th, V sts. nw. and N. Capitol st., which Major Barrett said is a predominantly Negro residential area. This bridges parts of Precincts 2 and 13.

The system has been tried out in busy periods in recent weeks, Major Barrett said, and has worked out so well it will be made permanent. No scout car will be replaced. Negro officers have been assigned to a scout car in the Fourteenth Precinct for more than a year.

Disbarment Action Started in Jewel Case

Disbarment proceedings were initiated in District Court yesterday against the Army colonel who was convicted in 1947 as one of a group responsible for the theft of the $1,500,000 Hess German crown jewels.

He is Jack W. Durant, former Washington lawyer, now serving 14 years in the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary.

Salt Substitute Named in Suits For $100,000

Sale of a substitute for table salt, later banned by the United States Food and Drug Administration, brought about two lawsuits in District Court here yesterday asking a total of $100,000 in damages.

Plaintiffs in the action were Herman Bronson, and his wife, Mrs. Ethel Bronson, of 312 18th pl. ne. They sued Peoples Drug Stores, Inc., asking $75,000 damages for her and $25,000 for him.

The substance involved was marketed as "Westsal," produced by the Westwood Pharmacal Corp. of Buffalo, N. Y.

Mrs. Bronson's suit charged that last September she consulted a physician and underwent treatment for hypertension. He prescribed "Westsal," the suit said, and she bought it at a Peoples' store then and several times later. She became seriously ill from it, the complaint said. A table of symptoms was listed.

Her husband asks $25,000 for loss of her services and for medical expenses.

The Food and Drug Administration ordered "Westsal" and other salt substitutes containing lithium chloride off drugstore shelves and public sale in February, 1948.

Store Worker Held in Refund Slip Forgeries

A former employe of Sears, Roebuck & Co., yesterday was ordered held for grand jury action on a charge of forging company refunds for merchandise he never purchased.

He is Byron G. McCray, 24, of Baltimore, Md. Municipal Court Judge Ellen K. Raedy set bond at $2000.

Police said McCray formerly worked in a Sears store in Clarksburg, W. Va. They said he took in thousands of dollars in refunds through the forged slips from Sears stores in Richmond, Baltimore, Arlington, Philadelphia and other places.

Knowing where most stores kept their books of refund slips, he would head for that spot in each store and take partially used books in order to copy the initials of the supervisor from the carbons of other slips issued, police said.

He got a total of $193 in refunds from the two stores in Washington before he was spotted by a young clerk in the store at 4500 Wisconsin ave. nw. and arrested Wednesday afternoon, they said.

Police said McCray had just cashed a refund slip for $14 for a drier when the clerk, June Hertig, recognized him as the man store employes had been alerted to look out for. She signaled another employe and followed McCray out of the store, where he was arrested on the sidewalk by store detective John W. Gillespie.

Officials Report Refinery Refuse Pollutes River

The United States attorney's office yesterday began an investigation of reports that industrial refuse of the nearby Worthington Refinery is polluting the Potomac River.

Prosecutors Stafford R. Grady and Ross O'Donoghue were among a group of officials who went to the scene on the Virginia side of the river above Key Bridge. They reported seeing two drainpipes leading into the Potomac and said they observed dead fish and oil in the area.

They said they must first determine whether their office has jurisdiction in the case before bringing legal action.

Payless Pay Days Slated to End For Rent Office

Executives and staff of the office of the District Administrator of Rent Control heaved a sigh of relief yesterday.

President Truman signed the second deficiency appropriation bill. That will end for the rent controllers a payless period that began early in May.

The last regular pay checks in the office went out April 26. The ones on May 10 carried only a week's salary instead of two. Ever since—financial drought.

The payroll for the office totals about $8000 a month.

At the same time, President Truman asked Congress to appropriate $50,000 for the work of the Commission on Renovation of the Executive Mansion. The commission was set up by Congress to supervise White House remodeling for which 5.4 million is slated to be spent.

Picket Line Protests 'Bias' At Engraving

"The Citizens Committee to End Discrimination at the Bureau of Engraving," several hundred strong, picketed the plant at 14th and C sts. sw. yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Therese L. Robinson, grand directress of civil liberties of the Elks and chairman of the committee, said the picketing, from about 3:30 to 4:30 p. m., was an expression of protest, "not a strike."

A spokesman in the office of Secretary of the Treasury Snyder in reply repeated the Secretary's statement Wednesday that there was "absolutely no foundation" to charges of discrimination.

Committee charges and comment by Alvin W. Hall, director of the bureau, follow:

1. The bureau fails to promote Negroes to skilled, technical, clerical or supervisory jobs.

Hall: Of the number of positions to which employes can be promoted without taking another civil service examination, a large proportion are held by Negro employes.

2. There is not a single Negro printer, engraver or machinist at the bureau.

Hall: All tradesmen are recruited from the Civil Service Register, and so far no Negro has been certified to the bureau. Until they are certified they can't be appointed.

3. Plans are now under way to dismiss many hundred Negro women employed as printers' assistants, many of them with six or seven years' experience, and replace them with others.

Hall: That is correct, but under a White House executive order war service appointees are required to take an examination to protect their positions. This was explained to the United Public Workers in January in a letter from the President of the Civil Service Commission.

4. The bureau announced an examination for veterans to become apprentice printers; after about 30 Negroes qualified for the examination it was called off.

Hall: The examination was called off because the bureau was able to secure improved labor-saving printing presses, and wished to avoid an over-manned situation. It affected white workers as well as colored.

5. Locker room and lavatory facilities are segregated.

Hall: There are separate but identical facilities. Negroes are allowed to use toilet facilities throughout the bureau, however, and do use those in white locker rooms.

the community with essential services.

The Engineer Commissioner of the District testified that where a new subdivision is being developed the District is automatically required to provide such facilities. The same recognition should be given to the Marshall Heights area.

Holds Improvement Not Practical

The report did not refer to other testimony by General Young, in which he sharply discounted as impractical the idea of spending to improve the present layout of the Marshall Heights area, even though the thought had at first made a strong appeal to him.

The committee, however, voiced this conclusion:

"The committee urges that the Commissioners lift a freeze order in effect for several years prohibiting repairs and improvements. This order has stifled and retarded development and should be lifted immediately."

Marshall Heights residents opposed the project at the hearings. They included Howard D. Woodson and Mrs. Patsy L. Allen, treasurer of the Marshall Heights Self-Help Cooperative.

Mrs. Allen said the official plan "encouraging home ownership" gave residents "a bitter laugh." She said the project actually would convert home owners into tenants or "debt-laden home buyers."

Woodson charged that faulty grading in the area was the result of the failure by District officials to follow their own grade sheets. Banks said the project would be "the greatest land steal ever made under Federal sanction."

He told police the man was a dark-skinned Negro whose arm may have been broken in the jump.

School Sales Funds Backed For New Ones

The Board of Education yesterday discussed sale of old school buildings with Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young and won his approval for having the proceeds credited to new school construction.

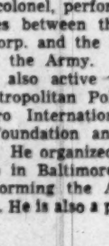
Nine schools the board plans to abandon are: Cranch, 12th and G sts. se.; Tyler, 11th and G sts. se.; Wallach, 8th and D sts. se.; Dennison, 13th and S sts. nw.; Walker, 3d and K sts. nw.; Jones, 1st and L sts. nw.; Logan, 3d and G sts. ne.; Smallwood, 3d and I sts. sw., and Twining, 3d and N sts. nw.

The board requested that Tyler, Wallach, Dennison and Twining be razed to provide play areas or future school sites. The others would be turned over to the Commissioners and if not used by them for District purposes put up for sale. Money from sale of school buildings now goes into the general fund.

Young said the Commissioners would not transfer Wallach to the Public Buildings Administration for an office building. Superintendent Hobart M. Corning said Wednesday he had heard the Federal agency wanted the building.

Fabric Intended For Court Gowns Reported Stolen

It shouldn't happen to a window dummy, much less a lady who's been bidden to curtsy at the Court of St. James.



Mrs. Brune

You can't meet royalty in sackcloth, you know, so several Washington ladies ordered gowns fashioned from elegant imported fabrics. And now the material has gone astray.

Madame Louise Brune, who describes herself as an international dress designer, reported to the FBI that the fabrics, valued at between $5000 and $10,000, disappeared while being transported here from New York by a trucking firm.

"Why it was fabulous material; it'll be very difficult to replace," she said.

Madame Brune, who lives in the Dupont Plaza Apartments, said the fabrics were for gowns she is designing for her clientele, which, she said, consists of the top 20 women in Washington.

Man Gets 90 Days In Theft of 9 Streetcar Passes

James Rector, 30, yesterday was sentenced to 90 days in jail after a Municipal Court jury found him guilty of the theft of nine streetcar passes.

Rector, who lived at 617 7th st. sw., was arrested May 31 after he accidentally dropped a clothing store credit card with his name on it while alighting from a streetcar on Maine ave. sw. Inside the credit card folder were eight passes fastened together in book form.

The streetcar operator turned the folder and passes over to his supervisor, who in turn called police. When arrested, Rector had the ninth streetcar pass with him, police said.

Police said the numbers of all nine matched those of nine passes taken from a bus sometime early May 28. Rector insisted he found the eight passes on Maine ave. and bought the ninth from an unidentified man. Judge Thomas D. Quinn imposed the sentence.

Nats' Rally Fails, Tribe Wins, 4-3

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

CHICAGO, June 23.—At 10:35 p. m., last night, Ezzard Charles became the new heavyweight champion of the world and, at the same moment, found himself reduced to a back number in the ring at Comiskey Park. No more-bewildered guy ever came into any kind of a crown.

POVICH

Charles found attention suddenly switched to his manager, Jake Mintz. Off in a neutral corner of the ring, Mintz had captured the new champ's audience by swooning dead away. Well, not quite dead. But there he was, stretched out on the ring floor, and inert.

That brought on more commotion than there was at any time during the 15 rounds Charles was in there with Pappy Walcott. When Mintz hit the deck at the announcement his fighter had won the decision, Charles' handlers deserted the new champ to rush to their stricken managers. Commission officials and doctors clambered over the ropes to reach the scene of the swoon.

The ringside press gasped. Mon Dieu, what had Mintz done now? For a week he had railed against vague plots to do his man dirt and had promised "When this fight's over, I'll give you a story that will blow the roof off."

MAYBE this was it. At least Jake's act provoked a double-take. Was this the story he had promised? The Tragedy of Jake Mintz. It was beginning to look pretty grim. Stretcher-bearers were climbing the steps to the ring now, and Jake wasn't responding to the ammonia and the smelling salts. But Ha! Now there was movement.

With the best right-hand swipe of the night, Jake flung the ammonia pad from his face and leaped to his feet, scattering doctors and seconds. He waved the stretcher-bearers away, and rushed over to Charles' sector of the ring just in time to get into the pictures. A half-minute more and the camera men might have been gone.

It was doubtless pure joy that had overcome Mintz. Finally, he had brought his man to the title, and vice versa. But there were cynical characters who wondered what form of expression Jake would take if he heard a decision in favor of his man. "In the next fight," they suggested, "they ought to lay odds on Charles winning and give us a price, too, on whether Mintz will swoon. Then a guy might be able to win a quiniela."

WITH THE ascension of the 181-pound Charles to the heavyweight throne as recognized by all parts of the known world except New York and the British Empire, a new flurry of activity in the division is anticipated. For the past 12 years, as long as the omniscient figure of Joe Louis was present, heavyweights had a habit of taking to the woods.

Charles inspires no such terror and a new wave of heavyweights ought to be coming out of hiding. He beat a tired old man in Pappy Walcott, and not by as wide a margin as some reports had it. If as New York and England claims, Charles' victory was not symbolic of the world title, at least it was necessary to any solution of who is the rightful champion.

Charles has a clearer claim to the title, at least, than do Lee Savold and Bruce Woodcock who are fighting in England in September. Eventually, he will be matched with the winner of that bout, probably next June, and the title will no longer be clouded, except for the possibility of a come-back by Joe Louis.

LUCKY it was that the Chicago commission adopted a point-scoring system to determine last night's winner. If it had been on a round basis, there could have been no satisfactory decision because some of the rounds were so dull they could not be awarded to either man and neither did they deserve being recorded as draws.

Charles may not be a towering figure in the division that so lately was dominated by such as Louis, but he may nevertheless be a hard guy to lick. He can sting with his punches if not chill with them, and he hurt Walcott more than did Joe Louis in the first 25 rounds of the two Louis-Walcott affairs.

The 35-year-old Walcott today might have been the reigning figure among the heavyweights had he not run out of gas in the final rounds. As late as the end of the thirteenth, Referee Dave Miller had Walcott only two points to the rear of Charles, and the judges' tallies' also gave him a chance to pull the fight out in the fourteenth and fifteenth. But those old legs said him nay.

Bums Whip Reds, Keep League Lead

Cincinnati, June 23 (AP).—Lefty Joe Hatten, who apparently can do no wrong when he takes the mound against Cincinnati, whipped the Redlegs for the third time of the season today—this time by a 7-2 margin.

The triumph enabled the Dodgers to stay a half game ahead of the second-place St. Louis Cardinals.

Hatten held the Reds to six hits, but, nevertheless, was behind by 1-0 until the sixth, when Marv Rackley hit his first major league home run with Peewee Reese aboard. That put Burt Shotton's crew in the van and they never were headed.

The Dodgers managed to touch three Red hurlers for only seven hits, but they took advantage of eight walks.

Golfers, Fans Hit Jackpot, Find $15,000 on 2 Courses

UTICA, N. Y., June 23 (AP).—Robert W. Lake, jr., Utica College senior, came up with a $9200 find on Valley View golf course, but it didn't help his golf game any.

Lake was on the 14th fairway yesterday when he picked up $9000 worth of United States savings bonds. In the middle of the 16th fairway, Lake found $200 in $20 bills.

Deciding that the same person probably lost the bonds and money, Lake called Ray Anton of New Hartford, whose name was on the bonds. Anton confirmed he had lost the money and bonds, and gave Lake a substantial reward.

But, said Lake, finding the money "ruined my golf game."

"I couldn't hit much afterwards and I wound up losing 15 cents on the 18-hole round," he complained.

Fans Help Golfer Make $5800 Recovery on 18th

TORONTO, June 23 (AP).—Spectators at the Canadian Open golf championship got an added thrill today.

Three hundred fans were circling the eighteenth green when it was announced over the loud speaker that fully endorsed checks totaling $5800 had blown out of galleryite's coat pocket. Als were recovered. The unidentified spectator rewarded each finder of a check.

Restelli Hits 6th Homer; Pirates Lose

Pittsburgh, June 23 (AP).—Pittsburgh's sensational young Dino Restilli clouted another homer, but the Phillies countered with two of their own, plus a triple play, and subdued the Pirates, 9-3, here today.

Rookie Restelli's homer was his sixth in the 10 games since he was brought up from the Pacific Coast League.

Second Baseman Eddie Miller, who started the three-ply killing in the third inning, hit his sixth homer of the year with two on in the sixth when the Phillies scored five runs after two were out. Stan Lopata gave the visitors their other two runs in the big inning as he hit for the circuit with one aboard.

The triple play came after Ralph Kiner had walked and reached second on Wally Westlake's single. Ed Stevens then lined to Miller, who tossed to Shortstop Granny Mamner to catch Kiner off second. Hamner fired the ball to First Baseman Dick Sisler before Westlake could get back to the bag.

Polly Riley Upsets Babe In Western

The sturdy little Irish girl stroked steadily to close out the Babe on the seventeenth hole, 3-1.

Miss Riley joined defending champion Patty Berg and two other professionals, Betty Jameson, San Antonio, and Louise Suggs, Carrolton, Ga., in tomorrow's semi-finals.

The semifinals match Riley against Jameson and Suggs against Berg, bringing on a renewal of many previous links battles.

Miss Berg, seeking her fourth Western title rallied on the incoming nine to defeat Beverly Hanson, Fargo, N. Dak., 3-2.

Miss Jameson also spurted in the late stages to defeat Carol Diringer, Tiffin, Ohio, 4-2. Betty, winner of this event in 1942, got two birdies on the last three holes. The match was even through nine as Miss Diringer needed only 12 putts, blasting out of traps three times for one putt each time.

McGrath Makes Bow on Tonight's Lanham Card

Steve McGrath, 28-year-old Boston Irishman who has been setting a terrific pace in Eastern competition, makes his debut at the West Lanham Speedway tonight when midget automobile racing is resumed.

McGrath, generally considered the hottest young pilot to come along since Ed "Dutch" Schaefer, will be strongly challenged by such outstanding rival Offenhauser drivers as George Fonder, Len Duncan, Mike Joseph, Shorty McAndrews, Walt Fair and Ernie McCoy.

The New Englander has swept four successive 25-lap feature races at the Princess Anne Speedway, Norfolk, Va., prior to being beaten to the finish line by Duncan and Fonder last Tuesday.

Paper Reports Clevelanders Angling to Purchase Indians

Cleveland June 23 (AP).—The Plain Dealer said tonight a group of businessmen are organizing a syndicate to buy the World Champion Cleveland Indians for about two million dollars.

The report was neither confirmed nor denied by Bill Veeck, president of the Tribe. Reached in Columbus, Ohio, he said he had heard rumors of an impending offer.

Cobbledick's story said:

"The would-be purchasers in the new group are understood to include Ben J. Goetz, president, and Max Axelrod, vice president of the Cleveland Concession Co., operators of the concession stands at the stadium.

"Shortly after he came to Cleveland, Veech engaged in a long and unsuccessful legal battle to break the contract with the concession company.

"The Bernet brothers (also of Cleveland), Maurice J., William G. and Bernard F., also are reported to be members of the group headed by Creadon. So is W. O. Washburn, a wealthy Cincinnatian."

In his conversation with the newspaper from Columbus, Veeck said he himself would under no circumstances remain general manager if the club is sold. He declared he had not fixed a price. On that subject, the Plain Dealer reported the prospective purchasing group had learned he wants $2,500,000.

Byrne Stops Tigers With 1 Hit, 12-0

New York, June 23 (AP).—The Yankees' Tommy Byrne came within a foot of pitching a no-hitter tonight as New York humbled the Detroit Tigers, 12 to 0. The lefthander hurled seven hitless innings before Shortstop Johnny Lipon laced out the lone Tiger safety—a single that fell 1 foot fair inside the left-field foul line.

Lipon caught hold of the first ball pitched in the eighth inning for his spoiler.

It was Byrne's fifth victory of the year against four defeats. A crowd of 55,591 was on hand for opening of the important first division series.

The Yankees' big noise was furnished by Tommy Henrich, who drove in five runs, two of them with his 15th home run in the first inning. Larry (Yogi) Berri hit his seventh home run of the year in the seven-run eighth inning, with nobody on base.

Bosox Beat Browns, 7-0, Behind McDermott

Boston, June 23 (AP).—Rookie Lefthander Maurice McDermott pitched a three-hit shutout tonight in steering the Boston Red Sox to a 7-0 triumph over the St. Louis Browns.

McDermott faced only 28 batters in winning his second major league victory. He walked two and struck out six. Four Boston double plays limited the Brownies to one left on base.

Not a Brownie reached second against the slim lefthander, who will be 21 years old August 29.

He retired the first six batters before Jack Graham, lead-off batter in the third, bounced a single through the middle of the diamond.

The Sox landed on Ned Garver for three runs in the opening inning, added two more in the third and picked up single counters in the fifth and sixth.

Their fifth-inning run was Al (Zeke) Zarilla's fifth homer of the season, a loft into the home bull pen in right center.

Gordon Saves Game in 9th By Robbing Ed Robinson

The Indians beat the Nats, 4-3, last night. It was, you might say, an act of Gordon.

Second Baseman Joe Gordon, leaping skyward, made a one-handed stab of Eddie Robinson's ninth-inning line drive, and for the Indians it bordered on the providential.

Earlier in the ninth, the Nats had stirred up two runs, driven Early Wynn from the box and dispatched his successor, Sam Zoldak.

Now they had the tying run on third base with two out, another runner on first, and Robinson was carrying Pitcher Frank Papich down to a 3-and-2 count.

Off Robinson's bat rocketed a fiery clout toward rightfield, "hit" written all over it, and then Gordon got into the act.

His feet far off the ground, his glove stretched upward

JOE JUDGE, former Nats' star, had never used a claw style first baseman's glove until he played with the Oldtimers recently. "Perhaps I'd get used to one," said Judge, "but I got along OK with the old style mitt. The claw is helpful in stretching for throws but I'm not sure it is an asset for fielding. Too many of the present day boys are slapping at balls we used to get." . . . Last year, when Laurel Raceway was Maryland's only harness track, President Dick Hutchison had his choice of dates and picked the last week in June to open. Asked how come, he replied, "As a boy on the farm, I remembered that we used to make hay starting at that time and I believed it would enable us to escape some rain . . . Delaware Park is one of a few tracks not operating a daily double. When New York ovals discontinued the popular twin bet, Delaware did likewise. However, the metropolitan tracks finally discovered they were losing business to New Jersey plants and reinstated the "double" . . . Many fans believe it was an ailing shoulder that forced George Case, former Nats' ace, out of the game. However, a spine condition was to blame. The league-leading base-stealer, Case continually bruised the lower end of his spine in sliding, causing the building of a calcium and tissue area that finally brought him great pain as well as back lameness. He is still taking weekly treatments . . . When Charles Town reopens for three weeks starting Monday the clubhouse will be air-conditioned, the work having been done during the week lay-off . . .

Haight

A PHILADELPHIA paper reports a fishing party on the Delaware River caught 279 porgies. This kind of fishermen are hogfies and we have plenty of them on our Chesapeake Bay . . . When the horse, Air Patrol, won at Monmouth Park the other day he was saddled by Trainer Dave Emery. Twenty years ago Emery was astride the great horse, Black Gold, riding him on the ill-fated afternoon at New Orleans when the Kentucky Derby winner fell with a shattered leg and had to be destroyed. Many former jockeys are now successful trainers including: Hugh Dufford, Will Crump, Merritt Buxton, Frankie Catrone, Sam Hicks, John Leyland, Andy Schuttinger and others . . . The hardest working jockey I know is Leon Garrett, currently at Charles Town. When mounts are tough to get, Leon looks for other jobs. At present he works horses in the early morning; makes sandwiches for the jockeys room lunch stand before noon and performs the duties of a jockey's valet in the afternoon. During a recent downpour, Garrett appeared at the finish line wearing hip boots, big raincoat and wide-brimmed rain hat. Somebody remarked, "Look at Garrett in that fisherman's outfit! As if he didn't have enough jobs, now he's going in the salmon business!"

THE BIGGEST STORY around the trot tracks concerns "How much was bet?" and not, as it should be, "Who won the race?" Perhaps those behind the show don't realize that it is possible to kill the goose laying the golden eggs by putting too much emphasis on total wagering and not enough on the actual racing. The average fan doesn't care about the total bet but he is interested in the win, place and show mutuels and the action leading up to them . . . Contrary to my prediction that the horses Arch McDonald, Art Brown and Walter Haight would meet in the eighth race on a half-mile track some day, the great clash will not materialize. John Manfuso, Chevy Chase owner of Art Brown, gave the ailing gelding away to be used as a saddle horse. An operation had made the son of Aneroid useless for breeding purposes, which is just as well, as it is doubtful if thus named he would have improved the breed anyway.

Short Races Revived on Initial Card

By Jack Walsh
Post Reporter

The harness racing scene shifts to Laurel Raceway tonight where at 8:15 p. m., some 10,000 trotting fans are expected to take up where they left off at Rosecroft.

Refurbished Laurel, complete with a new clubhouse, opens a 20-night session that, with five rain dates, may run through July 23.

Located on Route 1, midway between Washington and Baltimore, Laurel will be starting its second meeting with practically the same drivers and horses who provided the pari-mutuel sport at Oxon Hill.

Principal difference in Laurel's racing program is the revival of shorter races. Four of the events on tonight's opening card will be contested at dash distances, 4½ to 6½ furlongs.

The two top races offer $1000 purses for trotters and pacers. The trotters go in the fifth race with Joe Mallalieu's Josedale Counsel and Joe Eyler's Trace accorded the edge on paper.

Competing with them will be Ruth's Guy, Bonnie Scotland, Biery Hanover, Winnie L. Wilson and three others.

Joe Hylan, leading driver at Rosecroft, will send his Shamrock Thoughts against nine other crack pacers in the seventh race. The Hylan horse is expected to go postward as the favorite. Principal opposition should come from Tom Walters' Pan American and Joe Eyler's Tom Dillard.

In the morning rundown, Earl Avery has two 5-2 choices going for him in the daily double. He drives Connie Hall in the first event, a mile trot. Billy Myer's Fran Hanover is second pick at 3 to 1.

Avery's Jean Chief is accorded an excellent chance in the second event, a 4½-furlong dash for pacers. Senator M. and Fly Away both are listed at 3 to 1.

Ray Riordan Stars

Ray Riordan pitched and batted St. Ann's to a 3-0 victory over Holy Comforter yesterday in the semi-finals of the Catholic Youth Organization intermediate baseball tournament. Ray yielded only four hits, and connected for a two-run single.

TENNIS—From P. B3

Falkenberg, Schroeder Win

consulting his partner, Gussie Moran, current glamour girl of London.

But with the count 4—4 in the final set, Falkenburg calmly pulled his game together, cracked Asboth's service to lead 5—4, and then smashed over a service ace on match point that whizzed past the beaten Hungarian before he could move a muscle.

The post-match ovation went to Asboth and Falkenburg stalked off to the polite clapping of a few hands.

Schroeder, the tournament favorite, polished off Rene Buser of Switzerland, 6—3, 6—2, 7—5; Gonzales toyed with Marcel Coen of Egypt, 6—1, 6—2, 6—4 and Parker blasted Phil Hanna, New York singer appearing in a London musical comedy, 6—2, 6—0, 6—4.

Four other seeded players regarded as the greatest stumbling block to an All-American semi-final also advanced, with sixth-seeded Jaroslav Drobny of Czechoslovakia knocking out Budge Patty of Los Angeles in a five-set thriller. Patty tossed off the fourth set to conserve his strength for a rally in the fifth but the chunky Czech had plenty in reserve and won, 6—4, 6—8, 7—9, 6—0, 6—2.

Mrs. Stokes Shoots 33 to Reach Finals

By Leila Edwards

In one of the most exciting finishes in District competition, Mrs. A. B. Bower, Manor, defeated Mrs. Betty Meckley, Kenwood, 1 up, 20 holes, in 20 holes, yesterday in the semi-finals of the Women's District Golf Association championships at the Columbia Country Club.

Mrs. Bower, defending champion, caught Mrs. Meckley when she was playing her best game, and Mrs. Bower was three down in the first six holes.

Three down and three holes to go at the sixteenth hole, Mrs. Bower regained her game and tossed two birdies and a par at her opponent to tie up the match on the eighteenth green. They halved the nineteenth and the match was closed out when Mrs. Meckley, experiencing both water hazard and sand trap trouble on the twentieth, conceded.

The best golf of the tournament was played in the other semifinal match between Mrs. Walter Stokes, also of Manor, and Mrs. J. P. Trouchaud, Kenwood. Mrs. Stokes, a favorite to go into the finals, found herself 2 down on the front nine, but rallied on the home side to shoot a magnificent 33 for a 4-3 win.

Her score of 75 tied the course record for women's competitive golf.

Hon. Paper Co. Slashes Wages

A 15 per cent wage reduction for all employes of the Honolulu Paper Co., Ltd., to take effect immediately, was announced Thursday by Stanley S. Taylor, president.

Taylor said a reduction of business brought about by the longshore strike was the reason for the wage slash and if the strike is prolonged it may result in further cuts.

He also announced a change in working hours for employes commencing June 13. Instead of being open from 7:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, the firm will now open at 8 a.m. and close at 4 p.m., on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday, and from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. on Wednesday. The company will be closed Saturdays.

TAYLOR'S announcement in part:

"If the strike continues it will mean further and more drastic reductions. These reductions will not be eliminated until business returns to normalcy.

"The end of the strike will signal the return to normalcy. The damage done to the economy of Hawaii takes months, after the strike termination, to recover."

Lewers & Cooke Cuts Dividend By 10 Cents

F. D. Lowrey, president of Lewers & Cooke, Ltd., said yesterday that in view of the over-all picture facing the Territory and Lewers & Cooke, the directors felt it wise at this time to reduce the dividend on the common stock from 30 cents to 20 cents per share, payable yesterday.

"Sales for the first quarter of 1949 were slightly under sales for the first quarter of 1948," said Lowrey. Gross profit margins, however, have dropped considerably; and the operating results for the first quarter were not satisfactory.

"Beginning early in the year," Lowrey continued, "it was clear that the potential amount of building would be less. To compensate for this, we started to cut back the number of employees in the business. April did not pick up seasonally, and we decided to cut back our regular staff further.

"These measures would have, in time, corrected the business for the change in the building cycle. However, at about this time the strike emergency began, and May sales have fallen off further.

"To correct for the return in building cycle, we have cut regular personnel back since first of the year by 76 persons or about 13 per cent, and let go in addition most of casual personnel that we normally use to sort lumber. Others have also been reduced. The strike emergency we ced our work week (effe 6) for those included Wage and Hour Law, o 36 hours, with no he hourly rate, and the pay of all other a straight 10 per measures will effroll cut of 100 per cussing this emergenasure with the employes, ey were advised that if conditions prove worse

Judd Slates ... VHY Reduces ... Its Dividend

Directors of The Von Hamm-Young Co. on Thursday voted a dividend of 20 cents a share payable on June 15 to stockholders of record on June 10.

This is the first time since 1921 that the company's regularly quarterly dividend of 30 cents a share has been reduced to 20 cents.

Conrad C. Von Hamm, chief executive and chairman of the board of directors, said the reduction was due to present unsettled conditions in the Territory.

VH-Young Co. Also Reduces Employes' Pay

The Von Hamm-Young Co. Thursday joined the ranks of other big firms in Hawaii in announcing pay reductions for all employes. Salaries have been cut 10 per cent and hourly employes have had their work week cut four hours. Reductions went into effect with the June 15 pay checks.

A COMPANY official said that the last half of 1948 and the first half of 1949 have seen the company's business volume go steadily downward. It was hoped that business would pick up through more aggressive sales efforts, but the waterfront strike killed those hopes, it was said.

Inventories in most departments are greatly depleted and the sales volume has slipped to a dangerously low level because customers don't have the money today to

348 Firms Lay Off 906 Due to Strike

It was announced Thursday by the Honolulu Chamber of Commerce that 348 business firms, in answer to a questionnaire sent by the chamber, report that 906 employes have been laid off since the strike began May 1, and that if it lasts until June 15, a total of 1,942 workers will have lost their jobs.

THESE FIGURES do not include those on strike and represent only partial returns. The chamber reported that 1,650 questionnaires were sent to a list of both large and small business firms.

Twenty-seven small businessmen said that if the strike continues beyond June 15, they will have to close up, liquidate their assets and dismiss their employes.

Two-hundred thirty eight firms reported that business has dropped sharply since May 1. Decreases range from 1 per cent, lowest reported, to 100 per cent on the part of nine businesses.

One-hundred thirty two firms reported a decline in business since May 1 of 10 per cent or more, 61 a 25 per cent drop, 26 a 50 per cent decline, and 22 a decline of 75 per cent.

If the strike continues until June 15, 38 firms expect a decline of 10 per cent or more, 89 a drop of 25 per cent, 58 a decline of 50 per cent or more, and 39 a decline of 75 per cent or more.

HERE IS WHAT the businessmen said:

The owner of a small hotel reported that on June 1 he had to lay off 12 employes, including the manager, one houseman, chief cook, one second cook, one dishwasher, two waiters, three room maids, one yardman, and one util-

Crewmen Willing To Sail Lurline Today

Following is the text of An Open Letter to the Public received Friday by the editor of The Advertiser from A Group of Lurline Union Members:

"The majority of the crew members of the Lurline are ready and willing to sail the ship Saturday, May 21st, Mr. Schmidt's statement notwithstanding.

"Should there be any doubt in the minds of the public that we are willing to sail the ship, it is our suggestion that a secret ballot be supervised by a Citizens Committee, not a ballot taken by Union Leaders which would only prove to be a 'phony.'

"A further suggestion is that passengers carry their own baggage across the picket lines, which they, no doubt, will gladly do under the circumstances.

"A GROUP OF LURLINE UNION MEMBERS.

"N.B.—This letter bears no signatures because we fear expulsion from the Union should our identity be revealed."

Feed Shortage Hits Poultryman's Flock

It was Frank Chow's 33rd birthday last Thursday, but not a very happy occasion for the near-blind young poultryman of Waimanalo. He had just buried 24 six-weeks-old chickens, dead of starvation, from a flock that he has counted on to support his wife and family of three children.

Ironically enough, Frank Chow is a former Honolulu stevedore and a former executive officer of the very union which has shut off the feed that he so desperately needs to save his flock.

An Appeal For Help From ...

No Americans have ever received such unfair, un-American treatment as the people of Hawaii have been suffering since May 1, 1949. WITH NO RELIEF IN SIGHT.

Hawaii's life line of ships has been cut by a Union of only 2,000 members, only 500 of whom are even American citizens. No ships can come in—none can go out (except relief food shipments by "courtesy" of the Union).

Even ships loaded with food in our harbors won't be worked—and food is spoiling because, with their vital cargoes, they sailed after the Union started the strike. So—they are "hot."

No monopoly ever prosecuted under the Sherman-Clayton Anti-Trust Act, has ever been as vicious or as complete as we in Hawaii face—And the government does nothing.

This monopoly control of the destinies of over half a million people is being run and directed by Harry Bridges and his lieutenants Louis Goldblatt, Henry Schmidt and Jack Hall—heads of the ILWU in San Francisco.

These men, with lesser leaders, have decided that the business people of Hawaii are either going to run their businesses according to ILWU orders, or be starved out and ruined.

Because the business men of Hawaii have learned after 15 years of experience that under this ILWU union and its leadership there can NEVER be labor peace, and that there is no sincere desire on the part of the Union for labor peace, they have as one man, big and small, through utter necessity, agreed to stand together and resist further demands, if it takes every dollar they have.

To submit to further compromise would lead to the same result. We have no choice.

Thus, legally, a handful of men are starving out and bankrupting an entire American Community, fully backed by American labor laws!

At the start of the strike we had 9,000 jobless in all Hawaii.

Today we have 18,800 and the numbers are pyramiding each week as firm after firm runs out of merchandise, and cannot continue to carry on.

No one can buy food without money—and that is running out.

The firms that can bring in merchandise by air mail or by parcel post (by Army or Navy transports), find that the people who have money are afraid to buy anything but sheer necessities for they know not what the future holds.

The Army and Navy can bring in its cargoes, which are unloaded by this same Union at going pre-strike rates.

Why? Because if the Union refused, the services would unload their own ships.

But it is illegal for civilians to unload—or load any of their cargoes. If they do, another branch of the same Union will refuse to sail the ships; if the ships do sail—the same Union in San Francisco will declare the ships and their cargoes "hot."

If stevedores in San Francisco did unload, the warehousemen (same union) would refuse to handle it.

Hawaii has appealed to the President. He will do nothing but send Labor Conciliators. Arbitration is not the answer to a wage dispute.

Our governor apparently can legally do nothing.

Summary ... Dock Strikers' Wage Losses Now Over Half Million

Wage losses among ILWU strikers in island ports passed the half-million dollar mark Wednesday on the 39th day of the strike, the research department of the Hawaii Employers Council reported.

LOST MAN days caused directly by the strike are 54,270, the council said.

Individual non-working stevedores have lost approximately $300 each.

The total lost wages, among dock workers and other ILWU members who have struck on the islands of Maui and Kauai in sympathy with stevedores, total an estimated $533,150, the council research department said.

CALCULATIONS ARE based on average hourly earnings of $1.70 for stevedores over the first three months of this year.

Strike Perils HC&S Future, Baldwin Warns

WAILUKU, Maui, May 18 (By Radiophone)—Asa F. Baldwin, manager of Hawaiian Commercial & Sugar Co., has warned all employes that if the ILWU longshoremen's strike continues, the plantation will be forced to shut down.

In a letter to the employes, Baldwin said:

"The bulk sugar storage bin at Kahului on May 5 had room for only about 20,000 tons, and if the strike continues the bins should be filled by May 25. Should the bulk sugar plants be forced to close down, it is probable that we will have to shut down our sugar factories for lack of storage space. Feed Shortage Cuts Milk Production 10%

Oahu's fresh milk production already has been cut about 10 per cent by the strike-induced feed shortage, and the reduction will become more and more rapid from now until shipments are resumed, authorities agreed Monday.

"Unless definite relief is in sight this week, there will be a sharp curtailment in production," said George Q. Cannon, manager of the milk division of Dairymen's Association, Ltd.

HE SAID ALL dairies have started "drying up" cows which are not their best producers. This has been due to some actual feed shortages and to the attempt to ration dwindling stocks.

But thus far, Cannon said, "there is no real milk shortage. We gained a little over the holiday last week and we are in a pretty good position.

"At the start of the strike, more milk was being produced in the Islands than at any time in the last 10 years. Otherwise we would

Work Halts At Docks as New Disputes Arise

There will be no dock activity in Honolulu harbor today, the removal of foodstuffs from strike-bound ships has been halted at least until Monday morning.

ALL WORK on the four pre-strike ships in port was halted at mid-morning Friday after a dispute over unloading procedures. Officials of Castle & Cooke Terminals, Ltd., said they did not know whether crews would be called for Monday morning to resume the unloading of food. No work had been planned for today and Sunday.

The work of unloading edibles from the eight pre-strike ships in island ports began last Monday and had been interrupted for a day by Wednesday.

CASTLE & COOKE officials said late Friday that a total of 1,770 tons of food

Plantations Defer Action On Dividends

Directors of three more Hawaii sugar plantations have voted to defer quarterly dividend action as a result of the strike situation.

The companies are Hawaiian Agricultural Co., Wailuku Sugar Co. and Olokele Sugar Co. Brewer & Co. is agent.

IT WAS THE decision of the directors at their recent quarterly meetings to defer further dividend action until such time as the results of the present waterfront strike and the threatened sugar strike have been determined.

Each of the sugar companies normally pays a dividend of 30 cents a share every three months.

C. BREWER & CO. directors have already reduced that firm's dividend from 30 to 15 cents a share for reasons similar to those stated by the directors of the three plantations.

Union Refuses To Unload Food From 2 Ships

The ILWU strike policy committee Thursday ruled against unloading foodstuffs from the Matson freighter Hawaiian Citizen Thursday.

But the work of unloading three freighters in Honolulu and four in other island ports continued.

COMPANY OFFICIALS estimated that unloading of food and feed aboard the Hawaiian Merchant at Pier 31 would be completed by the end of the week and crews would start work on the Isthmian freighter Steel Flyer at Pier 24.

The union ruled the Hawaiian Citizen to be a poststrike ship since it left Mobile, Ala., its last Mainland port, after the strike began May 1. Aboard the ship are 322 tons of feed and 56 tons of canned goods, Castle & Cooke

Plea for Help May Be Taken To Washington

Hopes for an early settlement of the island dock strike were dimmed today, and public attention turned toward proposals for relief ship...

Richard K. Kimball, president of the Hawaiian Dairy Farmers Association, laid plans to confer with Washington, D. C., to confer with federal officials on relief food shipments. 540,000 People In Hawaii

The same Union promises a sugar strike in the near future—but without boats our warehouses are already full and the industry is already slowing down. Soon it will stop for lack of storage space without a strike, so workers (same Union) can receive Unemployment benefits.

Without tin for cans, our pineapple industry faces ruin. The peak of the crop will be ripe by July and will have to rot in the fields. Their employees (same union) will also be out of work and of course entitled to Unemployment benefit payments.

Our tourist business has cancelled out, though prospects had indicated the largest summer travel in history.

This legal boycott and monopoly is a situation which is without parallel under the American flag.

Official Washington says in effect "It's Your Baby. You Handle It."

We pray that the American people will recognize the grave injustice that is being done.

Won't YOU who know Hawaii, or who do business with Hawaii, or who as just plain honest Americans believe in a fair American deal, and are against unfair legal practices, give this American territory your help?

Nothing short of SPEEDY action by Congress can help.

We do not believe that the makers of labor laws ever envisioned building up the power of a single union so as to enable it to legally throttle an ENTIRE community.

That is what is happening in Hawaii. RIGHT NOW.

We do not believe that any laws of the United States were ever calculated to protect 2,000 union members, against the best interests of 540,000.

THAT is what is happening right now in Hawaii!

We do not believe Veterans of World War I or II, who have started businesses of their own, should be legally crucified by any Union—

THAT is what is happening right now in Hawaii!

Like most American citizens we are NOT in a position to prove that this strike is Communist directed. But we do know that every move in this whole picture for 15 years tallies exactly with the Communist manuals and teachings—without any exceptions. We do know that every Communist list as issued by the Un-American Activities Committee of the House of Representatives, contains as listed Communists the names of the men who are crucifying Hawaii.

We know that the principal attorney for the Communists in New York, for Harry Bridges in San Francisco, and for the ILWU leaders in Hawaii, is the same man—Richard Gladstein.

We know that the people of the 48 states DO NOT KNOW what the people of Hawaii are up against—and we can't seem to find anyone in America that gives a damn.

Isn't there someone in the Congress of the United States or in high official position who will help? PROMPTLY?

Resolution By JC Condemns ILWU Strike

The Hawaiian Junior Chamber of Commerce Saturday charged that the ILWU in pursuing its objectives, "has irresponsibly and with complete disregard for the safety, health and welfare of the people of the Territory," called the waterfront strike.

VIEWS OF THE JCC on the current ILWU waterfront strike were embodied in a resolution adopted unanimously at its annual convention held at the Pleasanton Hotel. The 50 delegates represented 1,400 members on all ... islands.

In the resolution, to be sent to President Truman and labor officials, federal, local and labor, the HJCC suggests that ... the strike should never be settled against any ... of the safety ... figure ... ...

Poultryman Must Get Feed Now Or Butcher His Flock

Robert L. Madden, Kailua poultry farmer, told The Adver... yesterday that he has but two days feed on hand and ... prospects of getting more until the current shipping strike is ended.

"In addition to 600 hens I have 150 chicks in brooders. These will have to be killed and burned since they are too young for the market.

Talks Open Today Aimed at 'Selling' UNESCO to Public

The United States delegation to the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization will open a two-day meeting here today on a program it hopes will "sell" UNESCO's work to the public.

Milton S. Eisenhower, president of Kansas State College of Agriculture and Applied Science, and chairman of the sesison, said the commitee will take up six points to help get public support during the next fiscal year.

(1) An educational campaign for understanding responsibilities of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights; (2) an interchange of "delegates" for beter understanding among nations; (3) reconstruction of educational and cultural facilities in war-devastated countries; (4) a information program on the relationship between food supply, population presure and war; (5) improvement of textbooks, and (6) an educational program on U.N. and its agencies.

Willard L. Thorpe, assistant Secretary of State for Economic Affairs, will outline a proposed United States program for the technical development of backward areas.

Bridges Refused Trip to France; Bail Hike Urged

San Francisco, June 23 (AP).—Harry Bridges was refused permission today to leave the country and, at the same time, learned that the Government wants to increase his bail to $100,000.

The longshore union leader asked permission to attend a world conference of maritime unions at Marseilles, France, July 13-14. Bridges wanted to leave the United States July 10 and return July 29.

Bridges faces an indictment charging perjury and conspiracy in obtaining United States citizenship. Two other union leaders, Henry Schmidt and J. R. Robertson were indicted for conspiracy. All are at liberty under $5000 bond.

Fedreal District Judge Michael J. Roche ruled that Bridges could not leave the jurisdiction of the court.

The maritime union conference is sponsored by the World Federation of Trade Unions—an organization from which the CIO withdrew because of a belief that it was Communist dominated.

Man Admits Mutilation-Killing Of Young Mother

Morrison, Iowa, June 23 (AP).—A pretty young mother was found slain and fiendishly mutilated today and tonight authorities arrested a man they said had admitted the crime.

The body of Mrs. Irma Jean Stahlhut, 22, was found inside a big walk-in refrigerator in the tavern she and her husband operated here. The killer had cut off her breasts, slit her throat from ear to ear, stabbed her twice in the heart and cut her open "down the middle."

Tonight Edward J. (Buddy) Beckwith, 27, of Morrison, was arrested by a posse of four men. Sheriff John A. Meyer said Beckwith told his mother, Mrs. E. M. Beckwith, he committed the slaying.

Afterward, the sheriff said, Beckwith, a wartime soldier left her home after telling her: "I'm taking off and you'll never see me again."

Here's a Pleasant Note—It's Cold—In Australia

Sydney, June 23 (AP).—A big slice of eastern Australia is having its coldest June since 1935—and a ban on heating to conserve coal is still in effect.

Coal, gas, coke and electricity are sharply rationed because of a threatened coal mine strike Monday. The miners want more pay and shorter hours.

Winter is now in full swing "down under." Five towns in the mountains near Canberra were snowbound today after one of the worst blizzards on record.

Fuel and power rationing has forced many plants in New South Wales to shut down and transport is affected.

Approximately 300,000 men and women are out of work in Sydney and other New South Wales cities.

Hospitals are admitting only pregnant women and emergency cases.

Italian Strike Ends After Six Are Killed

Rome, June 23 (AP).—The strike of Italian farm hands ended tonight after lasting 36 days, during which six persons were killed.

A TO B TO C

Q. Abbott wrote Carr: "My friend Black is moving to your town. His money is tied up in a court case. Lend him $500 and I will guarantee it." Carr lent Black the $500, and as he was dictating a letter notifying Abbott of the fact, he received a telegram from Abbott saying that Abbott had just learned Black was bankrupt and he wouldn't guarantee any loan. Carr mailed the letter notifying Abbott that the loan had been made, and upon Black's default, demanded payment. Is he entitled to it?

A. Abbott's letter to Carr was an offer that could be accepted by the performance of an act. Carr having done the act (lending the money) before receiving notice of the withdrawal of the guarantee, the contract is complete and Abbott is liable. In some States guarantee contracts, to be enforceable, require notice to the guarantor so that he may know the extent of his liability. The notice must be given within a reasonable time, and Carr met this requirement by giving notice promptly. Abbott is liable.—F. L. D.

WASHINGTON: FRIDAY, JUNE 24, 1949

MAKE IT BUFFET STYLE if you're entertaining a group of friends at breakfast. Serve a medley of different fruits arranged attractively on a plate as shown above. Here are peach halves, fresh strawberries and chopped pineapple, all ready for topping the shredded wheat

BATTER CAKES AND SAUSAGE—That's a wonderful breakfast combination! Get the day started right for your family by serving them some of these crisp little corn meal pancakes:

BATTER CAKES

1 cup corn meal — 1 beaten egg
½ teaspoon soda — 1¼ cups buttermilk
½ teaspoon salt

Sift together dry ingredients. Add beaten egg and buttermilk, beating until smooth. Pour 1 tablespoon of batter for each cake onto a well-greased iron skillet. Bake until brown, turning only once. If batter gets too thick, add a little more buttermilk. Serve with honey or maple syrup.

BLUEBERRIES ARE BACK and breakfasts have got 'em, if the meal planner is wise. They have just the right note of tart crispness to blend deliciously with cold cereals

Word to the Wives

You Can Prepare Hearty Breakfast Ere Coffee Perks

By Lucia Brown

TO KEEP your husband healthy and happy, Mrs. June Bride of '49, be sure to feed him a man-sized breakfast!

That's advice from none other than Mrs. Marjorie Child Husted, the original "Betty Crocker," and it's good advice whether you've been married two weeks or 20 years.

The bride who is not an accomplished cook should learn to prepare a delicious breakfast as her first step in culinary training, says Mrs. Husted, one of the Nation's best known home economists, a frequent Washington visitor, and a recent winner of a Women's National Press Club Achievement Award.

"Breakfast is the easiest meal of all to cook well," Mrs. Husted points out, "and it's just about the most important from the standpoint of health and efficiency. One fourth to one third of the day's nutritional needs should be supplied at breakfast if you are going to be in high gear for the work of the day. And a good breakfast is every bit as important in summer as it is in winter, for you need good nutrition to battle hot weather."

An adequate breakfast for two can be prepared in exactly 10 minutes with very little practice, Mrs. Husted points out. The definition of an adequate or "basic" breakfast, as given by leading medical authorities, is as follows: Fruit, preferably citrus; cereal with milk or cream; toast, butter and coffee.

To get this on the table in less than a dozen minutes, Mrs. Husted suggests the following double-quick steps: Start the coffee first, then squeeze orange juice or remove previously prepared, canned, or frozen juice from the refrigerator. Set the table, putting on cereal, milk, bread, butter, and electric toaster. Now if the coffee's done, you're all ready to sit down and eat. As you can see, it's only taken as long to get the entire breakfast as it does to perk coffee.

Surprises for the Family

Breakfast menus can easily get in a rut. Some people do like 'em that way, of course—maybe it just saves thinking in the early morning. But you can lift breakfast out of a humdrum groove if you cook up a few surprises for the family, so that they'll look forward with eager curiosity to the morning meal.

A few suggested menus and recipes follow:

BLUEBERRIES AND CORN FLAKES
FRENCH OMELET — CINNAMON TOAST
COFFEE — MILK

FRENCH OMELET

3 eggs — Dash of pepper
½ teaspoon salt — 1 tablespoon butter

BEAT EGGS just enough to mix whites and yolks. Add salt and pepper. Heat butter in omelet pan, pour a little of it into the beaten eggs, and reheat remainder. Turn eggs into pan and, as mixture cooks on the bottom and sides, prick it with a fork so that egg on top will penetrate the cooked surface and run under sides. While the eggs are still soft, but thickened, fold over, let stand a few minutes to brown and turn onto a hot dish. This recipe serves three.

STARTING THE DAY with a really good breakfast, Mr. and Mrs. K. Wallace Husted of Minneapolis, Minn., sit down to grapefruit, cereal, bacon and eggs, toast and coffee. She is Marjorie Child Husted, the original "Betty Crocker" and an advocate of good breakfast

TOMATO JUICE COCKTAIL
EGGS BAKED IN BACON RINGS
BRAN FLAKE MUFFINS
MILK OR COFFEE

EGGS BAKED IN BACON RINGS

6 strips bacon — Salt
6 eggs — Paprika

GREASE the bottom of muffin pans and line them with lightly broiled bacon. Into each cup break an egg. Sprinkle the eggs with salt and paprika. Bake in moderate oven 325 degrees for about 15 minutes or until eggs are set. Turn them out onto rounds of toast or slices of drained pineapple. Garnish them with parsley.

BRAN FLAKES MUFFIN MIX

3 cups sifted flour — 1 teaspoon salt
3 tablespoons plus 1 teaspoon double-acting baking powder — ½ cup sugar
¾ cup shortening
6 cups bran flakes

Sift flour once, add baking powder, salt and sugar and sift again. Cut in shortening with pastry blender or two knives until mixture resembles coarse meal. Add flakes and mix well. This recipe makes about 9 cups mix.

Place in glass jars or crockery bowl. Cover lightly with cloth or plate to allow circulation of air. Store in refrigerator or other very cool, dry place. Keeps well for 3 weeks.

TO MAKE MUFFINS: Measure 2 cups bran flakes muffin mix into bowl. Add 1 well-beaten egg and 2/3 cup milk, then mix only until dry ingredients are dampened. Fill greased muffin pans 2/3 full. Bake in hot oven (425 degrees Fahrenheit) 15 minutes or until done. This makes 7 large muffins.

RAISIN BRAN MUFFINS: Fold in ½ cup seedless raisins with each 2 cups bran flakes muffin mix.

After-Wedding Buffet Menu

Please suggest an after-wedding buffet supper menu for about 12 people. I would also like to have a champagne punch or cocktail recipe. What type of stemware is used to serve the champagne and when is it served? H. E.

Here is a menu for a wedding supper buffet:

Ham mousse
Tomato cups filled with vegetable salad
Buttered green beans with mushrooms
Hot rolls
Wedding cake — Coffee

HAM MOUSSE

1½ tablespoons plain gelatin
2 tablespoons cold water
2 egg yolks, slightly beaten
½ teaspoon salt
Dash of paprika and cayenne
½ teaspoon dry mustard
1 cup chicken bouillon
1 cup milk
2 cups chopped cooked ham
½ teaspoon onion juice
1 teaspoon vinegar
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
½ cup heavy cream, whipped
Watercress

Soften gelatin in cold water 5 minutes. Combine egg yolks and seasonings in top part of double boiler; add bouillon and milk and cook over hot water 5 to 6 minutes,

I am wondering if you can give me some information, or refer me to someone who can help me? By accident, while doing my dishes Sunday, I concocted a plain soap and water mixture that took all the tarnish off my everyday silverware. I was simply amazed. Seeing how nice the few pieces looked, I mixed a second batch of the same soap and water mixture and cleaned the rest of the everyday silverware. This is what I want to know: Is there some place where I can have this solution tested to see if it hurts the silverware? Before I publish my finding, I want to be sure it won't hurt or harm silverware in any way, also if I could sell the idea to a soap firm and realize a very small revenue for it, I'd like that too. Of course, I realize I used commercial products. I did not try to do this, it just happened. M. B. O.

Listed under "Chemists" in the yellow pages of the telephone book are firms which will test the solution for you.

I'm afraid I can't hold out much hope to you for finding a market for this idea. As you suggest, the solution was made up of commercial products which, if used in the finished product would make it impossible for you to claim origin of the solution.

Also, as you may possibly know, there is a process for cleaning silverware called the electrolytic method which removes tarnish by subjecting silver in an aluminum pan to a water bath containing salt and soda. Similar ingredients in the soap and water softener which you used are what probably removed the tarnish.

I'm sorry to be so negative in my answer, for the very kind of curiosity which has led you to wonder about what happened in your dishpan has given the world practical inventions.

The First Night Audience Will Be an Attraction In Itself, Guest List Shows

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

AT LONG last! A theatrical first night smack in the center of metropolitan Washington. There'll be a new angle, too, at the Washington Theater Festival opening Sunday. The powers that be in the theater's direction have invited as special guests some 11 women of achievement. They'll be seated in a special section with their own guests.

Like to know who they are?

KATHERINE LENROOT, now with the Federal Security Agency;

MRS. ESTES KEFAUVER, wife of the junior Tennessee Senator and recent first prize winner in the District art competition;

MARY BETHUNE, famous Negro educator;

MUNA LEE, poetess and author of "Sea Changes";

MRS. RAYMOND CLAPPER, journalist;

DR. CATHERINE WAY, atomic scientist, now with the Atomic and Physics division of the Bureau of Standards;

NELLIE TALOE ROSS, Director of the United States Mint;

MRS. JULIA WEST HAMILTON, Negro educator and president of the Phyllis Wheatley YWCA;

REPRESENTATIVE EDITH NOURSE ROGERS;

MARGARET LANDON, author of "Anna and the King of Siam."

Oh, yes, the play is "Amphitryon 38," starring Elizabeth Bergner. The place is at Meridian Hill where, in cooperation with the National Park Service, the Washington Theater Festival has dug into a picturesque site.

DURING this past (we hope) desperately torrid spell the pleasant thing to think about—in fact the only thing to think about—was ICE—tons and tons of crystal clear ice stretching to a distant horizon; stacks and stacks of ice cubes tinkling in tall glasses; bowls and bowls of crushed ice used to cradle seafood, melons—or in ice packs to smooth the ravaged brow!

Brooding thus deliciously, we thumbed through a booklet entitled "ABC About ICE" with an instructive subheading "and how it helps keep America the healthiest Nation in the world."

Thus effortlessly equipped we ferreted the following . . . the Egyptians first put ice to a practical use by filling shallow, porous pans with water in the early evening, skimming off thin layers of ice in early morning (this comes as considerable surprise to anyone who's sweltered around Egypt!).

Naturally, the smart old Greeks weren't far behind—and they did it the easy way. Using the principle of rapid evaporation of water through porous vessels they ranged rows of jars on the rooftops and during the night kept slaves sprinkling them!

That inveterate tourist, Marco Polo, next stepped into the icy picture, bringing back from an Asian jaunt the secret of how to make both water and milk ices. This was back in the thirteenth century and for the next 500 years most people were happy enough to eat their meats very high indeed.

Just 99 years ago, Dr. John Gorrie of, believe it or not, Apalachicola, Florida, invented both the mechanical method of making ice—and air-cooling. The Doc, helping cure malaria and yellow fever, discovered human temperatures went down with cool room temperature. He rigged up a funnel, placed blocks of ice in front of it, piped the cool air into sick rooms. Since he needed, down in toasty Florida, plenty of ice, he figured how to make it. He was backed by a Boston friend, the machine was patented May 6, 1851. His one difficulty, however, was extracting the ice from the containers. Stumped, for the time, his pal withdrew all capital, and the poor doctor died believing himself a failure.

Later, as such things almost always go, a grateful public recognized his valuable contribution—raised a monument at Apalachicola and placed his statue, as one of two great Floridians, in the National Capitol!

Right here in Washington there's a school for icemen—which, alas, is only open from October to summer. It's a two-weeks course, costs $125, and is approved by the GI education bill. The course is run by the National Ice Marketing Institute and teaches everything from marketing to the more intimate facts about an ice cube!

PERFECT FOR PARTITIONING off a room, shielding a doorway, or just adding decorative charm to your home is a new flexible screen of wood slats

IT'S NEW . . .

By Lucia Brown

Flexible and easy to arrange in a dozen different ways is a modern floor screen made of lightweight wood slats. It looks a little like one of those hanging bamboo porch screens, standing on it's side—much heavier and swankier looking, though.

Suggested uses for this screen of many shapes: As a partition between rooms in small homes, as a shield for a nursery crib, to stand in front of the door leading to the kitchen, to hide a space heater or radiator, to serve as a striking decorative note that will give any room a "lift."

Watching his wife struggle to shake out a dust mop properly in an apartment inspired an ingenious invention by a Washingtonian, John O. Barkl of 2221 42d st. nw. has patented and recently placed on the market a plastic bag on a plated-steel rim which may be attached to any door knob. The mop can then be inserted through the overlapping opening at the front of the bag and thoroughly shaken and cleaned without raising dust in the room.

No need to make a trip to the porch—if you live in a house—or to the window of your apartment. No chance of having the dust blow right back into the room you've just cleaned, or worse still, into your neighbor's apartment! The simple, sanitary gadget saves time, trouble and possible fines for violating city laws.

Fresh upholstery is easy to install on a dining or kitchen chair if you have one of the new kits of plastic material.

Colorful Cottons

Colorful cottons—in deep new "decorator" shades—are the key to making every room in the home a place of color and beauty. The new trend in colors such as chartreuse, wine, gray, deep green, reaches into every nook and cranny—from the table cloths in your dining room, the towels in your bathroom, to the sheets on your beds. These new shades bring life to walls, accent rugs, add beauty to your table.

It is said if a piece of bread is held between your front teeth while peeling onions, the fumes will not get into your eyes. Let your mouth stay slightly open.

Always examine cereals, flour, etc., as you open the new bag or box to be certain there are no weevils in it. Boxed raisins and currents should be watched carefully.

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

Using Children's Records

In the last few years there has been a flood of good records for children put on the market. One of the most popular monthly "clubs" has distributed hundreds of thousands of records made especially for youngsters.

When you and I were children our parents relied largely on books, paper dolls, drawing, and a few other types of activity for the quiet times that all children should have. Today records can play their part.

Though at first some parent supervision in using records may be wise, before long even young children can be relied on to play their own. Nor will they find their favorites only among the records made especially for them. Mature musical selections of great composers are often high on the child's lists of best-liked records.

In some families selected records are used at rest time with good effect. Children who resist naps will lie quietly listening to some of their favorite music. Records are also useful on rainy days. One art teacher I know has used certain musical selections to help children develop their art work. She puts on a record and suggests that the youngsters use their crayons or paint brushes in rhythm with the music. Surprising results are obtained.

Card Playing Is Incidental

It's Yakkity-Yak When The Bridge Club Meets

THE dominating influence of community life is the Ladies' Bridge Club. We have one in our community. The lady who lives with me is a member. Every time it is her turn to entertain, I am asked what she should serve. I invariably say cake, ice cream and coffee. That's the only thing I can think of except hamburgers. Then she tells me what she is going to serve, which is usually some concoction of salad and nut bread.

Last time the bridge club met at our house I had a headache and stayed home. I learned how these clubs operate. Card playing is incidental.

The conversation started about someone being late. It was the same person who was late all the time. Her husband was the kind who would neither do the dishes or put the children to bed. He was the only untrained male in the group and the ladies really waxed furious about him.

Imagine the lazy galoot, who sat with his feet on a desk all day, refusing to help around the house at night. What a snap he had compared to cooking, cleaning house and changing pants all day long. Everyone agreed that something should be done and as a starter, all agreed that they would quit speaking to him.

One lady happened to mention that her husband had lost $3 playing poker the week before. This brought the men's poker club into full discussion. Three ladies wanted to put a stop to it immediately. It was finally agreed to let it continue, but only if they stopped playing promptly at midnight and the limit was cut to 5 cents.

Baby sitters were taken up next. It seemed that there had been some "muscling in" on the local talent by persons outside the neighborhood. Everyone agreed that these guilty persons "had their nerve." The club chairman was delegated to tell these interlopers to "cease and desist" and the vice chairman was directed to ask the sitters not to accept jobs out of the neighborhood. Television set owners agreed not to use them as added inducements.

A uniform hourly rate was also agreed on. This rate lasted until the following Saturday, when competition got keen, and two of the ladies cheated—not intentionally, of course.

One of the "players" apparently had a new hairdo. It was one of those new-fangled short haircuts. All the girls screamed and raved for 10 minutes about it. And everyone said they were going to get one just like it right away. And the cost was only $15, which included washing and setting. It was obvious that the husbands were about to be poorer by $120.00.

I also learned that some of the neighborhood children were getting out of hand. The word "brat" was used several times. It wasn't anyone's children who was there, of course. It was the other people's children. Some of them had no training at all.

And so it went. Only one of these women liked the new manager of the Supermarket and five thought the new baby shop didn't have a thing. The bakery was beginning to slip on the quality of its cakes and no one thought they'd like the new neighbors. "Did you see how she had that boy dressed?"

The party ended for me when some one asked if the lady down the street merely needed a girdle or did anyone know for sure if we were to have a new arrival in the community. I slammed the door, took a sedative and went to sleep.

I don't think they ever did play cards. Tom Cullen.

Starching Collars and Cuffs

When starching lace collars and cuffs, and lace doilies, here's a good rule to remember: First measure your piece carefully, making an accurate tracing of it on a heavy white paper. Then in lukewarm light suds, wash. Rinse three or four times. No matter how soiled, if you use several light soapings, lace will come white under gentle treatment. Starch to consistency desired and dry on the paper. If you prefer a creamy color give a final rinse in weak tea and starch solution; or for a warmer color, use weak coffee.

It's Easy, If You Know How!

You'll Never Be Happy on a Diet Dwelling on Sweets of the Past

By Ida Jean Kain

"And for dessert I'll take strawberry cream pie." A plump customer gave this order firmly, almost as if she expected an argument from the waitress.

Then, turning to her companion, she said defiantly, "I'm going to take the pie—diet or no diet!"

The friend of course knew all about the diet—how could she help it? She knew our overweight had been struggling to reduce for months—doctor's orders. So trying to help her stay on the straight-and-pastryless path, she ventured: "Wouldn't it help you to forget desserts and to stop craving them if you didn't eat them?"

"No, it would not!" the dieter exploded. "That dietitian's theory is all wrong," she continued. "I crave them all the time . . . it must be something in my system. I never forget them for a minute . . . we always had desserts at our house, such wonderful desserts . . ." At this point a dreamy look came over her face, and she went on nostalgically . . .

"Why I remember every Sunday we had homemade ice cream, sometimes fresh strawberry ice cream. And mother used to bake the best Dutch apple pies—we could have seconds. And I can see the candy dish on the mantel—it was always kept full. And the cookie jar in the kitchen—filled with freshly baked cookies . . . to this day I remember how good they smelled!

"Diet or no diet, I'll never get over craving desserts and sweets," she finished with a deep sigh.

Well, in that frame of mind, she never will. Subconsciously she doesn't want to stop craving desserts. So our overweight will be tempted by every cream pie, candy dish, cookie jar and rich dessert the rest of her natural life. That's the way she wants it. What's more, she feels put upon at being deprived of what she considers her just desserts.

Her psychology couldn't be worse. But it is the attitude many overweights take. Under doctor's orders they diet and reduce, but they are completely miserable about the whole thing.

It need not be that way!

If you have to lose weight, make up your mind right off that it will just be a different way of eating. Then you can appreciate the science of nutrition that lets you have the best fare in the world and still turn excess pounds back into energy.

Take the viewpoint that a neat and tidy waist is much more to your liking than a piece of pie. Think along that line and desserts begin to lose their power over you. You can break a food habit the same as you can break any other habit—if you really want to.

You don't have to take my word for it. Hundreds of reducers write that they no longer have a desire to overeat, and to their complete amazement, they no longer crave rich desserts.

Try Pineapple Ambrosia

Pineapple Ambrosia is a quickly made and delectable dessert. Peel, core, and cube a fresh pineapple; sprinkle with sugar and mix well. Just before serving place a layer of the pineapple in individual sauce dishes or sherbet glasses, then sprinkle with coconut and repeat the layers once more. Garnish with fresh or maraschino cherries.

or until thickened, stirring constantly. Add to gelatin, and stir until dissolved; then add ham, onion juice, vinegar and parsley; chill. When slightly thickened, fold in cream. Turn into loaf mold; chill until firm. Unmold on serving platter, garnish with watercress and serve with mayonnaise. Serves six persons.

Usually when served with a meal, champagne is used as it comes from the bottle. It is poured as soon as the first course is served. Champagne is best when served in very thin stem glasses. Thin glasses are best because they do not raise the temperature of the champagne as much as the thicker ones do. Champagne glasses have a wider top than regular wine glasses. There are on the market glasses for champagne which have hollow stems to set off the sparkling beverage to the very best advantage.

CHAMPAGNE PUNCH—Serves 30

2 cups diced fresh pineapple
Juice of 3 large oranges
Juice of 1 lemon
1 cup whole strawberries
1 pint brandy
1 pint Curacao
1 pint Tokay
3 bottles carbonated water
1 large piece of ice
3 quarts champagne

Place the first eight ingredients in a 3-gallon crock and let stand several hours. Add a large chunk of ice and the champagne just before serving time.

Can you tell me where I can obtain patterns for piece work quilts? W. M.

The McCall Needlework Pattern Book has patterns for two quilts, the Dresden plate and fan quilt. Both patterns contain transfers for the quilting designs also.

Can you tell me whether there is some way in which I can wash black cotton and not have it come out covered with lint? J. O.

Tie the cotton securely in a much-washed and therefore lint-free pillow slip before placing it in the washer. Or wash it separately in fresh wash water. I suspect the lint comes from washing the black fabric in water in which light fabrics have been first washed.

Do moths attack suede? I have both a suede coat and a suede dress and am wondering whether I should store them or pack them away the same as other winter clothing. G. H. W.

Moths do not attack leather, but it would be wise to place the articles in cold storage, where they would not be subjected to intense summer heat. High temperatures could remove the oils from suede and cause it to be less soft and pliable.

Need Escape? Try 'Bride of Vengeance'

"BRIDE OF VENGEANCE," the new Paramount picture at the Warner, is simple, sheer, unadorned escapist stuff. As a work of art, it makes no pretensions. It's a lavish spectacle of hokum and it offers you 2 hours of relaxation, demanding nothing more of you than your time, and money.

No attempt has been made at accuracy in the presentation of this historical romance which deals with the machinations of the infamous Borgias to dominate Italy in the sixteenth century. Instead, the actual personages have been given the "Hollywood treatment." Caesar Borgia is all evil; Lucretia, his sister, is a naive dope; the Duke of Ferrara is all goodness. If you know your history this is hardly the true picture.

Accuracy Unimportant

But in these "treatments" accuracy is unimportant. The historical setting is merely used for variety; the types remain the same. In this one, John Lund is playing the Duke of Ferrara, a noble-hearted ruler of a domain which stands between the Borgia lands and the coveted Duchy of Venice. Macdonald Carey, as Caesar Borgia, must eliminate Ferrara before he can march on Venice. He has the husband of Lucretia (Paulette Goddard) murdered and makes it look as if the Duke of Ferrara did it. Intent on revenge, Lucretia marries Ferrara, planning to murder him and help Caesar take the hometown. Ferra is no dope, however. He has Caesar pegged and is trying to cast a huge cannon which he can use against the Borgian armies when they turn up at his city gates.

Lucretia falls in love with Ferrara, betrays him, poisons him, learns she was duped, returns to Ferrara to help defend it, finds her poison didn't work, is re-united with her husband, helps him blast Caesar's army, and lives happily ever after. See! Nothing tremendously original. Just a lot of fun.

Lund Toys With Part

Helping to make it seem light and unimportant is the performance of John Lund. He doesn't get carried away with the absurdity of the plot, he is playing with the part. Paulette Goddard has the chance to go on a costume jag, although some of the things she wears look downright hideous. She prances through her role, not getting in the way. Macdonald Carey, with the weirdest hair-do in years, is appropriately snarly and unctuously sinister.

The supporting cast has a line-up of stalwarts such as Albert Dekker, Raymond Burr, John Sutton, and Fritz Leiber to fill out this romantic Renaissance tapestry which is ably directed by Mitchell Leisen. Leisen has used his music and his cameras extremely well; he has gotten much comedy into a film which could easily have turned out to be a flop.

Because he hasn't tried to do something great, he has given the public a satisfactory chunk of hot-weather entertainment.

JOHN M. COPPINGER.

"BRIDE OF VENGEANCE." Produced by Richard Maibaum; directed by Mitchell Leisen; screen play by Cyril Hume and Michael Hogan, story by Michael Hogan; music score, Hugo Friedhofer; director of photography, Daniel L. Papp, A. S. C. At the Warner.

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK—Arthur Schwartz, the producer and composer of "Inside USA," was at a party where he played a medley of his song hits, and then did the first song he ever succeeded in getting published—"Baltimore, Md., Is the Only Doctor For Me." Although it was written as a serious effort many years ago, it has now become a travesty replete with cliches—and Schwartz sings it as a comic song . . . Reinald Werrenrath heard it, and told the composer: "Believe it or not, Arthur, I must have a copy immediately. I want to do it at a recital next week. It's perfect" . . . "Recital? Perfect?" asked Schwartz. "You're joking" . . . "No, I'm serious," said the singer. "The recital is in Baltimore, at a convention of doctors."

Tuesday night "Pretty Penny," the new revue by Jerome Chodorov and Harold Rome, had its premiere at the Bucks County Playhouse. On their way to the Pennsylvania theater, Chodorov and Rome stopped to buy several religious amulets to carry in their pockets at the first-night. . . . "I didn't know you were so religious" a friend told them . . . Chodorov explained: "There are no atheists in fox holes or on opening nights."

Dorothy Stickney and Howard Lindsay are vacationing from their starring roles in "Life With Mother," which goes on tour in September. This is their first real vacation in many years . . . Their marriage has been an ideal one, despite the hazards of the theatrical professions where the show, for some strange reason, always is supposed to be of prime importance . . . The day after they were married, Miss Stickney received a wire to report to the touring company of "Chicago." The actress joined the show, and her groom honeymooned alone . . . In reviewing the past years Miss Stickney said yesterday: "I'm so perfectly happy that last night I saw a falling star—and could think of nothing to wish for."

Alexandria Group Doing 3 One-Acts

Three one-act plays will be presented by the Disciple Players of Alexandria today and Saturday at 8:30 p. m. in George Washington High School auditorium. The plays are "Ripe Watermelons" and "Guest of Honor," comedies, and "Bracelet of Doom," a mystery. Louise Brown is director, assisted by Eleanor Dannehl.

Cross Roads Has Fine Time With Herbert Play

A GROUP of young, enthusiastic actors and actresses are doing F. Hugh Herbert's recent Broadway comedy, "For Love or Money," out at the Bailey's Cross Roads Theater. They seem to be having fun doing it and you may have fun watching it, if you critical standards are not too rigid.

The play runs through Saturday night and opens again next Wednesday to run through Saturday.

Most of the people associated with the productions at Bailey's are amateurs; the theater is not their primary source of livelihood.

But what they lack in experience, amateurs make up for in energy and gaiety. Often their fun is contagious. At least, so it seemed to this reviewer when he saw the play the other night. The audience laughed often and loud, although it must be admitted that it was more often at the wit of the playwright than the delivery of his lines.

"Money" was a hit on Broadway primarily because of the presence of a young lady named June Lockhart. That's what the New York critics all said. That's only half the story. It is regrettable to report that there is an outspoken coarseness and salaciousness in the basic situation of the play which must have been responsible for a large part of the success of the piece: a Broadway star befriends a young girl and keeps her in his home. Everyone is given a chance to misunderstand their relations.

What makes the whole thing noxious is to hear some very young people delivering the lines. If this observation smacks of pruriency, mark it down to the fact there are some very funny comedies available which don't need smut to make them seuccessful. J. M. C.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Who'll Get the Decision In This Scrap?

Ezzard Charles and Joe Walcott could learn a thing or two about fighting by watching Judy Coplon and Prosecutor Kelley in action.

"SOUTH PACIFIC" BIG HIT ON STAGE, BUT NOT HERE

"Does anybody put out a good snappy course in the art of conversation these days?" asks D. Geldner of 1831 2d st. ne.

"The reason that I ask," she continues, "is that we had a visitor last week. He was a Marine who served in the South Pacific with my husband.

"For three hours they fought the war all over again. Finally, just to show the boys that I was still awake, I asked our visitor how he liked our city. He said: 'I am constantly amazed by traffic here. The populace seems to be divided into two parts—the quick and the dead.'

"Then, having disposed of me in the shortest possible time, the fellows resumed their campaign in the South Pacific.

"At this point, I think I am suffering from battle fatigue."

FIGURES DON'T LIE (OR DO THEY?)

M. O. Coleman of 520 7th st. se. raises a dubious eyebrow at a statistical report which appeared recently in our morning contemporary.

It quoted the Population Reference Bureau as stating that "male college graduates average 1.77 children and female college graduates 1.26 children."

District Liner Coleman's personal survey of the subject indicates that the females have 100 per cent of the children.

CLUB NOTES

Next meeting of the District Liners Club will be held at 8 o'clock tonight at the Petworth Library (Georgia ave. and Upshur st. nw.).

If two of your items have been printed in this column, you're eligible to join. If you haven't been invited yet, it's because overworked Secretary Rennie Quible of 6004 Benalder dr. hasn't had a chance to contact you yet.

If you're eligible for membership and would like to join the fun and attend tonight's meeting, you don't have to wait for a formal invitation. Be at the Petworth Library at 8, and tell Rennie to sign you up.

PERSONAL NOTES

GWU: Your complaint that Washington girls are unduly stand-offish won't find many supporters, I'll betcha. Have you ever considered the possibility that the fault may be with you, and not the girls?

THE DATE MUST HAVE BEEN ABOUT MARCH 15

Felton Thomas of 865 21st st. ne. notes with amusement that his favorite newspaper recently reported:

"Collision of one of its buses with a tax last year cost the A. B. & W. Transit Co. $1500 yesterday."

MEMO TO A COP

J. B. H. would like to send a message to a policeman he doesn't know, so he's doing it through this column. The message goes like this:

"To the motorcycle patrolman who hides in the bushes on Weaver pl., just off Chainbridge rd.: Please be careful. The bushes are full of ticks this time of year, and you might get spotted fever. We wouldn't want that to happen—even to a policeman who hides in the bushes."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Wolcott Turned Against Housing

By Drew Pearson

Representative Jesse Wolcot of Michigan, who leads the Hous fight against the public housin bill, would like to forget all about it, but he once strongly espoused what he now opposes.

Pearson

Back in August, 1937, Wolcott was an outspoken champion of the Wagner-Steagall Housing Act, which also provided for slum clearance and low-cost public housing—the same program which the Michigan Republican now calls "socialistic."

Lifting Little Iron Curtain

Debated backstage during the closing days of the Paris conference was a point which may revolutionize U. S. policy toward Iron Curtain countries. It was: Should the U. S. create a "Little Marshall Plan" for the satellite countries?

Two schools of thought exist among American diplomats. Both agree that Europe badly needs East-West trade and that the German Ruhr must have markets in Bulgaria, Hungary, Romania and other satellite countries.

However, one diplomatic school opposes economic aid to any Iron Curtain country. Such aid, it is argued, is only an indirect way of helping Russia.

The other school argues that aid to Czechoslovakia, Poland, Hungary, etc., would win over the people of these countries—already resentful of Soviet rule. This group is prepared to take the calculated risk of helping Russia in order to persuade the satellites to break away from Russia.

However, it was economic unrest inside Yugoslavia that helped induce Tito to pull up his Iron Curtain. Therefore the No. 1 school argues that our best policy is to let the satellites stew in their own economic juice until they really realize how tough life behind the Iron Curtain is.

(Note—Despite Foreign Minister Vishinsky's smiles at Paris, Russia still has 172 fully trained divisions of the Red Army, plus 180 reserve divisions which can be mobilized in 60 days.)

Perle's Parties

Mrs. Perle Mesta, former Republican oil heiress from Oklahoma, whose loyalty to Harry Truman has made her Minister to Luxembourg, threw a party for Defense Secretary Louis E. Johnson the other day. But the guest list looked as if Mrs. Mesta was specializing on Pan American Airways.

It included Sam Pryor, Republican national committeeman from Connecticut and vice president of Pan American; Ben Sonnenberg, astute public relations counsel for Pan Am, and Senator Brewster of Maine, considered Pan Am's best senatorial friend. Louis Johnson, himself, of course, used to be counsel for Pan American, which has received more favors from Uncle Sam than any other airline in history.

Note: Mrs. Mesta is now reading books on the steel industry, for Luxembourg, her new post, is the center of the European steel cartel.

Merry-Go-Round

Most of the Pennsylvania Democrats in Congress are planning to descend on Defense Secretary Johnson to demand the ousting of Paul Griffith, former commander of the American Legion, from the Defense Department. Those who know Griffith and his chair-warming activities, agree with the Congressmen . . . Some wives of the generals and admirals who make up the Joint Chiefs of Staff refer to their husbands as the "stiff joints." . . . Rootin'-tootin' Representative John Rankin of Mississippi has really dug into the history of books to sound the alarm about spies. Warning Congress about communism, Rankin recalled that Benjamin Franklin's secretary, a subversive named Bancroft, had slipped Government secrets to the British during the Revolutionary War . . . Jack McCloy, now United States governor of Germany, was picked up and virtually appointed by Secretary of State Acheson. They will work well together . . . Gen. Harry Vaughan, the President's military aide, is now sniping at Defense Secretary Johnson.

He Who Laughs Last

Oregon's wrathy Republican Wayne Morse has served notice that he will block every bill Chairman Millard Tydings of Maryland tries to steamroller through the Senate Armed Services Committee. Morse issued his warning privately after rowing with Tydings publicly over whether the Navy should report to Congress its disposal of surplus property. This is now required by law, but Tydings wants to repeal the law and let the Navy dispose of property without any public report. Morse objected on the ground that Congress should not give up its checks on the military. But in committee Tydings overruled him.
